Vital B.C. Interest

Japanese Trade Here At New High

(Next month the B.C. government will send a substantial trade mission to Japan, headed by Premier Bennett. Behind this move is a major boom, not only in Japanese trade with B.C. and the rest of Canada, but in Japanese investment in our industry. In two articles Times business editor Jim Hume examines this background.)

By JIM HUME

Japanese-Canadian trade, booming since the late 1950's, took a $16,000,000 leap in 1964 when exports through B.C. ports hit a record $272,894,736.

The record came as no surprise to government officials who early last year confidently predicted that the $256.4 million mark set in 1963 would easily be passed.

They are equally confident that before 1965 ends trade with Japan will be pushing $300,00,000.

Their forecast is not as fearless as it might sound.

Since 1959 when Canadian exports to Japan via B.C. were $119 million sales figures have climbed at a rapid rate.

In 1960 B.C. ports cleared $138 million in raw materials, wheat and other products destined for Japan.

A year later the total had climbed to $173.9 million and in 1962, the year the Japanese cut back on buying, still managed a three million dollar increase to reach the $176.9 million mark.

Second Boom

In the wake of the trading boom which has seen trading figures double in five years has come a second boom in the investment of Japanese capital in Canada.

To date most of that investment has been made in B.C. with mining projects the main target.

But there are signs, such as the recently announced automobile assembly plant in Nova Scotia, that the Japanese are starting to expand both their buying and their investment horizons.

Alberta makes no secret of the fact that it looks with envy on B.C.'s role of prime target for Japanese buying and investment.

Minister of Industry Russ Patrick says his government is doing all it can to encourage the Japanese to look beyond the Rockies for new fields to conquer.

"But," he adds, "compared with Japanese developed business with British Columbia I would have to say that ours is in its infancy."

Japan does buy some coal from Alberta and is looking for more. She buys potash from Saskatchewan and a limited amount of ore from Manitoba, but B.C., with average annual sales of around $120,000,000 to Japan, still tops the list.

Not that the prairie provinces are not profiting from the Japanese search for raw materials and food.

Big Grain Sales

For the past five years wheat purchases from Canada, all shipped through B.C. ports, have hovered around the $90 million mark.

In 1964, for example, Japan paid $98 million for Canadian wheat, close to $1,000,000 for

Cyprus Armed Posts Being Dismantled

(See Story Page 3)

NICOSIA (AP) — The Greek Cypriot government announced today it has started dismantling its fortified positions along the borderline dividing the Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot sectors of Larnaca in south Cyprus.

A spokesman for the government of President Makarios said similar fortifications in Paphos in the northwest and Limassol in the south already have been dismantled.

Makarios had announced that all Greek-Cypriot armed posts, fortifications and police checkpoints in three of the island's six districts will be removed as a step toward pacification and normalization of life in Cyprus.

The Turkish - Cypriot leadership has branded the Makarios move as an attempt to mislead international public opinion. A Turkish - Cypriot statement, added, however, that anything that makes life easier for some of the island's Turkish minority is welcome.

The Greek and Turkish-Cypriots have been feuding since December, 1963, when open fighting broke out over Makarios' attempt to abrogate the island's constitution. A UN peace force, to which Canada has supplied troops, has been maintaining an uneasy truce between the two sides.

Crest of Destruction Strikes Iowa, Illinois

DUBUQUE, Iowa (AP) — The Mississippi River, its high water mark achieved in Wisconsin, continued its destructive rush past Iowa and Illinois communities today.

The river crested Friday in Prairie du Chien, Wis., at an estimated 25.3 feet — 7.3 feet above flood stage. It was difficult to tell the exact river level because the flood gauge was under water.

Dubuque residents braced for a record 26.7-foot crest expected Sunday and watched in fear as two tall tanks filled with inflammable material threatened to topple.

Guttenberg, Iowa, a town of 1,900 some 20 miles down river from Prairie du Chien, fought a major battle with the churning river that assaulted its levee.

Winds began whipping waves over the flood wall Friday but scores of volunteers, including high school girls, heaved sandbags to raise the dike to a safe level. Four feet of water would have flooded two-thirds of Guttenberg if their efforts had failed.

In Dubuque, workers pumped water into the two weakened storage tanks for balance as they threatened to fall.

The Red Cross said it is feeding more than 1,000 workers in Dubuque and more than 400 in Guttenberg and reported 1,000 of the 5,700 Prairie du Chien residents had left their homes.

Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota have been declared federal disaster areas and Illinois petitioned Friday for the status.

Governor Otto Kerner wired President Johnson for $1,000,000 in initial aid, saying Illinois property has suffered $25,000,000 in flood and tornado damage.

Governor Karl Rolvaag of Minnesota raised his estimate of flood damage to $88,000,000 from $50,000,000.

Goodies or Dismay ... All Known Monday

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's best-kept annual secret will be unveiled when Finance Minister Gordon rises, to the usual desk-thumping encouragement of Liberal backbenchers, and delivers his third budget speech Monday night.

In 90 minutes, or perhaps less, he will present the results of months of work, affecting virtually every person in Canada.

Only about half a dozen persons have advance knowledge of what he will say.

With the secrecy of a military invasion, the budget is brought to fruition with painstaking precautions.

The final draft of this budget was completed before Easter, but minor changes in the speech were inserted this week. This was a polishing job, not affecting the meat of the matter.

Besides Mr. Gordon, the budget's entire contents are known only by Prime Minister Pearson, deputy finance minister R. B. Bryce, two or three senior officials in the finance department and the parliamentary secretary to the minister, Larry Pennell (L—Brant-Haldimand). Revenue Minister Benson would certainly know about the tax-change portion of the speech, if not all of it.

RECALLS RHUBARB

Mr. Gordon is responsible for the secrecy. He is reported to be ultra-cautious about it after the rhubarb that resulted from his first speech when it was disclosed that outside consultants were involved in its preparation.

In last year's speech, he made a point of assuring the Commons that no outsiders were involved.

MARTIN DETAILS TREATY SIGNING

'Not You (Quebec); But Us (Ottawa)'

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government, concerned over Quebec's claims to international treaty-making powers, Friday night issued a three-page policy pronouncement that says provinces may negotiate but not sign pacts with foreign governments.

External Affairs Minister Martin conceded there is a "lack of harmony" between treaty-making and treaty-implementing powers but said "there is no doubt that only the government of Canada has the power or authority to enter into treaties with other countries."

His statement, an expansion of remarks made recently by himself and Prime Minister Pearson, was an apparent reply to speeches during the week by Paul Gerin-Lajoie, Quebec's education minister.

The external affairs minister said "once it is determined that what a province wishes to achieve through agreements in the field of education or in other fields of provincial jurisdiction falls within the framework of Canadian foreign policy, the provinces can discuss detailed arrangements directly with the competent authorities of the country concerned.

"When a formal international agreement is to be concluded, however, the federal powers relating to the signature of treaties and the conduct of over-all foreign policy must necessarily come into operation."

Mr. Martin, in his home riding of Essex East in Windsor, Ont., issued the statement through his office in the capital. The fact the government found it necessary to issue it at all

Youth Killed In Midnight Car Collision

Neighbors Awakened By Noise

By DESMOND BILL

An 18-year-old youth was fatally injured early this morning in a grinding two-car collision at a suburban intersection.

GARSIDE
. . . dies at 18

The impact was so violent it awakened the neighborhood and shook houses 150 feet away.

Dead is Ronald Garside, 1712 Bay Street, an apprentice carpenter.

Police said the other driver involved, Garry B. Haut, 20, of 920 Jasmine, escaped with a slight cut on his chin.

Both drivers were alone in their cars when the accident occurred shortly after 1 a.m. at Obed and Bodega.

FIFTH VICTIM

The youth was the fifth traffic victim in Greater Victoria this year.

He apparently had been out with friends Friday night and was on his way home.

Saanich police said Garside was going south on Bodega and Haut west on Obed. Their cars met at the uncontrolled intersection.

After the impact Haut's car continued west and Garside's vehicle went off the road and spun around a power pole.

Garside, who did not have seat belts in his car, was thrown from the driver's side into the front passenger seat. He was found lying partly out of the door.

CHEST INJURIES

Saanich fire department ambulance rushed him to St. Joseph's Hospital where he died of chest injuries at 4 a.m.

An autopsy was held this morning to determine the exact cause of death. The date of the inquest will be announced later.

Mrs. William Jordan, 370 Obed, who lives three houses away from the intersection, said she was half asleep in bed when she heard the noise of the accident.

She said, "I heard a squeal and a thump. The whole house shook. It sounded like it happened on our front lawn."

HEARD CRASH

Mrs. Jordan said that when she and her husband went outside other neighbors were appearing who had also heard the collision.

Garside was born in Victoria and was educated at Gordon Head School before his family moved to Kitimat in 1955. When they came back to Victoria in 1963 he attended Oak Bay Junior High School before going to work as an apprentice carpenter.

He is survived by his father, George Garside, and two brothers, Allan and David. His mother died more than a year ago.

STEEL FIRM, UNION EXTEND DEADLINE

(See Also Page 16)

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The United Steelworkers' Union announced today the first contract extension with a steel company, postponing the May 1 strike deadline for Phoenix Steel Corp.

Union President David J. McDonald said the agreement will be signed formally Monday, covering some 1,000 steelworkers at the firm's plant in Phoenixville, Pa., and 2,000 workers at another plant in Claymont, Del.

Border Clash 'Almost War'

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Fighting continued today at a disputed India-Pakistan border point and Indian reinforcements were being moved up, a defence ministry spokesman said late tonight.

Earlier tonight, an Indian spokesman said there was "no military build-up" by the Indians although Pakistani forces had allegedly launched a big new attack.

"This is almost war," the spokesman declared, saying Pakistani forces were supported by tanks in the disputed border area between West Pakistan and the marshes of Kutch.

The spokesman said Pakistan had moved an infantry division to the border, a regiment of medium tanks, one of light tanks, a medium artillery and two squadrons of F-86 fighter-bombers.

REPLY EFFECTIVELY

The spokesman said only a small force held the Indian position but they "replied most effectively to the unprovoked Pakistani attack." It was not known whether fighting was continuing.

He said the size of some of the attacks, and the "obvious preparation that has gone into this large-scale aggressive activity" gave rise to the belief that Pakistan's "belligerent attitude was becoming positively more threatening."

Both India and Pakistan have moved tank - supported regular troops into the Rann of Kutch, an uninhabited 10 mile square patch of marsh and mudflat on the India-West Pakistan border.

Pakistan has included its section of the region in coastline to be surveyed for off-shore oil drilling by the Sun Oil Company of the United States.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Radio station CKNW says that a Vancouver police constable who has been under investigation was suspended today by Chief Ralph Booth.

Hangs Self in Jail

MONTREAL (CP) — A cloth belt, said by prison officials to be part of a new prison outfit, was used by 19-year-old Jean-Pierre Monette to hang himself in Montreal's Bordeaux Jail Friday night.

Monk Burns Self

SAIGON (AP) — A Buddhist monk burned himself to death today at a crematory a few miles south of Saigon. The monk was discovered after he was dead. His name was not known.

Plane Wreck Seen

SEATTLE (AP)—Wreckage of a four-engine transport plane that disappeared Friday with five persons was sighted today at the 10,000-foot level on Mt. Rainier. Search officials said there was no sign of survivors.

World-Wide Search For Rear View ID

LONDON (UPI)—The individuality of a cow is not apparent from the rear. That, alas, is the vista most often confronting the milker.

The problem is to devise a method for identifying cows—from the rear.

The government milk marketing board yesterday offered a £500 ($1,400 prize to the person who comes up with the answer.

The identification mark must be readable from a distance of four yards, from behind. "In a great majority of cases," the board said, "the cow stands with her back to the milker."

And why must cows submit to such classification?

"Cows," the board answers, "are required to be identified at milking times for correct allocation of the quantity and quality of the milk produced, and for the rationing of feeding stuffs."

Further, "cows and calves are required to be identified at other times for breeding and management purposes."

The identification must be permanent. It must not hurt. It must be cheap.

Branding is out. It would spoil the animal's appearance and her market value. Dye washes off.

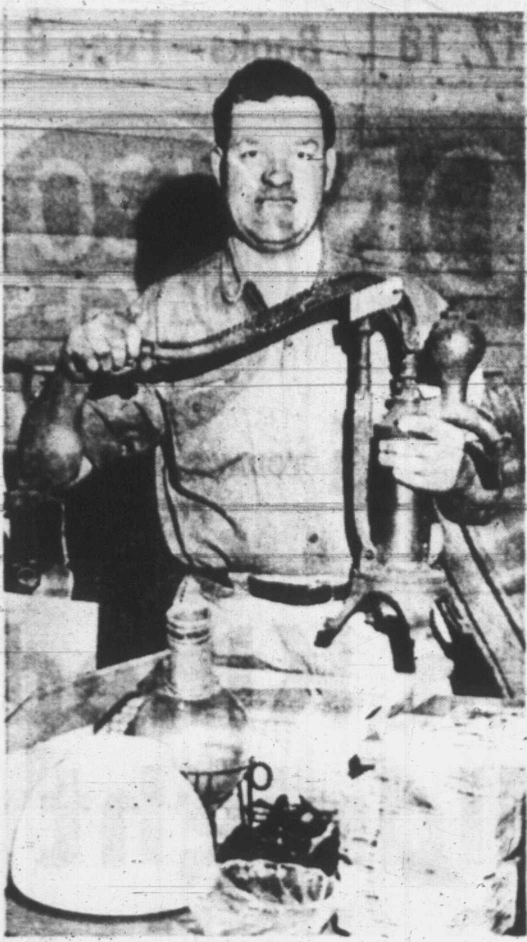
Entries must be received by September. Most early suggestions favored identification plates.

Flood Threat Still Eases

EMERSON, Man. (CP) — The Red River continued to spill its flood-waters slowly into the business section of this border community today.

Residents, cheered by a downward revision in the flood forecast Friday, breathed more easily in the hope the peak was near.

Mayor Leonard Carless said after a morning tour of the town: "I don't think it will come up farther than it has. At least we're hoping."



"WHAT AM I BID" will be theme tonight at the third annual Prospect Lake District Community Association's auction sale. Co-ordinator Jack Whitehead holds hand pump which will be offered along with all the doo-dads and thingummybobs donated to the auction. Proceeds will help pay for the association's new building. The auction starts at 7 at Prospect Lake Community Hall on Sparton Road. (Photo by Strickland.)

VANCOUVER POLICE

Unsolved Crime Under Review

VANCOUVER (CP) Vancouver police are reported to be reviewing unsolved holdups dating back more than two years with fresh interest following disclosures that members of the force may have been involved in recent crimes here.

One of the holdups was a slick operation in which $106,000 was taken from a suburban Burnaby bank on Christmas Eve, 1962.

This week Police Chief Ralph Booth announced that several members of the force are under suspicion for complicity in a February robbery of $1,250,000 in mutilated bills and a $13,000 January robbery of a bank.

The announcement was made Thursday, the day after police Const. Leonard Hogue, under investigation in connection with the currency robbery, shot himself, his wife and his six children.

Police are investigating a station wagon Hogue rented during the week.

Meanwhile, Ald. Tom Campbell said today he will ask city council Tuesday to appoint its own commission to investigate the police force.

He said he thinks that an impartial and independent commission should conduct such an inquiry out of fairness to the police department.

. . . JAPANESE

barley and $12 million for flax seed.

With B.C. handling all shipments the prairie grain boosted west coast economy while paying handsome profits to farmers.

But it was in B.C. that most of the Japanese money remained.

The B.C. department of trade and industry warns that its preliminary figures for 1964 are open for revision but adds that any revisions that do take place will be minor.

In All Fields

In all fields exports are up over 1963, but for dramatic evidence of the tremendous increase in B.C.-Japanese trade a comparison should be made with trade figures of five years ago.

In the following list 1964 sales figures are given first with 1960 figures in brackets.

Copper in excess of $26 million ($1.3 million); lumber more than $21 million ($0.2 million); iron ore $20 million ($9.4 million); pulp and allied products in excess of $21 million ($3 million).

Other products that are expected to push B.C.'s share of the $272 million total well over the $125 million mark (of $256 million spent by Japan in 1963 B.C. got more than $118 million) are aluminum (more than $10 million), logs, scrap brass, scrap copper, nickel, lead and zinc, all well over a million dollars.

But, rich though the Japanese bonanza is and happy though British Columbia businessmen are to share it, it has brought problems with its prosperity.

In 1963 while Japan was spending $256 million in Western Canada Japanese exports to this country through B.C. ports were only $41.6 million.

The imbalance is expected to be similar when the 1964 import figures are tallied.

Must Close Gap

Economist and Minister of Trade and Commerce Ralph Loffmark says the $3 to $1 gap in trading must be closed if the present boom is to be maintained.

In speeches to the legislative assembly, and on the banquet circuit, he warned that Japan can find raw materials elsewhere in the world and will unless she can find a better trade balance with Canada.

Japan could sell more to Canada but tariff and trade regulations restrict the variety and amounts of goods that can be sold in this country.

Mr. Loffmark claims that the tariff barriers could be lowered, allowing Japan freer access to the Canadian market without harming domestic manufacturers.

But eastern industrialists who see little of the money spent by Japan, view such proposals with alarm. They say that removal or lowering of tariffs would result in a food of Japanese goods to the detriment of Canadian manufacturers and workers.

Andrew Ito, a Canadian of Japanese descent who acts as a liaison man for Mitsui, one of the big-three Japanese trading companies with permanent offices in Vancouver, says the fears of Eastern Canadians are unfounded.

Want Equal Chance

"We don't want to step on the toes of domestic manufacturers in Canada," he says. "All we want is an equal chance to compete on the Canadian market with goods Canada imports from other countries."

Eiichi Kodama, vice-president of Mitsubishi International Corporation, says the same thing.

"What we are saying when we ask for greater freedom to compete on the Canadian market is, 'will you please buy from Japan the heavy machinery and industrial equipment you are now buying from the United States and other countries'," he says.

"We have many more things Canada could buy from us without hurting her domestic producers at all. We must get the balance of trade a lot closer than it is at present. Even two dollars spent for one taken in would be wonderful and I think that point could be reached if Canada just bought more heavy equipment from us."

Picture Brighter

Mr. Kodama quotes two examples to illustrate his point.

"Recently your government purchased turbines for the Peace River power project from Japan and even more recently the CPR signed a contract with a Japanese shipyard for the building of two fully-automated 85,000-ton bulk oil carriers. These are the sort of things that make the balance of trade picture much brighter and I think you will agree that no harm is done to Canadian industry."

In May Premier Bennett and several members of his cabinet will visit Japan with the trade imbalance high on the list of items to be discussed with Japanese government officials.

A half-dozen Japanese traders interviewed in Vancouver point out that the stakes are high. They stress that if the trade imbalance can be levelled off there is no reason why Japanese-Canadian trade should not continue in the pattern of the past five years.

That would mean that by 1967 Japan would be spending around $500,000,000 annually in Canada with the greater proportion of the money going to western producers.

Monday: Japanese investment in Canada.

. . . MARTIN

Indicated its concern with Mr. Gerin-Lajoie's remarks.

The latest political controversy between the federal and Quebec administrations was set off by the signing in February of an agreement for a student exchange between Quebec and France. Each government interprets the signing differently.

The federal government calls the agreement an "entente or understanding" and on March 1 Mr. Martin said "standing alone, these agreements between France and Quebec could not have been regarded as agreements subject to international law."

In addition, the agreement was assented to by the Canadian and French governments by an exchange of letters.

Quebec's viewpoint was indicated Friday by Premier Jean Lesage when he was asked to comment on the prime minister's statement that the provinces should go through Ottawa in any negotiations with another country.

"I can't see how Mr. Pearson can say that Quebec is not qualified to sign international agreements when we have just signed one with the government of France."

DIFFER WIDELY

The federal and Quebec positions also appear to differ over the jurisdictions within which a province may negotiate.

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie said Thursday Quebec intends to negotiate not only in areas falling exclusively within provincial jurisdiction but in those of common interest with the federal government.

Mr. Martin's policy statement mentions only "fields of provincial jurisdiction" as areas where a province may negotiate with a foreign power.

The external affairs minister concedes there are special problems created by the constitution without provincial consent to treaties that touch provincial jurisdicion.

"The problem is not unique," he adds. "Other federal states have adopted various approaches to the task of harmonizing treaty-making and treaty-implementing powers; but there is no federal state in the world whose constitution allows its members to make treaties freely and independently of the federal authorities.

"The reason for this is obvious. Independent treaty-making powers are the prerogative of sovereign states. A federal state whose members actually possess such powers would neither be a federal union nor a state. It would be an association of sovereign powers."

TOO FRIENDLY

Stoney Dunned By Police

VANCOUVER (CP)—Stoney, a dog that arrived here in a blaze of publicity in 1962, has been dunned out of the police department in disgrace.

"He's just to damned friendly," a senior police officer said Friday.

Photographers were at the airport 18 months ago when Stoney, a gift to the department from RCMP Inspector R. P. Stone of Halifax, arrived.

He was a dog with a noble background, son of a champion Alsation in Germany and grandson of a holder of international honors.

He showed excellent promise—he was big, had an excellent nose and good speed.

But . . .

"He was quite happy to run alongside a man trying to escape and want to shake hands," said Inspector Bud Errington, police dog squad chief.

"We felt he might be like an overgrown teenager who is slow to mature. But perhaps we all made too much fuss of him when he first came and he thought the world was wonderful.

"He had no enthusiasm for police work."

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The sunny skies promised for southern Vancouver Island and the lower mainland Thursday were short lived when a Pacific storm moved closer to the coast than forecast. This storm will continue to move eastward across B.C. today. Under sunny skies temperatures in the southern interior climbed to near 70 Friday. Kamloops with an afternoon temperature of 71 degrees was the warmest place in Canada. Sunday will see a continuation of the sunny skies in the south.

WIDE SEARCH FOR CHILDREN

ABBOTSFORD (CP) Three children disappeared from a church outing Friday and still were missing late Friday night as rain pelted Sumas Mountain near here.

The boys, aged 10 and 12, were identified as Garry Goddart, Patrick McKinney and Reg Martin. All are from this area.

Truck Talks Held Still Possible

Talks to avert a trucker's strike remained possible today even as both sides appeared to harden their positions.

Twenty-one cartage companies in Vancouver served 48-hour lockout notice Friday night, after the International Brotherhood of Teamsters gave 48-hour strike notice at 41 companies there and three on Vancouver Island.

The statutory warning notices expire after Sunday.

Affected here by strike notice are Heaney's and Dowell's, together with West Coast Freight in Nanaimo. Together, about 200 drivers, swampers and warehousemen are involved.

Two other Victoria companies —Ideal Fuel and Alert Service— could be but have not been served 48-hour strike notice.

A fifth company, Capital Freightways, earlier applied for a government-supervised strike vote which may be held next week.

A spokesman for teamsters Local 31—the General Truck Drivers and Helpers Union—said one Island company has asked for negotiations.

It was asked to contract the other two and arrange a meeting for next week.

"If they don't want to talk, then we will sit down with the individual company," he said.

In Vancouver, a union spokesman called the lockout move an attempt to force the teamsters to settle the dispute on management terms.

Campaign Launched to Aid Island World Village Plan

A campaign to raise $8,000 has been launched by Vancouver Island Chapter, Children's International Summer Villages.

The group is well on its way to founding the 68th international village for children at Brentwood College, Mill Bay.

The campaign for the camp, which will run July 15 to Aug. 15, began this week with a mail canvass. About 1,500 letters were sent out.

The village will be the second in Canada. The other is located in Waterloo County, Ontario.

Purpose of CISV is to better world understanding by giving children of many nations an opportunity to meet annually in different countries of the world.

Each country invited will send a delegation of four 11-year-olds, accompanied by an adult leader.

"Eleven years old is a stage of flexibility," Mrs. John Fraser, chairman of Vancouver Island Chapter, CISV, said today.

"At that age there are no racial prejudices. Language is no barrier because it is such an active age."

Countries invited to send delegations to the Brentwood village are Finland, Denmark, Guatemala, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Norway, Philippines and the U.S.

In addition, four Vancouver Island youngsters will also be selected to attend.

So far, five foreign delegations have indicated they will attend.

"This is a wonderful project Yeaf," Mrs. Fraser said.

The delegations pay for their own transportation to and from the village site and the local CISV chapter pays accommodation and recreation expenses.

CISV was conceived in 1946 by Dr. Doris Twitchell Allen, associate professor of psychology at University of Cincinnati.

The first camp was held on the outskirts of Cincinnati in 1951 with 55 children, aged 10-12, attending from nine countries.

The organization was incorporated as a non-profit corporation in 1950 and has established itself in 35 countries on five continents.

Blaze Season Starts May 1

The B.C. forest fire season will open May 1, the forest service said Friday.

During the season no outdoor fires for any purpose are permitted within half a mile or any forest or woodland in the province without a permit.

The only exception will be fires set in approved facilities in provincial camping and picnic grounds.

Saint George Feast To Be Annual Event

Roast beef, red roses and red wine formed the background for a public Saint George's Day dinner in the Empress Hotel dining room Friday night.

Manager Leslie Parkinson organized the event to mark the revival of the Royal Society of Saint George in Victoria.

"We plan to make this an annual black-tie affair at which people can enjoy themselves in a traditional, dignified fashion," Mr. Parkinson said.

Friday's gathering was dignified but informal. Doreen Jackson played appropriate organ music, including There'll Always Be an England, In a Country Garden, Scotland the Brave, The British Grenadiers, The Weaver, and songs from Gilbert and Sullivan.

Among the diners were Victoria lawyer Rodney Taylor, James A. A. George of the Royal Commonwealth Society, Capt. James Steel, Capt. Ernest Beaumont and Dr. Donald Cummings from Red Deer, Alta.

Brian Travers-Smith, 420 Victoria, is chairman of a provisional committee appointed to revive the Victoria chapter of the Royal Society of St. George.

NEW U.S. HEAVY ATTACK BOMBERS DUE SOON

Jets Hammer Viet Convoys

SAIGON (AP)—An armada of 66 U.S. Air Force jets hammered at road convoys and a ferry installation in Communist North Viet Nam today in round-the-clock attacks.

A military spokesman reported six U.S. Air Force B-57 Canberra jet bombers blasted an anti-aircraft site and a truck convoy Friday night in North Viet Nam. He said all planes returned safely.

The daylight raids were carried out in two operations. Six Canberra jets attacked a road convoy in strafing attacks on three routes. A spokesman reported they knocked out the convoy and an anti-aircraft site.

Later, 35 F-105s supported by 25 jet fighters struck a highway bridge and docking ramps at a ferry crossing near Vinh, 135 miles south of Hanoi, the North Viet Nam capital. The bridge was reported destroyed.

In the ground war, a force of 300 to 500 Viet Cong attacked and defeated a government force in Kien Hoa province, 60 miles southeast of Saigon.

OVERRUN POST

The Viet Cong also overran a government post 15 miles south of Saigon Friday killing 16 and wounding 15 of the 33 defenders. Government artillery hammered the enemy and the post was reoccupied Saturday, but the Viet Cong had moved out.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Navy is bringing in its powerful A-6 Intruder jet attack bomber for strikes against North Viet Nam, a 7th Fleet spokesman reported.

The Intruders will arrive aboard the carrier Independence, which is to arrive for duty off Viet Nam "within the next couple of months," the fleet spokesman said.

Although the Intruder isn't a supersonic warplane like the F-4 Phantoms and the A-4 Skyhawks, an electronic countermeasures system carried by the Intruder could become increasingly important. More and more radar-aimed anti-aircraft emplacements are reported being put into operation in North Viet Nam and the radar-guided Soviet Sam II missiles apparently are on the way. Electronic counter-measures could be used to jam the ground systems.

In East Berlin, Gen. Heinz Hoffmann, East Germany's defence minister, said Friday that Soviet ground-to-air missiles and jet fighters are in Viet Nam now.

Military spokesmen said the B-57s destroyed the North Vietnamese anti-aircraft site but damage to the truck convoy is unknown. The jets dropped 17,500 pounds of bombs and fired 50 rockets during the two-hour raid.

MARINE KILLED

A U.S. Marine Corps enlisted man was killed and another wounded early today when a grenade exploded accidentally at the Phu Bai marine installation northwest of Da Nang air base.

Saigon press reports said today that three American frogmen killed in a coastal area 340 miles north of the capital were slain by Viet Cong guerrillas while carrying out a beach survey.

Car Deadline Looked Impossible —And It Almost Proved to Be

By RON SUDLOW

Ten weeks ago Dave Whitehead, 240 King George Terrace, got an idea.

So he sunk $7,000 in parts plus all his time, dedication and patience into it.

The result is "Canada's Most Beautiful Roadster," today on display at Victoria Quarter-Milers Car Club's Eighth Annual Autorama at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Building a show car isn't easy. Building it in 10 weeks trying to hold down a job sounds impossible.

And Dave almost didn't make it in time for the show.

CLOSE CALL

His black roadster pickup with a camper was rolled into the arena 25 minutes before show time.

He and his brother, who prefers to be known as Spook, were setting the vehicle up in a display position while painter Red Murray applied the pin-stripping.

For the first eight weeks, Dave spent eight hours a night working on the auto after a full eight-hour day as a carpenter.

For the last two weeks he has worked from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 a.m. daily.

His King Camper is basically a 1929 Model A Ford roadster pickup with a 283 cu. in. 60 Chevrolet engine.

Chrome alone on the little beast is worth $2,000.

"Just about everything that comes off is chromed," said his brother, Spook.

STAINLESS STEEL

The car is channeled (lowered) and the frame is constructed of laminated stainless steel on the sides.

Its roof is fiberglas and upholstery is white, square-tufted naugahyde.

Another roadster, The Jewel, built by Whitehead in 1963 was named Hot Rod of the Year in the 1963 Oakland Roadster Show.

In 13 shows that year he claimed 11 sweepstakes (best in show) plus numerous paint, body and engineering awards.

But Dave's car isn't the only expensive piece of machinery glittering the arena floor.

OTHER ENTRIES

There are 29 other entries, many of them local, which will be competing for $1,000 in trophies.

Aside from $500,000 in custom cars, vintage cars, motorcycles and restored autos there are also two American-built competition models.

They are Miss Demeanor, a turbine-powered dragster, and a 1960 Class B Chevrolet gas dragster, which seems barely big enough to carry all the trophies its owner, Jim Morrey, has won in competition.

'UN Has No Power' To Recommend Force

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — France maintained Friday that the UN General Assembly does not have the power even to make recommendations on the use of force to maintain peace.

The French statement to the special 33-nation committee on peace-keeping was in direct opposition to the U.S. position that the 114-nation assembly has full power to deal with any peace-keeping problem, including the recommendation for peace forces.

The French statement appeared to go beyond the Soviet claim that the assembly could make recommendations on peace-keeping only after the Security Council failed to act.

France, the Soviet Union and 11 other countries have refused to pay UN assessments for peace-keeping operations on the ground that only the Security Council can make assessments for such projects.

The U.S. has insisted that these countries should not be eligible to vote because under the UN charter nations may not vote if they are two years behind in their dues.

Jurist Urges Papers To Appeal Conviction

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sun and Province newspapers Friday were fined a nominal $25 each and urged by Magistrate Gordon Scott to appeal convictions for publishing evidence during a preliminary hearing of a prior statement in which a witness quoted the defendant as admitting his guilt.

The magistrate called the trial a test case and said he hoped it would be appealed to establish some authoritative law on the subject.

He said he made the fines nominal because he believed the newspaper reports in question were published in good faith and in the belief they were within the law.

"There would be a very substantial penalty if I thought otherwise," the magistrate said.

The charges were laid following stories Dec. 16 last year on the previous day's testimony at a preliminary hearing in a murder case.

The accused later was found not guilty.

Magistrate Scott said the case had given him much concern. He said he had been impressed at first with defence arguments that statements in question could be published because they would be admissable at a higher-court trial.

However, he said, it was not up to a magistrate or the press to decide on the admissability at a higher-court trial of evidence given at a preliminary hearing.

Destroyer Men Set Visit to Station

Several officers and 25 men of the Royal Navy's guided missile destroyer, HMS Kent, will visit the RCN's radio station at Aldergrove, B.C., May 6.

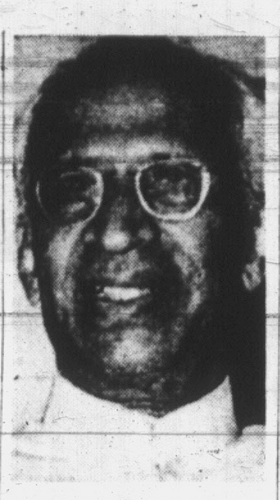
The ship, bound for the United Kingdom from Singapore, will visit Victoria between April 30 and May 5 and then spend five days in Vancouver.

Altered Escort To Rejoin Pacific Fleet

HMCS Saguenay will be recommissioned into the Pacific Command May 14 at HMC Dockyard.

The Esquimalt-based destroyer escort is completing conversion there to variable-depth sonar and helicopter hangar and landing platform.

Major work on the St. Laurent Class DE was done by Burrard Dry Dock Co., Ltd., North Vancouver, and the ship was towed to the Dockyard for completion.



AFRO-ASIAN force to patrol the border between North and South Viet Nam was proposed today by Indian President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan. The force, he said, would help to prevent the conflict there from escalating into a major war.

PTA Pushes Referendum Law Change

The B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation wants the Public Scholos Act amended to allow capital expenditures without a referendum.

A resolution approved by delegates asks that provincial grants be permitted without a referendum unless five per cent of the eligible owner-electors petition for a referendum.

It says the legislation should be changed because in many fast-growing areas of the province school construction does not keep pace with the demand for classroom space, resulting in overcrowded classrooms.

The resolution says referendums are not necessary under normal circumstances in the provinces of Alberta, Ontario and Quebec.

The resolution was proposed by the Prince Charles Parent-Teacher Association in Surrey.

CLOSE LOOK

The B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation will ask the provincial government to take another close look at the Liquor Act and provide a more effective means of controlling minors drinking.

The BCPTF says present legislation has placed the owners of liquor outlets in a "hypocritical" position because it is almost impossible to stay within the limits of the law.

The resolution also said the provincial government has relaxed many of the laws regarding the sale of liquor and as a result it is impossible for the liquor laws regarding minors to be effectively enforced.

By PETE LOUDON

NICOSIA — France is like Trenton, you can't beat the navy and you're safe if a Turk is aiming at you.

These are the three main points I have to report a few hours after landing in Cyprus to visit the QORs.

The RCAF Yukon that brought 35 soldiers and newsmen and 18,000 pounds of freight here from Trenton, Ont., in about 13 hours landed for two hours at Marville, France, after a smooth Atlantic crossing.

It was frustrating to see the yellow-orange lights of Cardiff and Brighton and London and not make a landing. But we'd make up for it in France, we thought.

By our Ontario standards it was 8 p.m. and we were raring to spend a two-hour stopover sight-seeing. But it was 2 a.m. in France, dark and raining, and we never left the airport. It is a duplicate of the RCAF station we'd left from. The only Frenchmen we saw came from Quebec.

Racing toward the dawn at 450 miles per hour and four miles above the ground, we lost a night somewhere. It was daylight and we were over the Alps, the Riviera, Monaco. Nice looked nice and Napoleon's Elba appeared a grand place to be marooned.

Finally Cyprus, halfway around the world from Victoria and there's an ex-Victorian, Lieutenant-Commander Jim Wightman saying hello. It takes 6,000 soldiers to keep the peace here but just one sailor. Grounded by the complexities of a tri-service public relations system, Jim is the whole navy crew.

He has shepherded us through this lush, sunny island of date palms, mimosa blossoms, lemon and orange trees and horn-tooting taxis driving on the wrong side. We pass sandbagged positions manned by armed Greek Cypriots, Turk Cypriots and blue-helmeted UN troops.

Don't take pictures of the Turks, we're told, they don't like it and might shoot. A Turk shot a Greek in Nicosia while we were flying in. There are bullet scars on the hotel but we are told "You are safe if they are aiming at you." We don't plant to test the theory.

We plan to sleep. Then we'll go out and mail another letter for Lucien Rivard, as the current joke goes. We want to shop, too, and maybe find the hotel swimming pool.

Haven't seen any QORs yet, but in all this sub-tropical splendor one can't really hurry.

Grievances Of Negroes Under Study

BOSTON (AP)—Mayor John Collins studied a list of grievances from the city's Negro community today in the aftermath of a civil rights march and rally led by Rev. Martin Luther King.

After addressing a crowd estimated by police at 18,000 on historic Boston Common Friday, Dr. King went to city hall for what he later described as "fruitful and frank" meeting with the mayor.

Dr. King and local civil rights leaders presented the mayor with a list of grievances covering public housing, welfare and community needs and enforcement of fire, health and housing codes.

In his rally speech, Dr. King said he came to Boston, the headquarters more than a century ago of the movement to abolish slavery, "not to condemn but to encourage."

"It would be dishonest to say Boston is a Birmingham or that Massachusetts is a Mississippi. But it would be more irresponsible for me to deny the crippling poverty and the injustices that exist in some sections of the community."

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Toki Urase, 81, was killed when struck by a taxicab as she crossed a street in the city's east-end district Friday.

In the Wrong League

QUEBEC, ACCORDING TO that province's minister of education, Mr. Gerin-Lajoie, intends to negotiate agreements directly with foreign governments. It would do so as "the collective instrument of French-Canadians." And this course of action would be followed not only for constitutional and internal political reasons, but also in the cause of efficiency.

This is a fairly heady program of international conduct for a province, and the feeling in most of Canada will be that the "internal political" reason for it will loom more importantly than the other two.

Quebec, of course, has already negotiated agreement with France covering the exchange of teachers, researchers and some educational and cultural items. But formal implementation was effected through normal channels of communication between the governments at Paris and Ottawa, and this gave the subsequent agreement diplomatic standing. If Mr. Gerin-Lajoie now proposes to skip the formalities between the national capitals, he should have difficulty in achieving legal acceptance of his overtures.

It is one thing to desire to advertise the particular merits and capacities of the French-descended portion of Canada. It is quite another to proceed on the basis that the province of Quebec is a sovereign entity and hence able to deal on an equal footing with the national governments of other countries. Such interchanges would have no diplomatic recognition.

Most foreign governments almost certainly would have reservations about entering into such agreements, if only for the reason that such action would offer a diplomatic slight to the government of Canada. Bonn might well look askance at a direct attempt by Ottawa to contrive an agreement with the local government in Bavaria; even Paris might question Mr. Pearson's sense of protocol if he were to sign a pact with the Department of Seine or Haute-Garonne.

The accepted system of intergovernmental communication has long been established, and a sovereign government does not enter into diplomatic relations with a local or regional government in another country. This may vex Mr. Gerin-Lajoie, but it is a fact of diplomatic life.

Ottawa cannot countenance such a departure from custom and legal procedure without acknowledging that Quebec has cut the last tie and become an independent power in the international world. And this, few Canadians would accept.

When Poverty is Beaten

PERHAPS IN RESPONSE TO the case made by Rachel Carson in "Silent Spring", a substantial amount of advice to gardeners this season urges them not to use sprays which have lethal, or severely injurious, secondary effects.

The point is made that while many sprays may kill bugs, or weeds, as they were intended to, they can also cause death to other forms of life.

This year's caution to gardeners reflects the public inclination to take a harder look at the products of science. For some time now scientists have been asked to look beyond their immediate target and to think of the ultimate results stemming from their activities.

But what of the less scientific pursuits? Over the years this continent has reached a point of affluence—by the skilled development of its various resources — which places North Americans, at least theoretically, in a position to eliminate poverty. We have more, or can get more, of what we want in material things.

Yet paralleling this development, this great success in mastering production, discontent has grown. The materialist society, with all its creature comforts, is not satisfying its human beneficiary, it is not bringing him contentment.

Conceivably he is inclined to be more ill at ease because he has more time to worry about his discontent than did forebears who were generally preoccupied with the tasks essential to clothe, house and feed themselves and their dependents.

If this is the case, then the years ahead promise discontent in greater depth as technology and automation give the human being more time to worry about himself.

The scientists have been told to look beyond the immediate objectives to ultimate results—from bug-killing to the residual effects of nuclear experiments. Perhaps the social scientists should be urged to redouble their efforts to find adequate treatment for the increasing malaise foreseeable as the result of greater affluence and more leisure. It is not enough to accomplish merely the defeat of poverty.

A Place In the Hall

IT WAS A FITTING TRIBUTE to a dean of the profession that Gregory Clark should have been chosen as the first honorary member of the newly-inaugurated News Hall of Fame. For more than half a century Greg has been informing the Canadian public as a reporter, entertaining it as a feature writer, and uplifting it with his homespun wisdom and practical moral code.

The older generation remembers the Toronto Star's famous weekend feature, "Greg and I", which delighted readers for many years. This happy blending of the cartoons of Jimmy Frise and Greg's priceless anecdotes became almost an essential part of weekend Ontario life in the early 'thirties.

In later years Greg has been known to western Canada and readers of the Victoria Daily Times through his quietly humorous Weekend Magazine stories of personal and neighborhood predicaments and their eventual solution, and the bound volumes which have collected the best of these.

Now that the pace has slowed and his writings are only occasional, the profession has paid him a well merited tribute, which will be widely approved by the reading public.

The Possibility of Error

MR. ADLAI STEVENSON, THE United States ambassador to the United Nations, has proposed a reasonable—though perhaps not very acceptable—change in American policy.

He appreciates the difficulties thrust upon the diplomatic personnel of the country by the long isolation in which it stood until relatively recent years and by its quick ascendency to supremacy among western powers.

"Now," he says, "we have to learn the middle term" and he defines the middle term as one of "patience, of co-operation, of genuine sharing in the formulation and execution of policies"—a policy even of "humor and self-depreciation and a readiness to admit that, on occasion, the mistakes have been ours."

This is a mature attitude. It has, also, the advantage of recognizing that in the affairs of men there can be no absolute infallibility. The proposal comes from a man whose example helped to take the odium out of the term "egg-head", and also from a man whose point of view has frequently seemed more acceptable outside his own country than within it.

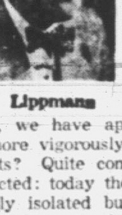
Dominoes Falling—Away From the U.S.



Lippmann

WHY is it, it is time to ask, that our position in Asia has declined so sharply though we are widening and intensifying the war in Viet Nam? According to the so-called domino theory, the United States would lose the respect and support of the peoples of Asia if, in confronting Chinese communism, it showed itself to be a paper tiger and refrained from military action. For three months, since February, we have applied this theory ever more vigorously. And what are the results? Quite contrary to what was predicted: today the United States is not only isolated but increasingly opposed by every major power in Asia.

With the exception of Japan, which has a government but not a people who support our policy, all the Asian powers are against us on this issue—not only China and Indonesia, but the Soviet Union, India and Pakistan. The crucial fact is that, although the Asian powers are by no means at peace with one another, what they do have in common is an increasingly vociferous opposition to the escalated war we have been waging since February. India and Pakistan, India and China, China and the Soviet Union are quarrelling to the point of war with one another. But they are united in condemning our February war.

The administration should put this fact in its pipe and smoke it. It should ponder the fact that there exists such general Asian opposition to our war in Asia. The President's advisers can take some comfort, but mighty little, from the fact that aligned with us is the Thailand government in Bangkok, which is independent though weak; the government in Seoul, which we subsidize; the government in Taipei, which we protect; the government in Saigon, which governs less than half of South Viet Nam. Pondering the matter, we must, alas, put into the other scale the ominous, rising anti-Americanism in the Philippines.

The dominoes are indeed falling, and they are falling away from us.

What is the root of all this swelling anti-Americanism among the Asians? It is that they regard our war in Viet Nam as a war by a rich, powerful, white, Western nation against a weak and poor Asian nation, a war by white men from the West against non-white men in Asia. We can talk until the cows come home about how we are fighting for the freedom of the South Vietnamese. But to the Asian peoples it is obviously and primarily an American war against an Asian people.

In Grave Trouble

In my view the President is in grave trouble. He is in grave trouble because he has not taken to heart the historic fact that the role of the Western white man as a ruler in Asia was ended forever in the Second World War. Against the Japanese the Western white powers were unable to defend their colonies and protectorates in Asia. That put an end to the white man's domination in Asia which hed begun in the 15th century.

Since then, despite our ultimate victory over the Japanese empire, the paramount rule has been that Asians will have to be ruled by Asians and that the Western white powers can never work out a new relationship with the Asian peoples except as they find a basis of political equality and non-intervention on which economic and cultural exchanges can develop.

This great historic fact is an exceedingly difficult one for many Westerners to digest and accept. It is as hard for them to accept this new relationship with Asia as it is for many a Southerner in this country to accept the desegregation of schools and public accommodations. The Asians who still instinctively think of Asia in pre-war terms are haunted by Rudyard Kipling and the white man's burden and the assumption that east of Suez are the lesser breeds without the law.

Until we purge ourselves of these old preconceptions and prejudices, we shall not be able to deal with Asian problems, and we shall find ourselves, as we are today in Viet Nam, in what the German poet described as the unending pursuit of the ever-fleeing object of desire. We shall find ourselves widely rejected by the very people we are professing to save.

Until this purge takes place, we shall go on drifting into trouble. For us the problem in Asia is primarily a problem in our understanding of historic reality. In our view of Asia there will have to be a fundamental change, akin to the illumination, which has come so recently here at home, that the American Negro must become a full, not a second-class, citizen.

The day will come when the same kind of illumination of the facts of life is granted to the makers of our policy in Asia.

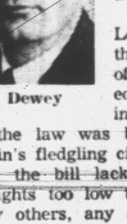
LONDON'S RACE BILL

By MARTIN DEWEY

Intent Good, Law Bad



Dewey

THE British government's new race relations bill has been born into a hostile world. Designed to make racial discrimination and incitement in public places a criminal offence, the recently published bill has been vigorously attacked from all directions.

The influential London Times echoed the majority opinion of the press when it editorialized that the intentions were good but the law was bad. To some, like Britain's fledgling civil rights' organizations, the bill lacks muscle and sets its sights too low to do any good. To many others, any attempt to legislate in the area of race relations is folly.

Nor is the bill likely to take race out of politics, as some hoped it would. The Conservative home affairs committee, whose members are wise enough to tread warily with a potentially popular piece of legislation, has dismissed the race relations bill as being "inept and ineffective" and has advised the shadow cabinet that the party cannot possibly support it. The government can't even count on the members of its own party, many of whom are already busy with amendments.

What seems to bother most critics of the bill is that it strikes, and strikes hard, in areas where discrimination is little more than a nuisance and does little or nothing to improve matters where discrimination is a real and pressing problem.

Thus, on pain of fines up to $150 for a first offence, the bill would prohibit discrimination "in places of public resort" — "hotels, restaurants, bars, places of entertainment, public transport, and so on — and in places maintained by public funds. But it has nothing to say about job discrimination, where the prejudices of employers, trade unions and the workers themselves have the effect of relegating colored workers to menial, low-paying jobs.

Housing

Another area of acute difficulty for colored immigrants is housing, where Jim Crow landlordism and the pressures of ratepayers' organizations have combined to create crowded, unsanitary ghettos. Yet all the bill provides in this respect is that a non-resident landlord cannot include a race clause in subletting agreements. A landlord who lives in the affected building can, of course, discriminate at will.

Finally, a person is guilty of a criminal offence "if, with intent to stir up hatred against any section of the public in Great Britain, distinguished by color, race, or ethnic or national origins," he publishes, distributes or displays written matter or uses words in public deemed to be "threatening, abusive or insulting." Here the offender is liable on summary conviction to a fine of $600 and six months' imprisonment, or, on indictment, to a fine of $3,000 and two years' imprisonment.

However, this section contains another curious ommission. The bill would make it illegal to stir up race hatred publicly, but it would still be all right to do so at a closed meeting or within the confines of organizations such as, for example, Britain's Fascist or Nazi parties.

Other complaints are that the bill is fuzzy and open to widely varying interpretations, that it is chock full of potentially embarrassing loopholes and that it establishes dangerous precedents with regard to freedom of expression. For one thing, the government has since made it clear that it prefers to attack job discrimination by purely persuasive, non-legislative means. But it will have a hard time convincing some purists that the prohibition of discrimination places maintained by public funds does not extend to the employment exchange.

Technical Loopholes

The omission in the bill of any reference to religion, means, as well, that technically a proprietor could close his premises to whole classes of colored customers by barring, say, Hindus and Moslems. Perhaps this would be stretching things. But not so far-fetched is the possibility of a wider adoption of the Soho strip-joints' "private club" device, whereby a public establishment is turned into a bogus club merely by asking customers to pay a nominal "membership fee" at the door.

For its part, the section concerning public incitement leads Britain's criminal law into a snake pit of wavy opinion, subjective impression and arbitrary judgment. Admittedly, the bill closes the door to vindictive prosecution by providing that charges must be approved by the director of public prosecutions or the attorney-general.

Still, the shadowy threat of prosecution would lurk in every meeting hole, at every street corner rally, in every pub, haunting every public utterance. What is the "intent" of the Hyde Park orator who cries "damn the Irish"? At what point does criticism become incitement and at what point does disapproval become hatred?

To do justice to those who drafted the bill, it must be recognized that they have fought a very "English" kind of compromise — trying, on the one hand, to strike a realistic balance between the desirable and the possible and, on the other, to reconcile the rights of racial minorities and those of the individual citizen to like or dislike as he sees fit. Here, indeed, lies the explanation for many of the bill's seemingly negligent omissions.

Yet the almost universally unfavorable reaction seems to indicate that this time the old formula isn't going to work. Already, many serious observers of Britain's race problems have taken the bill's failings as final proof of the inadequacy of the legislative approach and have begun to look with quickened interest at U.S. experiments with commission-style enforcement of anti-discrimination measures.

Now That April's Here

By TONY EMERY

Emery

WHATEVER the month of April may signify for the ordinary citizen, it is beyond question the cruellest month in the University calendar, for undergraduates and faculty alike. The pressure begins at or near All Fools' Day, appropriately enough, as essays become due and students begin to realize how close they are to the final examinations. The library begins to make the acquaintance of earnest seekers after knowledge whose faces have not previously been seen near the book-stacks; the corridors outside faculty offices are furnished eccentrically with chairs, each with its ramshackle pile of marked essays, ready to be claimed by their authors, or editors.

Lectures come to an end, and there follows a truce, an uneasy lull: the calm before the storm, the sudden quiet before the barrage comes down. Then the examinations begin, and life is measured out in three-hour agonies and colored by the omnipresent pale blue booklets. Bad as examinations are for the student, at least the worst is over when he or she has finished committing to paper, in a more or less legible manner, everything that may have been suggested by a process of free association, to a highly-wrought mind after a rapid and reckless perusal of the question paper.

Instructor's Ordeal

It is at this point that the ordeal begins for the instructor, who has had little to do during the examination itself but watch with sinking heart the worst students filling the most booklets with the crabbedest writing. Now he is handed his quota of the sea-blue inexhaustibles, each bearing an approximate spelling of his name at the top right hand corner. (I shall believe that the educational millennium has arrived the day I take in a set of papers that proves that everyone in my class has at least learned how to spell my name correctly. But I can't complain too loudly: you should see what they do to the names of some of my colleagues . . .)

Every flat surface in his home and his office soon bears its pale blue burden. No sooner is one set marked than another takes its place. If you hear a professor whistling at this time of year to keep his spirits up, you can bet that his musical selection will be from "The Sorcerer's Apprentice", as the flood of booklets threatens to engulf him and his family, his neighbors in the office corridor, and all his possessions. It is no novelty for the marker to find as he clears up a large set of papers that under the last one to be gathered up lurks the crumpled wreckage of a lost ham sandwich.

Of course there are some compensations to be found, at long intervals, among all this suffering, or presumably human beings would have rejected the whole grisly business long since. It is sometimes as if a hog, on a routine rootle through the unpromising garbage, had turned up an undoubted truffle, when the marker suddenly sees, amid the welter of banalities and generalizations, the gleam of an interesting idea, or some evidence of independent thought and study.

And it must not be forgotten, either, that occasional students exist who not only do not dread examinations, but positively look forward to them. I remember a young lady from Dawson Creek whose demeanor during these terminal trials was well worth watching. She would spend 10 minutes or so reading the questions—I told you she was an unusual student—and then start in to write steadily, in a large legible hand, for three hours.

Happily Competent

Her face bore no signs of strain or tension; its placid contours were only occasionally corrugated by a genial smile of genuine pleasure. And the really sickening thing about the whole performance was the marvellous quality of what she wrote. She could turn out a better answer under examination conditions, against the clock, than most people could do under circumstances of total freedom, in a library full of reference books.

Not all the strain, in any case, is borne by the writer of the examination. My family has long since learned to treat me with unusual tolerance and understanding when I am marking papers, and the dog keeps well out of the way. I can usually mark about 10 papers in a sequence, twitching a little over the ninth and beginning to stifle a high-pitched scream towards the end of the tenth, and then I must have a break, drink a cup of coffee, kick the cat, or do something.

It was at this moment, in the days when I was a smoker, that I used to find myself trying to thrust a cigarette into a mouth that was already smoking one. Nowadays, when I am marking at home, I take out my spite on the weeds in the garden, so if you happen to see an elderly gentleman tearing savagely at the dandelions and groundsel while he hums tuneless snatches from Monsieur Dukas's hackneyed symphonic scherzo, you'll know what ails him.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

THERE are many interesting things to see on Atkins Road by people going in from the Sooke Highway.

Here are the old lime kilns that the early settlers built in 1853.

On the lower side of the road one can see where the lime stone was quarried. In several places the old drill holes, made by the old method of jackhammer and chisel, are visible. Black powder was used to blast the material loose.

In places you can find the residue of the burning charcoal and congealed lime.

There is a tunnel that goes under the railway allowing the Millstream water to reach the sea.

Where the little creek wanders between the rocky cliffs to tumble over a small twin fall, there are many different kinds of mosses growing, particularly those that favor limestone.

There are several beautiful liverworts growing with them, some have crescent-shaped cups on their leaves; most are filled with minute spores.

Along the banks there is a jungle of salmonberry and ninebark, some reaching a height of eight to ten feet, while on the ground in the shade the yellow violet is in abundance.

Here bleeding-heart and trillium grow in profusion, adding a bright color to the scene.

Western maples, red alders and bitter cherries grow in association.

Along the trail leading down to the stream one can see the old sandy beachhead of the ancient river that at one time filled this gorge.

Stop and watch. Perhaps you will see the little alligator lizard sunning himself on the warm sand. Don't pick him up. He can give a nasty bite.

Along the railway tracks you can see the Saskatoon berry in bloom as well as the birdsfoot clover and the little blue lupin.

Along the road the flowering dogwoods are coming into full bloom making a pleasing sight.

INSIDE POLITICS

With Douglas Fisher, M.P.

(Mr. Fisher is the member for Port Arthur riding for the New Democratic Party.)

'A Kind of Secular Priesthood'

Some recent appointments made by Lester Pearson give me a chance to return again to my argument about the weakness and lack of dynamic in the senior civil service. This time I want to make a positive point that I cherish: We must use on a selected basis in government much more of the nation's talent which is outside it and can never be in it on a permanent basis.

Several weeks ago I gave the negative side of this when I suggested that the troubles in which ministers of both Pearson and Diefenbaker regimes have wallowed must reflect some poor advisers at the top level of the civil service. Simply stated, the politicians cannot be this bad, all on their own.

I'd like to quote again from George Grant's Lament for a Nation. "For over a generation, choruses of praise have been offered to these civil servants. How wonderful for Canada that it should be represented by such permanent officials as Norman Robertson and Robert Bryce. They have been spoken of as a kind of secular priesthood. Yet the country they represent is now a fragmented nation, a satellite!"

Of course, Grant is a heretic, keening the end of a sovereign nation. But in "a kind of secular priesthood," he describes the dominating myth about our senior civil service. I am glad it came from Grant because he has the most perfect attribute for status in the priesthood, a Rhodes scholarship.

Grant comments on the close identity which developed in the 22 years of Liberal power between the masters and their servants. This identity and the recruiting for the party from the senior servants ties in with another aspect of my argument. If the parties, the business world, and the academic field cannot be an effective recruiting ground for ministerial talent, either there isn't such talent (manifestly absurd) or our system or traditions won't give it opportunities.

* * *

In any case, some of the ministerial disasters of the last two years may indicate the fallibility of our senior civil servants in a perverse way. Among the accident-prone ministers are such former senior officials as Lester Pearson, Guy Favreau, Maurice Lamontagne and Bud Drury.

Last week Mr. Pearson put Tom Kent in charge of his secretariat to wipe out poverty and gave Duncan Edmonds the lead role in the Company of Young Canadians. On the other hand, Jean Boucher, a civil servant, was named to succeed A. W. Trueman (who was not a civil servant) as the senior permanent member of the Canada Council.

The choice of Boucher does not contradict my argument. It reflects both the desperate shortage of French Canadians with experience and the unlikely lengths the government must go to find French-Canadians who are sympathetic to national organizations.

I contend that the Kent-Edmonds type of appointment are more and more necessary; that we must have ad hoc ministerial task forces to get specific programs going; that most senior officials are generalists, not experts; that they are neutralists and careerists, not enthusiasts and advocates. Two years ago when Walter Gordon and his imports bungled the budget, many in Ottawa rejoiced in his predicament for he seemed to have by-passed his officials. It was a sad example of an ad hoc task force. The point is that Mr. Gordon has quietly gotten rid of all the senior servants in the finance department who filled its top posts in 1962.

* * *

My earlier column drew a letter from a political scientist who has had much experience with both ministers and the civil service.

He states my argument better than I can and challenges my critical view of civil service quality. He writes:

"I am convinced that one of the fundamental needs of the policy process at the present time, which is going to dramatically increase in the future, is to have large numbers of highly-competent men and women in the public service in ministerial and prime ministerial offices appointed by the ministers and deeply involved in policy planning and implementation.

"It is unreasonable and unrealistic to expect the civil service to staff ministerial offices and to put civil servants in the position of being involved in day-to-day political matters. Of course the senior civil servants have to have an immense amount of political savvy and wisdom but I deplore the practice of them being so deeply involved in the political policy process.

"They are involved by default. For my part I do not believe our political parties have produced nearly a sufficient number of first-class people to staff ministerial offices.

"You are quite wrong in berating the Canadian civil service. It is an outstanding service, possessed of a great many brilliant and capable men. But these men need political leadership."

End of quote. End of this phase of the argument. In a few weeks I shall return to the civil service with a closer analysis of how its working at the top so often leads to lack of vitality.

A Revolutionary New Approach Possible for Canadian Fiscal Policy

By PETER NEWMAN

On the eve of Walter Gordon's budget, as the nation's tax structure is about to undergo its annual scrutiny, there is talk in Ottawa about a revolutionary new approach to fiscal policy.

Newman

The main proponent and chief theorist of this novel initiative is Dr. O. J. Firestone who is probably the most exciting and certainly the most original of Canada's academic economists. Currently a professor of economics and vice-dean of social sciences at the University of Ottawa he served, for a decade, as economic advisor to C. D. Howe and was one of the chief architects of Canada's postwar economy.

Firestone has just completed a study dealing with the problems of Canada's economic growth which has led him to reject as outmoded and inadequate the Keynesian "anti-cyclical" fiscal policy which has dominated Canadian thinking since the thirties. (This durable theory, formulated by the British economist John Maynard Keynes in 1936 holds that since business thrives on consumer expenditures, a tax reduction at a time of impending recession will stimulate the economy, while increased taxes will keep a business upswing from getting out of hand.)

Instead of using fiscal policy to provide such cushions for short-term business slides, Firestone wants to substitute growth-oriented policies that would assure long-term development utilizing the economy's full potential.

Avoid Balance

What's revolutionary about this approach is that it would systematically avoid balanced budgetting, whenever the level of Canadian economic activity dips below that potential of expansion sustainable without inflation. Firestone sets this potential at an annual jump in the GNP of at least 5 per cent (7 per cent including price increases).

"The day will come when this concept of growth-oriented fiscal policies will be as important a part of government thinking as gross national product is at the moment," Firestone told me. "When I first wrote a speech for C. D. Howe in 1945 and used the words 'gross national product', he said: 'What's this all about—put industrial production in—that's what people understand.' But a year later 'GNP' became accepted by the politicians and five years later by the public. The same thing will happen with growth-oriented fiscal policy."

Under Firestone's growth-oriented fiscal system, the Minister of Finance would ask himself what the likely shortfall in reaching a seven per cent growth rate might be. Then he'd formulate the kind of policies which would harness the gap in under-employment and under-utilized resource.

Applying his theory to immediate prospects, Firestone predicts that without such growth-oriented measures, "some slowing down in economic expansion may become apparent in 1965, foreshadowing the beginning of a recession either in the latter part of the year or in 1966, with the bottom of the recession being reached in 1967."

But his long-term prognosis is cheerful.

For the decade following 1967, he forecasts the most rapid period of economic growth in Canadian history. For the decade 1961-1971, he predicts a 23 per cent jump in Canada's population, 81 per cent increase in gross national product, and a 40 per cent hike in take-home pay. He is convinced that the economy, if properly guided, will be able to create an additional 1.8 million new jobs between 1961 and 1971.

On top of this growth-oriented fiscal approach, Firestone advocates at least four steps to ensure the kind of expansion he insists is vital to our future:

1. The tabling in Parliament of a White Paper on Economic Growth to bring national aims into focus. (This would be a followup on the influential White Paper on Employment and Income published in April, 1945.)

2. The establishment of an Institute of Financial Research to study the long-term problems of financing national development. ("The time has come," says Firestone, "for Canadian financial institutions not only to carry out financial policies but also to participate in their formulation.")

3. The immediate setting up of a royal commission on the problems and effects of foreign control over Canadian industry.

4. The formulation of more systematic long-term planning policies, actively involving all levels of government as well as private industry, agriculture, labor and other groups.

Interestingly enough, Firestone's economic growth theories fit directly into the Liberal government's proposed war on poverty. One of the few economists who has analyzed the dilemma of the Canadian poor, Firestone calculates that four million Canadians — one-fifth of the population — now live at or below subsistence levels.

According to his estimates, to wipe out the blight of poverty in Canada would require government expenditures amounting to at least 2 per cent of the gross national product. At current levels, this would mean the injection into the economy of an extra billion dollars per year from the federal treasury. (Family allowances, largest of the current social welfare programs, account for the annual expenditure of only half as much.)

"No nation can, of course, achieve all the socially desirable objectives in a year," Firestone concludes. But we'll never achieve anything if we just sit back and hope for the best.

Science Tries to Put More Vigor Into Old Age

By E. E. ASHPOLE

(In Spectrum, a review of British scientific news.)

Why do living things age? Since man is just as subject as other forms of life to the slow assault of ageing, one might have expected our scientific attention to have focussed itself on this question long ago.

Actually, it is less than 15 years since biologists began to look for the causes of ageing with the serious intention of eventually enabling medical science to slow down the ageing process in man.

In the early 1950s, a few scientists, realizing the desirability of understanding why animals age, began to pioneer a new branch of science called gerontology to study this subject. Among these pioneers was Dr. Alex Comfort, who is today one of the world's leading authorities on the young science of ageing.

Ten years ago, Dr. Comfort became Nuffield Research Fellow in Gerontology at University College, London. He has worked there on the study of ageing ever since. His present research is supported by the Medical Research Council.

He describes ageing in this way: "In man and other animals there is a loss in vigor and an increased likelihood of dying from disease as time passes. The rate of this increase in the likelihood of dying determines the life span of a species."

It is the control of this life span, which cannot be lengthened by providing better conditions, which is the goal of gerontology.

Dr. Comfort continues: "In the case of human beings the greatest ages for which acceptable records exist are just over 100 years. Improved living conditions and medical care enable more people to approach the limits of longevity for man, but they have not been able to increase it. The greatest ages reached today are no greater than those reached by a few indestructibles in past centuries."

There are about one million, million cells in one human body. And although appearing little more than a microscopic speck of jelly, each one houses the chemical plans which determine what we are. Each one is a complex factory in which the basic functions and chemistry of life take place.

All Play Part

Brain cells, muscle cells, liver cells, they all play their part in supporting the life of the organism. And in man and many other animals, there are non-cellular materials, such as collagen which forms fibres and is a main constituent of bone, in addition to cells.

The cells of the body are of two main types: those which divide and replace themselves during the lifetime of a person, or animal, and those which do not.

For instance, we are born with a certain number of brain cells which do not divide as, say, the cells of our skin do. Lost brain cells therefore cannot be replaced.

It may be that ageing is due to changes in the cells that divide to replace themselves—changes caused by the natural background of radiation to which we are always exposed, or by other events that take place in cells. The cell descendants in the body of an old person therefore may not be as good as those he had when he was young.

On the other hand, it may be that ageing is due to the loss of or damage to those cells which cannot divide to replace themselves.

Another cause may be a decline in the efficiency of the non-cellular parts of the body—collagen and intercellular substances.

If a population of animals is permitted to live for its normal life span, the age at which each individual dies can be plotted on a graph to give a "survival curve." The downward slant of this survival curve then shows the increasing probability of dying with age for that particular population of animals.

When the science of gerontology was founded, only three full survival curves were available. These were for man, the white rat and the laboratory mouse.

By his efforts over the past 10 years, Dr. Comfort has supplemented these with records on race horses, dogs, small fish and some zoo animals.

Underfeeding

A key discovery about the ageing process is that underfeeding can lengthen life in some creatures. More than 30 years ago, Clive M. McCay of Cornell University in the United States of America found that the life span of rats could be increased in this way.

Dr. Comfort explains: "Optimal intake of food for growth is not the optimal for longevity." Rats which receive a diet adequate in all but calories can be kept immature and strikingly free of the diseases which affect their full-fed litter mates. After restriction in this way for periods of up to 1,000 days, the survivors are able to resume growth, mature sexually and live, in all, substantially longer than their fellows. Restrictive feeding of mice has given similar results.

"It is still not possible, though, to relate these findings clearly to the causes of ageing in rodents."

Process Delayed

Although ageing research is necessarily done on animals, Dr. Comfort emphasizes that "the real motive of age studies is to control in human beings the changes due to ageing.

"But understanding and control are very different things, and the medical relevance of understanding the age process will depend upon what we understand it to be.

"It may turn out that the age process can be delayed medically without too much difficulty: alternatively, it may be more or less beyond medical control."

What are the social implications of success in the control of ageing?

Dr. Comfort's view: "It would depend on how great any increase was but I think it would be unprofitable to speculate at the moment on how much gain we could produce."

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

Red Brothers and Keepers

AMONG the treasures of life I count the memory of two old friends of my parents. They were members of that paradoxical company of theoretical bloody revolutionaries who were brought close to tears by injury to anyone, even complete strangers. They are gone now and their legacy to me is an image of graciousness and kindliness.

Stott

At one stage in the husband's working life he took a job as lightkeeper on a remote rock off the British Columbia coast. It was so stormbound that the arrival of supplies by boat occasionally became a hit-or-miss proposition.

To guard against food shortage, the wife once harvested a large supply of seagull eggs and put them down in waterglass—a practice which, I believe, is strictly against man-made legislation but completely in accord with the law of survival.

To the lighthouse came a storm-tossed and disabled boat with an Indian crew. As a matter of custom, virtually a matter of right, the Indians came up to the lightkeeper's quarters fully expecting to be fed and sheltered until their boat could be repaired and the weather improved. The door opened wide for them.

Rations ran low and the lady of the light had to move into the storage section of the building to open the waterglassed crocks of gull eggs. She had not known, up to that point, that the eggs were delicacies to the particular Indians who had come to the island. They satisfied their hunger on the eggs and kept eating for enjoyment until the last shell was cracked.

* * *

The lighthouse couple was slightly dismayed but not surprised when the emergency supplies were gone. They had come to expect this as a part of Indian procedure that is not greediness, is not an imposition, is not an action which demands gratitude, but is a simple matter of assuming the right to share food when food is available. As the couple told it to us, they would have been welcome to eat up the Indians' supplies if the situation had been reversed.

We found this attitude a little difficult to accept on the basis of conventions to which we are accustomed. You don't, in circumstances with which we are familiar, eat on your host until the cupboard is bare. The lightkeeper and his wife explained to us that you do if that's what you're accustomed to. If you have been brought up in the idea of absolute sharing, you can eat as long as the food lasts.

I remembered the incident, or the story of it, while E. R. McEwen, executive director of the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada, was telling me yesterday the difficulties of bridging the one society with the other in the native-white integration process that modern conditions are forcing.

He cited the case of a gentleman now living in Ottawa. The gentleman is an Indian who has behind him distinguished work at university and is now an engineer of international repute. He lives in the style and manner of well-to-do white people in one of the more attractive homes of a select Ottawa neighborhood.

* * *

Occasionally an Indian, sometimes with a family, will emerge from the bush and move in on the engineer—assuming that because they are both Indians it is the responsibility of one to look after the other. The Indian from the bush would extend hospitality to the engineer if the engineer showed up at the remote wigwam. Only it's better in Ottawa. The engineer is well-heeled, the food supply abundant and the quarters comfortable. The bush Indian, given the opportunity, could live out his life in the city man's home and never know physical want.

So it becomes the delicate task of the engineer to convince the red brother from the bush that the business of living in Ottawa requires rules somewhat different to those that apply in the wilderness. They're white man's rules, and if you join a white man's community you are expected to observe them.

That means you don't squat in somebody's urban home until the food is all eaten, and that it isn't necessarily up to the Indian who has adopted white man's ways successfully to provide indefinitely for less urbanized natives who visit. A visit's a visit. It's not superannuation in a rest home.

Carrying that conviction to the uninvited guest is difficult, on occasions, but the Indians are learning, says Mr. McEwen. Those with sustained contact with what we call our civilization do not move in on other natives, who have, by our standards, made a success of making a living.

But there is a point for nice philosophical argument here. Whose convention is the better? Who comes closer to the ideal of brotherhood?

Mr. McEwen doesn't say. He does note, however, that there are practical considerations in the transition of the wilderness native to the status of Indian urban dweller.

THE GALLUP POLL

The Public and the CBC

(By the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion)

Fifteen years of CBC programming has left the public, on balance, with much the same reaction towards the quality of its work. Checking today, with opinions recorded in 1949, shows that while one in twenty more now labels CBC's job as "good"—another one in twenty more rate it as "poor."

The one change of significance is that those with no opinion on the matter have dwindled from a 15% level to today's 6% ratio.

The question: "Generally speaking, do you think the CBC is doing a good job or a poor job?"

National reaction today compared to the earlier study shows these changes:

	1949	Today
Good job	45%	50%
Poor job	16	21
Fair job	24	23
Undecided	15	6

Highest criticism of the CBC comes from the West where 27 per cent say the corporation is doing a poor job and 35% a good job. Greatest approval is found in Quebec—65%.

The Maritimes and Ontario follow the national thinking. About half the people in each province rate the CBC as doing a good job.

	Quebec	Ontario	West
Good job	65%	51%	35%
Poor job	17	21	27
Fair job	13	21	33
Undecided	5	7	5

PICASSO BIOGRAPHY NO EULOGY

By WAVERLEY ROOT

(The Washington Post)

A French court has ruled that a biography cannot be a eulogy—especially if it's a biography of Pablo Picasso.

This was the verdict handed down by the Referees Tribunal of the Seine, which had been asked by Picasso to order the seizure of the French version of "Life With Picasso," by American art critic Carlton Lake and Francoise Gilot.

Francoise Gilot, a painter herself, was Picasso's mistress for 10 years, and is the mother of two of his children.

Picasso had also tried unsuccessfully to have the weekly "Match" seized, because it printed extracts from the book.

"It is true," the referees' verdict says, "that the work contains certain anecdotes which show Picasso as complacent about himself, indifferent to others, too self-satisfied with his own worth, insufficiently detached about money matters, sometimes malicious and unjust to his colleagues, hard and without indulgence for his family and friends. These passages — whether the facts they contain are true or false—constitute in any case indisputable indiscretions and regrettable implications.

"However, a biography cannot be a panegyric. Moreover, other passages of the book, more important ones, witness to a sincere admiration for the artist and the man. Hence, we do not find ourselves faced by a work of systematic denigration or one which seeks a scandalous effect for reasons of publicity.

"Finally, if a too bright, partially distorting, light shed upon his person may be intolerable for the average man, it should be more tolerable for a famous artist who has never shied away from publicity and whose physical appearance, if not his moral self, has been offered without reticence to the eyes of the public."

YOUNG GYMNASTS from Sardis Secondary School, Sardis, B.C., are among the several groups that will contribute to a colorful spectacular entertainment at Memorial Arena, May 1. Bands, precision squads, Highland dancers, a glee club and drill teams from Vancouver, Abbotsford, Chilliwack, Mission, Alberni, Nanaimo and Duncan will combine in B.C.'s fourth annual Junior Tattoo. A thrilling show for the whole family, there will be two performances, at 2 and 8 p.m.

'Witch Boy' Role Lures Gifted Actor

One of British Columbia's most talented actors will be featured in Bastion Theatre's next production at McPherson Playhouse.

Blain Fairman is cast as the Witch Boy who falls in love with Barbara Allen in Dark of the Moon, opening May 4 and playing through May 8.

Mr. Fairman, who is production manager and announcer for a local radio station, was born in Winnipeg in 1942 and spent most of his early life in the Yukon and Northern B.C.

These years were marked by many colorful experiences. He worked as a deckhand when the Klondike, only remaining paddle-wheeler, was operating as a summer tourist attraction between Whitehorse and Dawson City.

He has hitch-hiked the entire length of the Alaska Highway many times and had such hair-raising experiences as encounters with grizzlies and being passenger in a runaway truck loaded with two tons of airplane parts.

IN KAMLOOPS

His first drama award was for diction. He took part in several school and adult drama festivals in Fort St. John, Drumheller, Edmonton and Prince George before going to Kamloops, where he worked in television and became associated with the North Kamloops PTA Theatre Wing and Tom Kerr.

Under Mr. Kerr's direction, he won two top awards for an actor in this province: best actor in the B.C. finals of the one-act festivals, and best actor in the Dominion Drama Festival B.C. regional winner, A Taste of Honey.

While taking part in the University of B.C.'s production of Everyman, he was selected by Dr. John Reich for a scholarship to Goodman Memorial School in Chicago.

McPHERSON SPECIAL

Versatile Program For Choral Concert

It will be the first appearance in Victoria for the 110-voice Salt Lake Symphonic Choir when it comes to the McPherson Playhouse, Monday.

But the group has toured the Pacific Northwest every three years and wherever it has sung; its return engagements have been keenly anticipated.

Directed by Armont Willardsen, regarded in the western United States as a most capable choral specialist, the choir is versatile in its capabilities and has an extensive repertoire.

For its Victoria concert Mr. Willardsen has selected a program ranging from religious selections to the music of Broadway.

Representative of the program are such items as Hosanna to the Son of David by Orlando Gibbons and Prayer by Kountz; Choose Something Like a Star by Randall Thomson, Ain't Got Time to Die by Hall Johnson, Waters Ripple and Flow by Deems Taylor, and selections from My Fair Lady.

The McPherson Playhouse, which is presenting the concert, announces that, one hour before the concert time of 8:30, Senior Citizens, students and children may purchase any unsold tickets for $1.

NORTH BREEZES

Community ventures such as McPherson Theatre are seldom money-makers and should perhaps be looked upon as legitimate civic expenditures akin to parks and playgrounds.

Nelson civic centre lets its ushering be done by a community organization at a substantial saving. The organization obtains a small, steady income. The volunteer ushers enjoy the show free. Who would make a smarter usher than a well turned out Boy Scout or Girl Guide?

Eight Festival Adjudicators Come to Town

The important part that well-qualified, experienced adjudicators play in a festival cannot be overstated.

They provide the objectivity, the yardstick, the challenge.

They reinforce the good teacher's precepts and stimulate the adult performer's mental attitude, even to the point of shaking up his most cherished preconceptions.

Greater Victoria Music Festival does the community a notable service in this respect alone, by providing as judges a panel of men and women who are specialists in their various fields.

When the Music Festival opens Monday and throughout the ensuing two weeks, a total of eight adjudicators from London, England, Ontario, Washington State and Vancouver will preside at the various sessions.

Adjudicating the more than 400 pianists and the organ competitors will be British Angus Morrison.

Mr. Morrison, besides being on the teaching staff of the Royal College of Music to which he was elected a Fellow in 1954, makes many concert stage appearances abroad; in the last few years having played in France, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Norway and Sweden.

Also from London is Philip Hattey, who is to adjudicate vocal solo and all choral sessions during the first week.

Mr. Hattey studied for seven years at the Royal Academy of Music where he gained the highest awards in singing, pianoforte and aural training.

He is now on the staff of the Royal Academy and University of Reading.

Randall Spicer brings the accumulated experience of 17 years as director of high school bands to his task of judging school band and instrumental classes.

He and Alfred Boyington, adjudicator for stringed instrument classes, both come from Washington State University at Pullman, Wash.

Folk dance adjudicator Rose Hill comes to Victoria from McMaster University in Hamilton, Ont., where she is instructor in women's athletics.

Dorothy Davies, well known on the mainland and in Victoria as a fine actress and speech art specialist, will preside over the large speech arts entry.

When the schools' section of the Music Festival opens Monday, May 3, Ralph Manzo, director of choral activities at Washington State College, will be on hand to comment on and grade choral entries.

Only two members of the panel of eight are "repeaters" at the Victoria Festival; Mr. Morrison, who was here a few years ago, and Edgar Schuss, who will again judge piano accordion classes—a duty he performed last year with great success.

Theatre Guild Play Challenge for Cast

The tender story of the foundling who is left on the threshold of a Spanish Dominican convent of cloistered nuns and how the child, as it grows, affects all the lives within the convent walls, will be portrayed by a Victoria Theatre Guild cast, when Cradle Song is presented May 1 to 8.

The play calls for sensitive directing and acting. It challenges the predominantly female cast to strive for every means of contrast and shade of feeling. And it is a stage and lighting designer's joy.

Much of the writing is lyrical in its beauty and there is whimsical humor as well as moving drama in the play's "checkered light and shade."

Jim Dulmage is the director and also plays the doctor, one of the cast's only three men.

YOUNG ANDERSON IN PICTURE

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Michael Anderson Jr., 21-year-old son of the famed director, will be seen in "The Sons of Katie Elder."

Antigone Fills Playhouse

A group of teen-age actors portraying a modern, profoundly philosophical and abstracted version of an ancient Greek tragedy, accomplished on Friday night what only one or two mass appeal shows have been able to do at the McPherson Playhouse.

They filled it to capacity.

The play was Antigone, the Jean Anouihl adaptation; the company, Brentwood College Drama Club, director Gil Bunch, head of the college's English department.

Having seen and already reviewed the play when it was first produced at Mill Bay, my specific interest on this occasion was in observing the effect of its translation from the open stage in the big reverberating hall to the conventional proscenium stage.

Anyone who has worked in both types of theatre knows that there are many more subtle differences than appear at a glance.

For one thing, the proscenium imposes a division between actors and audience that does not exist in the open or arena theatre, and which the actors must be able to bridge.

To begin with, I must say frankly that I do not think the translation was an unqualified success.

I found the production more impressive in its original presentation.

Mr. Bunch's imaginative, many levelled set adapted beautifully to the confines of the McPherson stage, but the potentially interesting design for lighting was still unsatisfactory in execution.

Admiration for the director's artistic skill in picturization, in his use of the levels and in his telling economy of movement, is undiminished.

And I do not alter a word I have said in praise of the sincerity and concentration of the young actors.

Where the performance suffered most was in areas of rhythm, pace, vocal level and diction. Its slowness on this occasion destroyed the flowing and mounting phrases of the scenes that were clearly Mr. Bunch's concept if one is to judge by his stage design and blocking.

The cast had a tendency to overdo emotional pauses and hesitations to a far more noticeable extent than previously. This especially fragmented the climax when the messenger is describing the death scene in the tomb.

The ambitious undertaking, nevertheless, still stands as an immensely interesting and unique student achievement.

REP COMPANY TO PERFORM IN CATHEDRAL

The Bishop's Company of Burbank, Calif., will present Christopher Fry's play, The Boy with a Cart at Christ Church Cathedral on May 1.

In its 12th year of touring from coast to coast, the Bishop's Company is inter-racial and inter-faith. Founded in 1952, it has toured over a million miles, playing in churches in all of the 50 states and Canada.

There will be no admission charge for the cathedral performance, but a collection will be taken in aid of the State Trumpet Fund.

Music School Names Bursary Winners

One of the important new organizations in the city which is making steady and valuable progress, is the Victoria School of Music.

Among many recent developments is the formation of a student orchestra under supervision of Jean Angers, the purpose of which is to provide pre-orchestra training.

Also recently, auditions were held for instrumental players of all ages to select six recipients for School of Music scholarships and bursaries.

Topping the list of winners was pianist Marilyn McArthur, 21-year-old wife and mother of two.

At the 1964 Victoria Music Festival, Mrs. McArthur was awarded the City Medallion in the piano championship class and this year she has been invited to be a guest artist at the Festival Highlights concert next Friday evening at McPherson Playhouse.

Other winners were violinists Jocelyn Abbott, age 10; Juliette de Goutiere, 11; cellists Susan Curry, 12 and Anne Valdal, 18, and pianist Claire Wilson, 9.

An announcement of importance to parents of young children who are destined for any kind of musical training or dancing, concerns a series of classes in rhythm for children.

Mrs. Ivy Screech will be conducting the classes at the school every Tuesday afternoon during May and June, starting May 4.

Mrs. Screech will take small groups of about 12 in four and five, five and six, and six and seven age groups.

Classes will run approximately a half-hour to an hour each from 2 to 5 p.m.

Mrs. Screech, who trains rhythm bands at St. Margaret's School and has taught the Patterson children among others, bases her approach to rhythmic training on certain aspects of the famed Karl Orff method.

The regular school term will end in June but there are summer plans which include another conductors' course under Otto-Werner Mueller and the bringing of Reginald Godden, well known Bach exponent from the Royal Conservatory of Music, to give three recitals, July 25, 28 and 30.

Concert Orchestra Makes Public Bow

An organization which will be new to most Victorians but which has been operating for some time under the sponsorship of School District 63 night school program, will make its public debut, Thursday evening.

The Peninsula Concert Orchestra is under direction of Derek MacDermot, who has arranged a program of five orchestral items of a 'pop' nature.

A highlight will be Von Suppe's Poet and Peasant Overture in which leading cellist of the Victoria Symphony, Hans Siegrist, will play the solo cello part.

Other numbers are Bach, Chorale and Bouree, Handel, Concerto Grosso Minuet, Boildieu, Caliph of Baghdad Overture, and excerpts from Gilbert and Sullivan's Pirates of Penzance.

Assisting will be the Metchosin Community Singers, also under the direction of Mr. MacDermot.

This ensemble will include folk songs and HMS Pinafore selections among its numbers. It will be accompanied by Paul Bachhous.

The concert takes place at Claremont Secondary School and begins at 8.

For Metchosin residents who wish to attend, free bus transportation has been arranged, leaving St. Mary's Church at 6:45.

Admission at the door will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

Barclay Singers In Recital

An interesting concert is planned by the Vera Barclay Singers for May 11 in Victoria Art Gallery.

On this occasion the ensemble will have as its guests two third-year University of B.C. music majors, Martin Chambers of Victoria, basso, and Joseph Berarducci of Revelstoke, pianist.

The program will include ensemble as well as solo groups. Conductor is Mrs. Vera Barclay.

Books ★ Art ★ Hobbies

WIDELY KNOWN AUTHOR, Agnes Newton Keith, left, found a volume of special interest when she dropped into the School of Music this week for a preview of the big collection which goes on sale at fractional prices, Friday. With her is Mrs. Gordon Grant of the school's women's committee. Mrs. Keith, author of Land Below the Wind, among other books, is now finishing the drawings for her new book which deals with Libya where she and her husband lived for nine years.

Bargain Sale of Books To Aid Scholarship Fund

Book lovers of all ages and kinds, from the mystery addict to the collector and scholar will have a field day next Friday and Saturday.

Those are the two days—Saturday is for children—when hundreds of books of every description will go on sale at the Victoria School of Music, 615 Pandora Avenue.

The tremendous range of titles includes paperbacks and handsomely-bound special editions as well as regular hard cover editions.

Weeks of work on the part of the Women's Committee of the school has resulted in this amazing collection, each one of which has been bargain priced and labeled so that anyone can see at a glance the cost of his chosen volume.

The books are professoinally and attractively arranged on library-type stacks down the length of the school's auditorium.

For the discophile, there is also an interesting collection of old 78 r.p.m. recordings which will go on sale Friday.

The sale opens Friday at 10 a.m. and will continue until 9 p.m. or such time as the stock is sold out. Saturday's sale, for children only, will continue from 9 in the morning to 3 p.m.

For best selection on either day, "come early" is the obvious rule. The School of Music is situated directly opposite the McPherson Playhouse.

Proceeds of the sale will go to the school's scholarship fund.

Collectors' Items For Battle Buffs

GREAT MILITARY BATTLES, Cyril Falls, Editor (303 pp).

GREAT SEA BATTLES, Oliver Warner (303 pp), Collier-Macmillan ($29.95 each).

Reviewed by R. H. ROY
Dept. of History, University of Victoria

Two magnificently illustrated volumes have recently been published by Collier-Macmillan. The set is expensive, but these prestige books would make a handsome gift—singly or together—to many interested in the history of warfare on land or on the sea.

Each volume is complete in itself, and each contains a lavish collection (both in color and black and white) of pictures, photographs, sketches, maps, diagrams and battle plans which support the text while being a study in themselves.

As an example of the publisher's art, both volumes are excellent. But they are more than that—they contain accurate and vivid accounts of the major battles which have affected the course of world history.

Oliver Warner, the author of Great Sea Battles, begins with the Battle of Lepanto (1571) and ends with the Battle of the Leyte Gulf in 1944.

Each account, whether it is Trafalgar or Jutland, is accompanied by battle plans, sketches of weapons used, reproductions of oil painting of the engagement, and so forth.

Since each page is 12½ by 11 inches, details which might normally be lost in smaller books are easily perused.

Great Military Battles is only slightly different in format. Falls, like Warner, is a recognized expert in his field, but in this volume each battle is written by a different author. Beginning with the great battle of Rocroi in 1643, and going through Blenheim, Quebec, Yorktown, Waterloo, Alamein and the Ardennes to name a few, each account is accompanied by pictures, diagrams and charts similar to those in the sea volume.

The military book has several additional sections on the development of fortifications, of uniforms, of tactics, of artillery and of small arms, each in turn illustrated with drawings accompanying the text.

Both volumes are aimed at a fairly wide reading public. Both are well written, uncluttered with footnotes and readily understandable to the layman. Both will provide hours of good reading to the military buffs especially, perhaps; and each will be treasured as exceptionally fine books in their field in anyone's library.

Charming Book Evokes Spell Of Outdoors

JONAH'S DREAM: A MEDITATION ON FISHING by Sven Berlin. J. M. Dent & Sons (Canada) Ltd., 119 pp., illustrated, $5.25.

Reviewed by S. W. Jackman
University of Victoria

Fishing is a form of religion as well as a sport. It has its canonical literature, its Moses in Isaak Walton, its votaries all over the world, in all times and in all seasons. Hence, for a fishing book to have a biblical motif is not at all surprising.

To the author "Fishing . . . is not only a matter of meditation, of peaceful moments . . . It is also a dream of pre-history . . . It is to . . . the Spirit that moves upon the face of the waters . . ." that he presents his offering.

This book is beautifully written with a graceful style that somehow manages to evoke the outside world while one is inside sitting cozily by the fire reading about it.

A number of fishing adventures are recounted but all leading to the tale of the catching of a great pike. The great pike becomes the symbol of all fishing and the final capture of this pike becomes the answer to the ultimate questions of life.

The pike is caught but once caught is released for the endeavour is more then the prize.

For the true fisherman—the artist, the lover of the outdoors and the theologian—this book has vast charm. It will not tell one how to catch a single fish, it will not explain the motives for catching a fish, it will not even tell a coherent story but the spirit of fishing is there.

It is a delightful book, a book to be picked up time and again for each re-reading wakes once again the mystique of man, water and the elusive fish.

Sound Analysis Of Wavell's Role

WAVELL, SCHOLAR AND SOLDIER, by John Connell. Collins, 1965. 574 pp. Index. Illustrated. Maps. $9.75.

Reviewed by R. H. Roy

Despite the implications of the title, this is not a biography of Field-Marshal Lord Wavell. Rather it is the story of his life up to the time when he turned over his command of the Middle East in the summer of 1941 to become Commander-in-Chief of the forces in India.

Wavell, like many of his contemporaries in high command during the war, came from a military family. He served in the latter stages of the South African War, learned much from the stupidity of British generalship in the trenches in France, was appointed a liaison officer in Russia until 1917, and served under Allenby during the Palestine campaign in 1917-1918.

After a series of staff and field positions in the inter-war years, he was appointed General Officer Commanding-in-Chief Middle East in 1939.

For the next two years Wavell had a truly imperial command, and the bulk of Mr. Connell's book deals with his problems and how he dealt with them. His was an unenviable position.

After Dunkirk and before Russia entered the war, the enemy turned his attention to the Balkans and the Near East.

Although he scored an initial major victory over the Italians, Wavell's difficulties mounted steadily. Ethiopia, Somaliland, Greece, Crete, Syria, Iraq, and the Western Desert all made desperate demands on his forces.

Connell intimates that Churchill's constant prodding and interference, together with the prime minister's personal dislike for Wavell, had much to do with his transfer to India. The reader may judge for himself.

Certainly in this well written and thoroughly documented analysis of the Middle East theatre, Wavell emerges as a good strategist who fell victim to the consequences of Allied unpreparedness in the 1930's.

LOOKING AROUND AT ART By ROBIN SKELTON

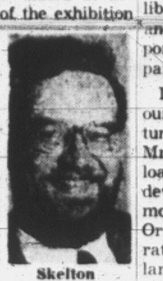
Too Much Orient, Too Little Canada?

By ROBIN SKELTON



Skelton

While it is undoubtedly true, as Colin Graham stated at the official opening of the exhibition of works from the Fred and Isabel Pollard Collection, that every art gallery must indulge in some degree of specialization, it is also true that an art gallery owes a duty to living painters, and especially to painters living in the community which it serves.

The Fred and Isabel Pollard Collection, we are told, forms the "core of the gallery's general Oriental collection, and has been chiefly responsible for the fact that the latter has recently been ranked among the siginificant public collections on this continent.".

Certainly the items now on view in Victoria Art Gallery are enormously pleasing and fascinating.

There are some superb color woodcuts by Hiroshige, a subtle Ceramic Plaque by Kitaoji Rosanjin, a charming woodcut by Koryusai of a young boy holding a mouse, and a supremely graceful Kitagawa Utamuro woodcut of a lady composed in a series of beautifully related curves.

The series of anonymous brush drawings, which have been given appropriately lighthearted titles—What a Stink, In One Hand a Pickle, Pouring Tea Into a Lunch Box—are worth a visit by themselves; they are absolutely delightful and beautifully made.

MUSEUM PIECES

It is when I turn to some of the other objects on display that I begin to have doubts. The objects themselves are interesting of their kind, and the majority have sufficient aesthetic, as distinct from historical, appeal to justify their presence, but one or two seem to me to belong in a museum of Oriental artefacts, not in a civic art gallery.

I feel this, not because I dislike Oriental collections, but because I believe that Canadian culture can only improve, or indeed survive, if art galleries support it.

The work of Canadian painters should, I feel, be the first specialty of all Canadian galleries at this time.

Moreover, if Canadian artists are to continue to work in Canada without becoming intolerably frustrated, galleries must provide them with exhibitions that keep them in touch with the work their contemporaries are doing in other parts of the world.

Unless galleries perform this duty our painters will leave us (as many have left us) for other countries and for cities more liberally endowed with paintings and with people devoted to supporting and furthering new departures in the arts.

I feel, therefore, that, while our gallery is miraculously fortunate to be the recipient of Mrs. Pollard's many superb loans and gifts, it should not devote too much additional money of its own to purchasing Oriental material, but should rather feel freed by Mrs. Pollard's generosity in the one field, to concentrate its own funds upon building up others.

I would not make this point so firmly had I not got a clear recollection in my mind of the paucity of the gallery's holdings in contemporary Canadian work as compared with its Oriental holdings.

I would like to know how much money has been spent on work by living painters during the past year, and how much upon material more appropriate to an Oriental museum.

I do not think the gallery has an adequate collection of work by our local painters, much less of work by other Canadians.

I have not yet seen in our gallery any one-man shows of work by any of the many talented painters of Washington or Oregon States.

I have seen more forward-looking small exhibitions of work from Vancouver at the Provincial Library than I have seen in our Art Gallery.

I am fully aware that Colin Graham has a hard row to hoe, and that he has done many excellent services to our community.

I may be accused even of biting the hand that has fed me in making these criticisms, for without the co-operation of the Art Gallery the University of Victoria's recent, and now internationally recognized, Yeats Festival could not have taken taken place.

Nevertheless, I feel that I must make these comments if I am not to find myself guilty of far worse sins of omissions than those sins of commission of which I am so frequently and heatedly accused.

The Centenary of Canadian Confederation is shortly to be celebrated, and those of us interested in the arts cannot help asking just how far Canadian culture has developed in those hundred years.

Do we have thriving artistic communities? Can our painters stand comparison with those of other countries?

What is the best current Canadian painting like? What, indeed, have our own British Columbian painters been doing in recent years?

In Victoria, if we rely upon our own Art Gallery for information, these questions must go partly or wholly unanswered.

We can, however, discover a good deal about what happened in 18th century Japan.

Goals and Failures Mark Negro Story

BLACK UTOPIA, Negro Communal Experiments in America, by H. Pease and Jane Pease, Harvest House Ltd. $5. 204 pages with notes, bibliography and index.

Reviewed by Stephanie Stockley

Black Utopia is an account of noble goals and disheartening failures, tells of the Negro in the America of the pre-Civil War era and a century after the Emancipation Proclamation.

It throws light on the contemporary crisis in race relations. During a period between 1830 and 1860, 60,000 Negroes fled the South for the North, and between 20 to 40 thousand, believing Canada to be a haven of refuge, and a place where they could be free, made Canada their goal.

Abolitionists and Negroes came together to form the organized Negro communities in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan. Those in Canada were concentrated in the southwestern part of the present province of Ontario.

One stillborn community was located on Vancouver Island, a refuge for California Negroes after 1850.

The prime motive of most of these settlements was the training by formal academic and vocational education of the Negro to become self-sufficient, or to settle on his own piece of land.

In many ways it was an impressive undertaking, and on the whole the various communities looked to the mental, moral and spiritual improvement of the Negro.

Certainly those Negroes who lived in the various settlements were individually benefitted. They were always better off than they had been under slavery.

But poor leadership, simple incompetence, over-ambition, lack of organization and clarity, as well as outright knavery, often vitiated the efforts.

Above all adjustment of the individual Negro was not the crucial issue. What was crucial, was the adjustment of a minority class in a dominantly white society—this was not achieved.

One by one each of the communities collapsed, including Francis Wright's Nashoba, and the flourishing Port Royal settlement on South Carolina Sea Islands and the many communities in Canada.

Dr. Pease is associate professor of history at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. He received his graduate training at the University of Wisconsin and Rochester. He also taught at the Case Institute of Technology, and was a Fulbright lecturer in Denmark in 1961-1962.

Mrs. Jane H. Pease, a member of the faculty of the Emma Willard School in Troy, New York, received her graduate training at the University of Rochester. She holds a librarian's degree and has been an archivist. In 1961-1962 she also lectured in Denmark and Norway.

Professor and Mrs. Pease are currently studying anti-slavery attitudes.

U.S. VOTING RIGHTS BILL

Attack, Change Southern Strategy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first round of debate on the Johnson administration's voting rights bill has ended with southern strategy taking this form: Attack the measure as unconstitutional and try to change its basic structure through amendment.

North Carolina's senator Sam Ervin, Jr., did both Friday.

The former state supreme court justice introduced 14 amendments, many of them striking at the heart of the bill.

As now written, the legislation would apply automatically to any state or county where:

1. Less than 25 per cent of voting age Negroes are registered.

2. Less than half the adults were registered or voted last November, a literacy or similar voter qualification test was used and more than 20 per cent of the population was non-white.

In these areas, literacy tests would be suspended and federal examiners could be appointed to register voters.

Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina and parts of six other states would be covered.

One of Ervin's amendments would strike out the two automatic coverage formulas entirely and permit the appointment of federal registrars only upon a court finding, in a suit brought by the attorney-general, that a state or county denied the right to vote on account of race or color.

Under another Ervin amendment, a state or county covered by the bill would have 10 days to deny to the attorney-general it engaged in discriminatory practices in connection with the 1961 election.

CHAMBER TOLD

New Museum Open in June

Victoria's new Maritime Museum in the old city court house will be open sometime in June, Chamber of Commerce directors were told Friday.

The museum, now located on Esquimalt Road, will close its doors at the end of this month so that the big transfer of exhibits can be made.

Chamber officials were told it would take about a month to move all the exhibits after which, sometime in June, the new museum will open its doors at 50 cents a head for adults and reduced prices for children.

The chamber was also told that any profits made on the venture would be used to purchase further exhibits for the museum.

Tax Evasion Probe

HALIFAX (CP) — Attorney-General R. A. Donahoe of Nova Scotia says "numerous prosecutions" are expected in connection with gasoline tax evasion in the province. Investigation by the RCMP is "continuing vigorously."

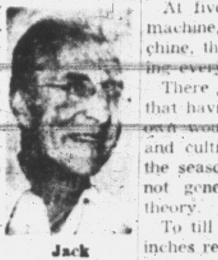
Gardens and Home Building

BEASTALL ADVISES

Spade Work Healthy If Taken Moderately

Few gardeners today experience any real pleasure from turning the soil with a spade.

Admittedly, the art of spading is no longer taught, therefore it is mainly the older gardeners who served apprenticeships, or were instructed by father, who find the work pleasant, interesting and exhilerating.



Jack

Fifteen to 30 minutes a day with a spade or shovel can be healthful and relaxing, providing exercise for most of the heavier body muscles, encouraging deep breathing, and bringing about a tranquil state of mind.

The undesirable effects experienced by many gardeners are the result of tackling too much at one time.

After a six-month winter lay-off it is asking too much of the body to tolerate a full day of digging without complaints.

When the muscles are aching the mind begins searching for an easier method, and sooner or later it is decided that some kind of power-driven machine should be purchased.

As a result, every spring and fall I meet numerous home gardeners seeking advice on the make, model or type of machine which will be the best investment.

In the majority of instances the area to be tilled in a one-lot garden does not qualify for power tools.

One hour's work with a machine and the job is finished. That hardly warrants an investment of nearly $200.

At five dollars for a rented machine, or for a man and machine, the $200 would cover tilling every spring for 40 years.

There is always the feeling that having a machine of one's own would lessen the weeding and cultivation jobs throughout the season, but experience does not generally support this theory.

To till soil to the depth of 12 inches requires a heavier, more powerful machine than is needed to pull a cultivator through loose soil or to till two inches deep through the growing season.

A heavy machine is expensive to operate on light work, while a light cultivator is unable to handle heavy tilling.

Aside from expense there is always the problem of laying out the small garden so that power machines can be operated with ease.

Row spacing between plants has to be three times that needed for hand cultivation, and from three to six feet of unused land must be left for turning at each end of the rows. This seriously reduces the number of plants a given area will take.

Also, the rows must be straight and long if the benefits of a machine are to be realized. Short rows are a nightmare to the machine operator.

One gardener realized this fact when he discovered his machine would cultivate the length of a row in one minute, but, due to space limitations, it took three minutes struggling to turn the machine at the end.

Quite often the solution to cultivation and weeding will be found in the popular hand-operated wheel-hoe which was used so extensively 30 years ago.

These machines were pictured and recommended, in gardening books printed around 1870. After nearly 100 years on the market they are as near to perfection as it is possible to make a hand machine.

Designed to accomplish the maximum of work with the minimum of energy, these machines are light and fully adjustable to suit the build of the operator. When properly adjusted they require less effort than a rake.

Attachments include a six-inch plow, duck-foot cultivator teeth, weed cutting blades, various rakes, rotary discs and ridging tools.

A ten-acre commercial truck (vegetable) garden was operated for 15 years in the Kelowna area by three men with three wheel hoes. Plowing, when necessary, was done by contract.

My suggestion to the home gardener with a small lot who is considering a power machine is to invest $20 in a wheel hoe and attachments and use the $180 difference in price to pay for having the lot tilled for the next 18 years.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. Why should I bother to give fertilizer to daffodils and tulips now that the flowers are pretty well finished? Isn't that rather a waste? I dig mine up each year and put the bonemeal in when I plant in fall.

G.C., Sidney.

A. Bonemeal is a slow acting fertilizer, excellent for putting in with bulbs in fall. It is used by them as soon as roots start active growth in late winter and improves your flowers.

Fertilizer with a complete, balanced analysis as 6-10-10 or 6-8-6 given now aids in new bulb formation in tulips, growth of bulbs in the case of daffodils, and encourages the development of flowers (in embryo) within the bulbs during the ripening period.

This spring fertilizer will be of value to the bulbs only if the leaves are green, upright, and in generally good condition. Therefore it is a good idea to put it around the bulb plants while the flowers are still blooming. Before or during rain is ideal.

THE WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Gladiolus corms and lily bulbs should be planted without any further delay. For garden display, always plant gladioli in groups of one color; they do not look their best in a single row. Lilies need a deep, rich, well-drained soil.

Hardy chrysanthemums for early fall flowering can now be planted out. Be sure to get directions for growing them when you buy.

Continue the planting of shrubs of all kinds while the weather is suitable.

Many perennials can still be lifted for planting. Look for some of the less comomn, but long-lasting and beautiful kinds which will become permanent attractions in your garden.

A batch of cuttings taken from zonal geraniums now will make fine flowering plants by early fall.

Plant out leeks, onions, cabbages, summer cauliflower, broccoli and lettuce—all of which have been previously raised from seed in greenhouse or coldframe.

At the end of the month if ground is warm, sow bush and runner beans.

Catch up on sowings of carrots, spinach, raddish, peas, turnip.

ONE A STRAIGHT FERTILIZER: (LAWN GREEN)

THE OTHER A FERTILIZER-WEED KILLER: (WEED-'N-FEED)

LAWN GREEN—20-10-5 fertilizer. For best results feed your lawn first thing in spring while grass is "Nitrogen-starved". Thickens up turf remarkably. (For rejuvenating a really impoverished lawn try two applications in the spring). Controlled release—one application feeds for 1-2 months or longer. 22 lb. bag covers 5,000 sq. ft.

WEED-'N-FEED—The same remarkable 20-10-5 fertilizer as Lawn Green but containing a weed killer to remove those dandelions and plantains. Apply with a lawn fertilizer spreader when weeds are actively growing. Weeds as it feeds!

NEW ALCAN SIDING
Alcan Siding

1 IT'S DOUBLE GUARANTEED
This is the only siding in Canada with a double-guarantee. Alcan guarantees the quality of the siding...we guarantee the installation. Alcan Siding is government approved—the C.M.H.C. acceptance number is shown on every piece.

2 IMPROVES APPEARANCE
Alcan Siding gives you a new home without moving. Comes in white and all popular colours that keep their new, fresh look for years. It ups re-sale value significantly.

3 COLOURS ARE BAKED ON
All enamels used on Alcan Siding are laboratory tested, then baked on—with their uniformity and thickness electronically controlled. This means beauty that lasts ...and lasts.

4 PROTECTS YOUR HOME
The aluminum in Alcan Siding is chemically treated on both sides, enamelled on the front and lacquered on the back—gives you years of extra service against wind, rain, snow, sun and salt.

5 MADE SPECIFICALLY FOR THE CANADIAN CLIMATE
Makes your home warmer in winter, cooler in summer; special "vent holes" eliminate harmful condensation.

6 SAVES MONEY AND WORRY
With Alcan Siding you can forget constant maintenance and costly re-painting—forget rotting wood, cracking stucco, leaks requiring re-caulking. It cuts fuel bills too.

NOW! a stronger, more luxuriant lawn with GREEN VALLEY PENN-HIGH LAWN GRASS MIXTURE

For a perfect lawn, you need two types of grass seed—one for fine texture, the other for weight and toughness. Green Valley Penn-High Lawn Grass Mixture gives you both in a single package. It's a specially developed mixture of Penn Lawn Fescue and Highland Bent – for lawns that look better and wear harder. Green Valley Penn-High produces a luxuriant dark green grass – with extra heavy turf that gives a soft, cushiony feel. Penn-High makes longer, stronger grass roots, too, helping your lawn withstand excessive heat, cold and moisture. For a lovelier, healthier lawn that invites active family fun, look to Green Valley Penn-High Lawn Grass Mixture.

Many Jobs Simplified With Soldering Iron

If soldering jobs turn up around the house or if you are a hobbyist who likes to tinker with assemble-it-yourself hi-fi components, a soldering iron becomes an important part of your tool collection.

Among the more popular electric irons are the gun-type tools. Such an iron has a pistol grip and a switch located where the trigger ought to be. Pull the trigger and you have heat.

Using such a gun is similar to using any soldering iron. Keep the soldering tip clean and well tinned. Tinning is a process by which you cover the copper tip of any gun or iron with solder.

File the tip clean so that it is free of dirt and oxidation. Then heat and coat with flux. With the flux melted and coating the tip completely, apply solder which will cover the cleaned area. Tinning makes the solder flow more evenly.

With a gun, be certain that the tip is kept tightly fastened. Nuts at the base of the tip should be checked. Never make repairs when it is plugged in.

Before you buy your soldering gun, find out what accessories are available. Almost all of them have interchangeable tips.

One that you will want to add first is the cutting tip. This has a tiny round blade at the end of the two wires and slips into the gun in place of the soldering tip.

With this you can cut just about anything except metal. For example: an irksome job is removing putty. But get that cutting tip hot and it will slice through the dried putty as though it were butter.

It's a handy thing, too, for cutting resilient floor tile or even plastic wall tile. Turn the tile over. Make your mark on the back side and run the cutting tip over it.

A tip with a flat blade that can be applied against a larger surface is a smoothing tip. With it you can mend plastic items, make smooth seams, heat-seal freezer packages. (In the latter capacity, however, keep paper between the tip and the sealing material so that it won't stick.)

One trick in repairing a dent in a furniture surface is to apply a wet cloth, then enough heat to swell the wood fibers so that they swell up and fill the dent. Using an electric iron is cumbersome and not very exact. The soldering iron smoothing tip is far more practical.

Construction Men to Vote

Agreement was reached Friday between 35 contractors and four unions representing 5,000 heavy construction and highway workers.

Details of the agreement were being withheld until voted on by union members throughout the province.

The contract settlement came two weeks after the Heavy Construction Association, representing contractors, requested a government-supervised strike vote among union members.

The four unions—Teamsters, Tunnel and Rock Workers, Construction and General Laborers and Operating Engineers—had sought a wage-and-fringe package amounting to $1.17 an hour over two years.

The association proposed $1.14 over four years and conciliation officer George Carmichael recommended $1.17 over four years.

Present hourly rates range from $2.09 for highway construction laborers to $3.47 for power-shovel operators.

One local project involved in the dispute is the five-mile tunnel being built at Japan Gulch for the Greater Victoria Water District.

Verdict Held In Police Assault Trial

A 19-year-old youth charged with assaulting an Oak Bay policeman was remanded to May 7 for judgment when he appeared in court Friday.

Kenneth Leveridge, 1341 Haultain, pleaded not guilty.

Constable Robert Faith said he stopped a car on Transit Road early on March 20 and removed Leveridge from the front passenger seat.

He said the youth fell on the grass. Const. Faith said Leveridge bit his leg and punched him.

Leveridge testified that he was hazy about the episode and that earlier in the evening he had passed out at a party after drinking.

Magistrate William Ostler said he was puzzled that police had taken Leveridge out of the car. He said he wanted to consider the matter before giving judgment.

STORY OF ISLAND . . . . . . TOLD IN CALIFORNIA

'Fantastic Season Will Unfold'

By JAQUES ROUSSEAUX

Victoria is going to enjoy a 'bang of a tourist season' this year.

The 17 members of the annual British Columbia tourist promotional tour to southern California have just returned to Victoria with reports of overwhelming success.

The area visited during the 10-day trip extended from Santa Monica to San Diego. This is where surveys have shown the greatest number of "moveable" Californians live. Southern California is B.C.'s prime outer provincial tourist market, both in numbers and dollar value spent. Alberta came a close second in 1964.

Reporting on what is now recognized as "probably the most profitable publicity tour ever made" Ron Worley, B.C. Ferries assistant general manager, says that "if the response to the tour is anything like the interest shown to the story and slide presentations in California, we are going to have a fantastic season this year."

The representatives gave 104 talks, appeared on five California television shows and one national network program, radio interviews and newspapers to reach an estimated 4,000,000 people.

Tourists contributed $60 millions to the 1964 total retail sales (rock bottom figures) of $133,140,000 in Greater Victoria.

Mr. Worley says that the tour was strictly a Vancouver Island promotion.

"The interest was fantastic in our scenery, type of weather, attractions, water ways and the entire vacation land," Mr. Worley says.

At a Disney Land meeting, Walt Disney suggested Vancouver Island should enter in a mutual promotional agreement with southern California, Mr. Worley says.

Under the arrangement, "we would attract the Americans here to our cool green summers while our people would be interested to go south in the winter," Mr. Worley says.

Walt Disney also offered to host the B.C. tour next year, Mr. Worley says.

Speaking engagements would be arranged by the Disney people opening many doors so far untouched.

"Let us consider that Disney Land is located in Orange County, the fastest growing area in the fastest growing state of the U.S.," Mr. Worley pointed out.

It could be that next year two tours might have to be run, he said.

Mr. Worley says people don't realize "what tourists mean to us on the Island."

"Everyone of us needs and benefits from tourisst," he says.

Because of tourists, 14,000 people averaging $82 a week are employed in Victoria. Tourist sales pay taxes which give us benefits long after the tourist goes home, Mr. Worley says.

There were 1,863,427 tourists in Greater Victoria last season, "and they swore 1,000,000 oaths to come back," Mr. Worley says.

His advice to the community: "Be nice to the tourist and smile—don't forget to give him his dollar exchange—and show personal interest in him."

Tour Slated

A seat in a Canadian Pacific Airlines jet can lead directly to a ringside seat at Britain's premier livestock shows — the Royal Highland at Ingliston and the Royal Show at Stoneleigh.

Endorsed by the Co-operative Wool Growers and the Canadian Sheep Breeders' Association, the Canadian cattlemen and sheepmen tour offers a unique opportunity to see the best of Britain's livestock and to meet leading authorities in the field.

During the three-week tour, running from June 18 to July 12, visits will include such historic cities as Glasgow, Edinburgh and St. Andrews.

Passenger Traffic Up 30 Per Cent

Cargo traffic on Scandinavian Airlines System routes between North America and Europe increased 42.8 per cent in February over the same month of last year, it was reported today by Bartlett M. Shaw, vice-president-marketing and sales.

The cargo increase for east and westbound traffic from and to Canada also continues to show considerable growth beyond earlier expectations, he said.

The total increase in Canadian passenger traffic was up nearly 30 per cent as compared with February 1964.

Hawaii Boasts Perfect Weather

HONOLULU—Virtually nobody talks about the weather in Hawaii. They accept the sunny, trade wind-cooled, year-around climate as a bonus to vacationing or living in the Pacific Island state.

The U.S. weather bureau says: "Outstanding in Hawaiian climate are:

The remarkable differences in rainfall over adjacent areas; the sunniness of the Leeward lowlands and the persistent cloudiness over mountain peaks nearby; the remarkably equitable temperatures from day to day and season to season; the persistence of trade winds where not disrupted by high mountains; and the rarity of severe storms of any kind.

SEVEN DEGREES

"The extremely equitable temperatures are associated with the small seasonal variation in the amount of energy received from the sun and the tempering effect of the surrounding ocean. The range in normal temperatures between the warmest month, August, and the coolest month, February, averages only seven degrees. Maximums usually are in the high seventies or low eighties, and minimums in the high sixties or low seventies."

What this adds up to is one of the most perfect year-around climates in the world, or as the weather bureau puts it, "the climate of the Hawaiian Islands is unusually pleasant for the tropics."

Honolulu rainfall is from 22 to 24 inches per year, and occurs most frequently at night. Daytime showers are usually light and often occur while the sun continues to shine.

The water temperature at Waikiki and the beach resort areas of Maui, Hawaii and Kauai Islands matches the air temperature. At Waikiki water temperatures vary from 75 degrees in the morning to 77 in the afternoon in March, and 77 in the morning and 82 in the afternoon during August.

Seasons in Hawaii are noted mainly by the type and profusion of flowers. From April through June, many of the flowering trees blossom, including the shower trees, poinciana and African tulip trees. Most flowering plants bloom the year around, although there are exceptions like the night-blooming cereus, which reaches blossom peak in June or July.

Summer temperatures are apt to be much cooler than many areas of the U.S. mainland, seldom going higher than the eighties. As for other seasons, the Hawaii Visitors Bureau's recent ad campaign had the theme, "Spring Spends the Winter in Hawaii."

8 MILE SCENIC TOUR

SIGN OF the future? Some of these signs point out obvious routes but that 8 mile scenic route sign points the way to a brief tour in space for visitors and natives of Kingston, Ont. The sign really has been bent out of position.

Ghosts Only at Massive Briny Mud Puddle

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—Great Salt Lake—largest body of water in the western United States, the lake with the unsinkable swimming, a leading tourist attraction—is fast becoming a briny mud puddle.

It's still true a swimmer can't sink in the lake but today's bathers have trouble finding water deep enough to put it to a test.

Just west of Salt Lake City stands a massive rococo structure. This is Saltair, where millions gathered in the 1920s to bob in the salty waters and dance the Charleston on the boardwalk.

From the highway it looks impressive, if grotesque—candy-striped Victorian spires silhouetted against the desert flatlands.

But there is a chain across the road leading to Saltair. And what it prevents the visitor from approaching is a ghost.

The building is a shell, the boardwalk a mass of rotten wood, the lake some 100 yards from the muddy beach. It's several hundred more yards before the water is above a man's knees.

Only one beach still operates on the lake. And that one is in danger of shutting down because it's a long hike to the water.

This is a big comedown for a body of water that in prehistoric times covered 20,000 square miles—in some places 1,000 feet deep. Lake Bonneville, Great Salt Lake's fresh-water predecessor, stood 850 feet over the present location of Salt Lake City. The city now is 20 miles from the Great Salt Lake.

Geologists say Lake Bonneville faded away because it evaporated faster than precipitation filled it. That's what's wrong with Great Salt Lake today.

The streams that feed the lake are being used more and more for irrigation. Rainfall has been below average the last decade. Evaporation has shrunk the lake to its lowest level since Mormon settlers began keeping track in the 1850s.

As the water level has gone down the salt content has gone up to 27 per cent. This has left a collar of precipitated salt around the shore. Larvae breed in the salt marshes, giving the lake a heady aroma that often repels tourists attracted by the no-sink legend.

"Few visitors to the Salt Lake region care to miss the opportunity of swimming in the lake where one cannot sink," says a pamphlet written in 1949 by history professor David E. Miller and still on sale at Salt Lake City newsstands.

"I have to admit that's not true now," says Miller.

Ruins a Puzzle But Tourists Happy

FORT VICTORIA, Rhodesia (Reuters)—Massive ruins on top of a 350-foot-high hill in Rhodesia are puzzling archeologists—and proving a boon to the tourist trade.

The Zimbabwe ruins, 17 miles southeast of here, go back to ancient times: that much the experts know. But for 80 years they have debated whether they are connected with King Solomon's mines, or perhaps the temple of a sun-worshipping society.

Tourists are able to walk up paved paths and see a maze of stone walls, separate rooms, hide-outs and narrow passages leading to the look-out area at the peak.

From here one has, as the priests or guards must have had thousands of years ago, a commanding view of all the ruins. Straight ahead is the main temple, with its chief design facing the rising sun and the lower toward the southern side.

Behind it, and more toward the left, or northeast, there are more ruins cropping out all over the place. Some of them are on the higher sites surrounding the acropolis, but none is as high as the home of the priests of chieftains.

It is said that every word announced from the high lookout, with a natural wall of solid rock behind it, can be clearly heard in the temple about half a mile away. This immediately conjures up visions of people gathering in the temple every morning at sunrise to pray.

The complete silence in the temple is impressive. But what kind of temple was it? The conical tower is clearly some religious symbol, possibly phallic in origin as is the case in so many early religions, where fertility symbols abound.

Expert Advises Take Children On Europe Trip

What should you do with your young children when you go on your long-dreamed of trip to Europe?

"Take them along" advises leading juvenile authority and travel book editor Margaret Friskey.

"They'll enjoy and appreciate the historical significance of what they see more than you believe," Miss Friskey says.

"European history and geography learned in the schoolroom become so much more meaningful when a young person sees the things about which he's studying.

"But," she warns, "be sure your children are primed with information about the countries you're going to visit. If they are, then the history, geography, government, industry, language, and people will have even more significance."

LOOKS AT SPORTS

George I. Imlach is the noble leader of the vast Toronto Maple Leaf hockey colossus, entrusted with despatching personnel to achieve winning balance at all levels. His decisions supposedly keep teams above sea level at Toronto, Rochester, Tulsa and Victoria.

It is a difficult job.

If Imlach wins with the big club and starves the subsidiaries, he is a full brother to a fink. If he blows the deal at Toronto, all kinds of nice people are eager to carve his hide.

It is enough to lift the hair right off a man's head. Mr. Imlach wears his nude, under a sombrero.

PUNCH IMLACH

There were suggestions this winter that Imlach exercised excessive inconsideration for the Victoria branch office. In watering holes they had a word for Toronto's contribution to the local cause. The word was "sleazy."

The record is interesting. From Denver (alias Victoria) Imlach absconded with Rudy Migay, a leader, and Gary Jarrett, 24 goals.

In their place came bodies named Bill "Cowboy" Flett and Ed Lawson, people nobody ever heard of and who might admit, under pressure, they had not heard of themselves.

Mr. Imlach was reminded periodically by Rudolph Pilous, leader of the Victoria band, of the need for players.

"When we get the big team straightened out, we'll be in a better position to analyze the situation," replied Imlach. When foggier statements are made, Imlach will make them while standing on the bottom of the Pacific Ocean.

If Imlach was prevented from sending players to Victoria, he didn't seem to labor under difficulties when Rochester, the Toronto affiliate in the American League, entered a plea.

Joe Took Those Leafs Like a Man

Joe Crozier, the Rochester genius, an old buddy of Imlach's at Quebec City, already had former National Hockey Leaguers like Bronco Horvath and Gerry Ehman and Ed Litzenberger, Al Arbour and Larry Hillman.

This team could plaster Boston or New York most nights. But to help Rochester from falling into a slump or anything like that, Imlach asked Crozier if he could find room for Don McKenney, Billy Harris and Jim Pappin.

It was a struggle but Crozier faced it like a man.

"Send them," Crozier said. "And we'll carry on somehow."

Mr. Imlach didn't send anybody here, so he did the next best thing. He sent himself. Now six months, one week, three days and two periods after the season began, he lounged in a chair in the Victoria office.

He's smaller than the figure you saw on television, patrolling the bench in Toronto. Offhand he's about the same size as Napoleon in Madame Tussaud's place. They are both waxed, Imlach getting his a week ago by Montreal.

"Victoria needed players," a man said, looking at Imlach.

"We didn't have too many to spread around," he said. "You (Victoria) did well to make the playoffs."

With that he asked quickly how Tulsa did against St. Paul. Not exactly closing the door on the Victoria question, you understand. Told Tulsa had lost, Imlach said, "Well, that's all for Tulsa. They're dead.

"Anybody catch the Rochester score?"

Nobody had. Nobody seemed to care. Except Imlach.

Declaration of Allegiance Wanted

He put in a personal call to Crozier. Joe wasn't home but Mrs. Crozier was. Sure, he'd talk to her.

"How did we do? We win, eh. 2-1. In overtime. How long did it take us to get the goal? Seventeen minutes. Who got it? You're not sure. Ehman or Smrke, eh How was the house? Good. Good. Who scored our first goal? You can't remember. I'll give you some names. Gamble, Horvath, Harris, Pappin . . . what? You think it was Pappin? That's fine. Tell Joe to save me two for Friday. Yeah, I'm leaving' for home tonight (Wednesday)."

The conversation droned on with Imlach grunting happily and even chuckling a little here and there.

Then . . . "alright we'll see you Friday. Tell Joe to make it four for me. I'll bring the kids."

He hung up. He talked about Rochester not playing in 13 days. "They'll pop from here in," he said. "Pop" in his lexicon means "ambush" or "destroy" or "conquer."

Such was his feeling for Rochester, nobody was inclined to bring up the Toronto-Victoria non-relationship. Somebody asked Imlach if he had seen Dave Woodley, the Victoria boy, who is playing for Niagara Falls.

"Can't remember him," Imlach said.

"We heard he had a color-blindness problem," said Ernie Fedoruk of our store. "Made passes to the wrong sweaters."

"Hah," snorted Imlach. "I've got a whole bunch of color-blind guys.

"Against Montreal, last game, we gave them the puck 26 times. In the first period. It was so bad I went in the room and said to them, 'Which side are you on? Declare yourselves'."

Drop Us a Card From Rochester . . .

That's a line Pilous could have used. Upstairs, Pilous was sweating it out. The Leafs hauled the Bucks back from 3-0 to 3-2 but not before they ran out of game.

Later Pilous came into the office, natty in blue suit, blue blue tie, blue mood. "Whaddya expect?" he asked of nobody. "You get 10 minutes skating and 50 minutes nothing from them."

Imlach nodded. "I like Keenan," he said. "He moves well."

"You saw him at half speed," Pilous said. Larry Keenan hasn't cut loose in five games because of a delicate knee.

"You mean he goes twice as good?" Imlach asked incredulously.

"Not twice, maybe, but good," Pilous said. "Very good."

"If he plays like that," Imlach said, "he's a pop to make our club."

Then Mr. Imlach clutched his coat and left.

The Victoria Maple Leafs still have some unfinished business, but the word from Punch was "good luck."

As R. Pilous might say, "Thanks pal . . . and say hello to Rochester."

RON MacLEOD

MacLEOD FACES KERR . . . . . . IN TIM[illegible] OPEN SEMIFINAL

In Ron's Book, Laurie's Favored

By ERNIE FEDORUK

The important thing about the important match, says Ron MacLeod, will be the putter.

The blond belter emphasized putting "will be the big thing" that may determine at least one finalist for this year's Times Vancouver Island Open golf championship.

MacLeod points to the putting blade because of his respect for Laurie Kerr's experience, sweet swing and overall ability. MacLeod, it so happens, is endowed with the same attributes.

MacLeod and Kerr march off Sunday at Gorge Vale in quest of one berth in the May 2 final. On their heels, and searching for the second berth, will come Mt. Brenton professional Norm Boden and Victoria Golf Club champion Doug Munro.

Kerr, MacLeod and Boden are all former champions while Munro is making his first strong bid for the title in the Island's biggest match-play tournament.

The championship semifinals are over 36 holes, as are the handicap matches involving Gorge Vale amateurs Eric Zwick, Mike Ott, Wayne McDonald and Wilbur DeSilva. Rounds of 18 will commence at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Before setting out for a warmup round Friday, MacLeod, 35 last week, said, "it will all boil down to the putting."

Both hit the ball straight. Both play irons with accuracy and confidence. Kerr, only a year older than MacLeod, can't have much of an edge in experience.

So what's left?

Like MacLeod says . . . putting!

MacLeod scoffs at suggestions that he should be favored over Kerr. The suggestions arise from the fact that in his four rounds in this year's renewal he has yet to go over par.

MacLeod was co-medallist with Gorge Vale amateur Dave Fanthorpe with a two-under 71. The Jasper Park Lodge pro also played sub-par golf in subduing John Carlow, Allister Fulton and Roger Ross in subsequent matches.

"Listen now . . ." MacLeod was heard to say, "Laurie can give anybody a lesson on how to play this game. I know Laurie would like me to be the favorite, but I'm going out Sunday with the idea that he's favored!"

DON HEAD

AL MILLAR

Positive-Thinking Leafs Must Make Don Negative

SPORTS

DOUG PEDEN, Sports Editor

Don Head could rack up a new playoff record tonight when Victoria Maple Leafs and Portland Buckaroos continue their Western Hockey League final tonight at Memorial Arena, but the burly Buckaroo netminder says he isn't interested.

The name of the game in playoff hockey is said to be goaltending, which makes it evident that the Leafs will have to find a solution for Head's heroics if they are going to stay in the chase for the Lester Patrick Cup.

And they'll have to find it tonight.

Leafs are trailing 3-1 in the best-of-seven series and if they don't pop at least one or two pucks behind Head, they won't be going back to Portland, where the sixth and seventh games are tentatively scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday.

Head has been the big man for Portland in the current playoffs. He was kept out of the nets in favor of Dave Kelly when the Bucks opened their semifinal series with Vancouver. The Bucks lost. Head came back to anchor Portland to four straight wins, including two shutouts at Vancouver, to lift his club into the final.

Against the Leafs has has won three of four games while allowing eight goals. He now has a goal-against average in the playoffs of 1.625, slightly better than the 1.66 mark chalked up by Seattle's Bev Bentley in the 1959 playoffs.

"I don't care about records," Head said Friday. "I just care about winning."

Rudy's Ready for Portland Trip

Victoria also cares about winning and coach Rudy Pilous is going with a switch in goalies and some positive thinking for tonight's battle.

"We can beat that club," Rudy said. "I've got a feeling about this game. We're going to win it. I'll tell you what kind of a positive thinker I am. I have already bought American money for our trip to Portland Tuesday."

Pilous is also planning to go with his ace in goal. Al Millar, who anchored the Leafs to a great come-from-behind semifinal win over Seattle, is expected to start in the nets.

LOOKED SHARP

Millar has been sidelined by injuries for two games, but was moving well in Friday's practice session.

"Millar looked pretty good," Pilous said, "and he may be able to play. If he can, I think we'll be going back to Portland."

Rudy had no fault to find with the work of Jean Guy Morissette, the little standby goalie who played the last two games, winning in overtime at Portland and losing 3-2 here Wednesday.

"The young man played well for us," Rudy commented, "but Millar is something special when he is right."

MARCETTA DOUBTFUL

Of the other Victoria injured, only Milan Marcetta appears to be a doubtful starter in tonight's must-win battle.

Getting his first action on Victoria ice will be husky defenceman Jack Chipchase, called up from the junior Toronto Marlboros. Ed Ehrenverth will be in action if Marcetta is unable to play.

Leafs also plan to spoil the night for a large contingent of Portland fans, who are hoping to watch their Bucks wrap up the playoff crown.

"It looks as if we can expect about 300 Portland fans," said Victoria manager Buck Houle. "Victoria fans are going to have to be in good voice to drown them out."

But the Leafs know that the best way to keep Portland people quiet is to pop a lot of pucks behind a fellow called Don Head.

Blake Learns Why Habs Stayed Clear of Pilote

CHICAGO (CP)—What do they do for an encore?

That is the question following Thursday night's third game in the best-of-seven final for the Stanley Cup between Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens.

Thursday's 3-1 win was the first for the Hawks who now trail the Montrealers 2-1 in games going into Sunday's fourth contest here.

Discussion at a National Hockey League buffet supper Friday night centred on the wonder drug diomethyl sulfoxide which returned captain Pierre Pilote and rightwinger Kenny Wharram to the Chicago lineup Thursday after they missed the first two games.

The drug, sustained action and assorted fights provided lively conversation pieces.

Fights broke out on two occasions in the third period of Thursday's game. Referee John Ashley called a total of 19 minors in the game plus a misconduct to Montreal's J. C. Tremblay when he tried to continue one fight.

Goalie Gump Worsley of the Canadiens threatened to take on fans behind his net when one Chicago partisan threw a slat from a bench at him. Jim Roberts of Montreal swung his stick at several fans he found bothersome behind the Montreal bench.

Pilote returned to hospital here Friday night where it is expected Dr. Myron Tremaine will administer further treatments with the spray-on pain killer.

The drug, known as DMSO, is a derivative of paper pulp waste and is sprayed on the bruised portion.

GARLIC ODOR

Montreal coach Toe Blake scheduled a full-scale workout this morning.

When it was revealed that the so-called wonder drug used by Pilote and Wharram produces a garlic odor on the breath, he quipped:

"No wonder none of my guys would go near Pilote."

Blake said J. C. Tremblay, Montreal's top defensive player in both series so far, "is playing his best hockey in five years with us."

REAY SATISFIED

But the Montreal coach had no plaudits for another member of his squad.

"(Claude) Larose had five shots and not even one was on the net," Blake told reporters.

Blake said he will use the same lineup he employed in Thursday's game, "as far as I know now."

Chicago coach Billy Reay said he felt Bobby Hull played well so far in the series even though he hasn't been able to score.

"I'm satisfied as long as Hull continues to play as well as he has been," Reay said. "He's had a couple of assists, and he's tying up at least one good offensive forward and two most of the time . . . so that's something."

Bruno Is Toughest Chihawk

CHICAGO (CP) — As National Hockey League opponents have long suspected, there's a member of the Chicago Black Hawks organization who lives on raw meat and is locked in a cage between appearances.

Stan Mikita? Moose Vasko? Bobby Hull?

Well, no. He's a draftee from the Central Professional League named Bruno. And it's highly unlikely that Chicago coach Billy Reay will use him as Jean Beliveau's check when the Hawks meet Montreal Canadiens in the fourth game of the Stanley Cup final here Sunday night.

* * *

Bruno happens to be a four-year-old German shepherd whose assignment is policing Chicago Stadium against some of its more uninhibited customers.

"We've never had to use him yet," says Don Murphy, Hawks' publicist. "Having him on call is enough to discourage the more energetic types."

The Chicago club's spokesman said Bruno's presence adds incentive to the departure of elements inclined to vandalism following the final whistle.

* * *

The stadium had been plagued by petty thievery, committed by patrons hiding in its environs following attractions. These people would then break into concession stands and pay telephones and make off with whatever they could take, Murphy explained.

"You might say we drafted him from the Central Pro League," Murphy said, referring to the fact the stadium received the watchdog from its St. Louis farm club. "I don't know who we gave them in return."

McDonald Stops Mainland Fighter

Hard-hitting Danny McDonald's return to the ring had an explosive touch to it Friday.

The Victoria welterweight made his comeback a successful one by stopping Vancouver's Kalmar Santosi in the first round of the London Boxing Club-sponsored card at the Victoria Ballroom.

Nine other bouts all went the route.

The evening wasn't a complete loss for Santosi. The Vancouver belter received a trophy as the night's "hard-luck loser."

Other awards went to Bob Kacer and Roger Nepper of Nanaimo (best bout); Jindy Johl (best prospect); Rick Tait (most aggressive), and Howard Rabey (best left hand).

Les Vegas of the host club, also fighting in the 147-pound class, lost a decision to Dick Finlay of the Vancouver Firefighters Club in the main event.

60-Pound Class—Bob Pollock (LBC) def. Jerry Budzinski (Nanaimo).

FROM GRID SCENE

Enter Lashuk, Exit Rowland!

(Times News Services)

Football's swinging doors were busy Friday.

At Edmonton, Mike Lashuk walked through the "enter here" wicket. Lashuk, 26, was Edmonton's leading ground gainer in 1962, before he retired.

At Winnipeg, Gordie Rowland waved "au revoir" to Winnipeg Blue Bombers and indicated this is forever.

If it is, the Bombers have some shopping to do for a corner linebacker-punt return operator. Rowland put in 11 seasons, a little man (173 pounds) at a demanding post.

He holds the Canadian record for the longest kickoff return—90 yards against Calgary in 1960. His 31 interceptions represent a Bomber record.

Rowland was a master at the short, onside kick, a natural for him as he used an instep kick from former soccer days. He played centre-half with Montreal Stelco, 1952 Canadian champions. But knee injuries in 1963 and 1964 made him decide to retire at 34.

Rochester Two Up

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Rochester Americans spotted Hershey Bears a goal in the first three minutes, then roared back for an 8-3 victory Friday night to take a 2-0 lead in the American Hockey League's Calder Cup final.

VICETTES TO PRACTICE

Molsons Vicettes senior women's softball team will practice Sunday from 10 a.m. to noon at Central Park. All interested players are invited to attend the session.

'George' Going To Races

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Royal, winner of the $125,000 San Juan Capistrano in March, will run in two rich California races next month.

Co-owners Bob Hall and Ernie Hammond said Friday the B.C.-bred colt wants to run, and they've decided to send him back to the races instead of waiting for Toronto's Woodbine in September.

George Royal will go to Hollywood Park for the $100,000 Californian and the Hollywood Gold Cup, which guarantees, $102,000 to the winner.

The horse already has winnings of more than $160,000. George Royal and Northern Dancer are the only Canadian thoroughbreds to win a stake race for purse money of more than $100,000.

Aaron, Eight Under, On Threshold Again

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Young Tommy Aaron fought his way out of several tough spots Friday to take a two-stroke lead with an eight-under-par 132 at the halfway mark of the $50,000 Texas Open golf tournament.

Aaron has been on the threshold of victory several times in his five-year pro golfing career but has never won a tournament.

He shot his second consecutive 66 to take the lead here.

Bert Weaver, the 10th leading money winner on the tour with $15,640, fired a 68 to go with a first round 66 for second place with 134.

Jacky Cupit, Jack Rule Jr., Dean Refram and Don January were tied for third at 136. January shot a six-under-par 64, the best round of the tournament so far over the par 35-35—70 Oak Hills country club course.

Gardner Dickinson Jr., who led after the first round with a 65, slipped to two-over 72 for a tie with a bunch knotted at 137, including Butch Baird, Bruce Devlin, Charles Sifford, Johnny Pott and Frank Beard.

Italian Flyweight Grabs Pone's Title

ROME (AP)—Salvatore Burruni of Italy, took the world's flyweight boxing crown away from Pone Kingpetch of Thailand Friday night, winning on points in 15 rounds.

Burruni weighed 111½ and Kingpetch 111.

More than 3,000 supporters from Burruni's native Sardinia cheered themselves hoarse as the plucky 32-year-old challenger hammered away, round after round, at the Thai's face and body.

The two boxers, who had never met before Friday morning's weigh-in and refused then to talk to each other, shook hands at mid-ring when the verdict came.

VANCOUVER HAS . . . . . . UNTIL JUNE 30

Arena Deadline Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — A city council committee has given the Pacific National Exhibition until June 30 to come up with a firm plan for a new hockey arena.

If the PNE is unsuccessful by then in attempts to have an arena of National Hockey League specifications built, council would resume efforts to build a downtown coliseum, the committee decided.

Council suspended its downtown coliseum efforts in March to allow the PNE time to come up with concrete plans for an arena at Exhibition Park.

But Alderman Halford Wilson Thursday called for a deadline to prevent the downtown coliseum proposal being shelved indefinitely if the PNE is not able to build a new arena.

City council will likely discuss the deadline proposal next Tuesday.

Earlier this week, PNE president Capt. Harry Terry said a plan for a new PNE arena would likely be ready in about four weeks.

YOUTH AND EXPERIENCE

Experience was looking over shoulder of Grant Clegg today when oldest and youngest active players at Burnside Lawn Bowling Club took part in club's official opening of a new season at Hampton Park green. Taking aim at jack with 14-year-old Grant is Thomas Weekes, still an ardent curler and bowler at 88. Noted city sportsman Archie McKinnon assisted in opening ceremonies. FINAL WEEK

Bowling Tourney At End of Trail

The clock has run down for pin-spillers still hoping for shots at Bowler-of-the-Year titles and cash prizes of $100.

Berths in the Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs on May 9 could only be earned by winning one of the weekly awards in the 28-week Bowler-of-the-Week contest, sponsored by The Daily Times.

The final week ended Friday night, which means that scores of disappointed guys and gals will have to wait until next year.

All that now remains is to compile this week's scores and announce the 28th winners in each of the four divisions—men's and women's fivepins, and men's and women's tenpins.

Awards each week went to bowlers who posted the highest three-game scratch totals during regular league play on southern Vancouver Island Lanes.

When the winners compete in the rolloff on city lanes on May 9, the top bowlers in each division will receive a Times Trophy for permanent possession. Any rolloff winner who is also a subscriber to the Times will also receive a cash prize of $100.

Completing the list for the 27th week is Ida Valleau, who has captured honors in the women's fivepin division for the second year. Mrs. Valleau, who has won several awards for high averages in league play, hit the top with a sparkling 305-231-361—897 series in the Sunday Senior Mixed League at Esquimalt Bowladrome.

Chisox 'Fill-In' Stock Provides Early Power

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chicago White Sox, who applied for a passport to power when they engineered a complicated three-way trade for Johnny Romano, may find the elusive entry visa was presented to them by inexperienced Danny Cater.

A 25-year-old outfielder with less than a full season of major league experience, Cater hit a decisive two-run homer and remained the American League's leading hitter with a .522 average Friday night as the White Sox defeated Washington Senators 5-3.

The White Sox, suffering from a chronic power deficiency, moved to correct the situation last winter by acquiring Romano from Cleveland in the three-way deal that saw Rocky Colavito move from Kansas City to the Indians while the White Sox sent outfielders Mike Hershberger and Jim Landis to the Athletics.

ONE-FOR-ONE

Cater, meanwhile, was acquired in a simple one-for-one deal with Philadelphia Phillies in exchange for pitcher Ray Herbert, figuring to stock the White Sox' depleted outfield.

He had an impressive minor league record but showed little power with the Phillies.

Elsewhere, Minnesota Twins stretched their winning streak to five games by edging Detroit Tigers 8-6 in 10 innings, Cleveland downed Kansas City 6-2 and Baltimore Orioles defeated Boston Red Sox 4-2. Los Angeles Angels and New York Yankees were rained out.

PODRES SHARP

Johnny Podres, taking a cue from Sandy Koufax, has elbowed his way back into Los Angeles Dodgers' strong-arm corps—most fearsome pitching array in the major leagues today.

Podres, who underwent elbow surgery last summer, made his first appearance since last May Friday night and blanked Philadelphia Phillies 4-0 on four hits.

The veteran southpaw's comeback, on the heels of Koufax's second complete-game victory—a four-hit 2-1 decision over New York Mets Thursday night—enabled the Dodgers to stay atop the National League with seven victories in their first nine starts.

The Mets rallied for four runs in the ninth inning and another in the 11th to nip San Francisco Giants 9-8; Houston Astros edged Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 in 12 innings for their first indoor victory and St. Louis Cardinals, paced by Curt Flood, defeated Cincinnati Reds 6-3 in other league games. The Milwaukee Braves-Chicago Cubs' matinee was rained out.

Podres, who had not pitched since last May and had not won since September, 1963, gave the Dodger staff its fifth complete game. Koufax, Don Drysdale, Claude Osteen, Podres and the supporting cast have given up only 12 runs, 10 of them earned, in 71 innings—an ERA of 1.27. They've held the opposition to a .145 batting average.

Victoria Aces Defend League Rifle Crown

Trigger aces from Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association will be starting out Sunday in defence of the title they won last year when the Vancouver Island Shooting League stages its first rifle shoot of the new season.

Gil Carmichael, Ernie Foulser, Ray MacDougall and Garry Williams will make up the "A" squad of the Victoria team in the competition at the Esquimalt Lagoon range of the VFGPA.

Shooting starts at 10 a.m. and snipers will be firing in three sight divisions—telescope, aperature and open. Entrants will be shooting in five classes, according to ability.

The range will open at 8:30 for registration and sighting-in.

Several new contestants are joining the regulars and the meet promises to be largest rifle event in league history.

Rocks Invite Minor Players

Youngsters registered with the Greater Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association have an invitation to attend the opening game of the senior Inter-City League season.

New Westminister and Victoria Shamrocks meet Wednesday in the curtain-raiser at Memorial Arena. Minor players wishing to attend the game are asked to meet at the Arena at 7:30 p.m.

Next week's minor workout schedule (all practices at Stevenson Park unless noted otherwise):

Sunday (9 a.m.)—All juveniles.
Monday (3:15) — Midgets (Hampton Park).
Tuesday (3:15)—Peewees.
Thursday (3:15)—Midgets; (6:30), juveniles.
Saturday (9 a.m.)—Peewees; (10 a.m.), bantams.
Sunday, May 2 (9 a.m.)—Juveniles.

FormerOutboardKing Was Victoria Native

City speedboat fans of an old era were saddened this week to learn of the death last Sunday of Pat Cummins, one of the Pacific Northwest's most famous outboard champions of former years.

Born in Victoria 58 years ago and a graduate of Victoria College, Cummins won four national titles after moving to Seattle. His last U.S. outboard championship was won when he was 50 years of age.

A daring driver who had a trophy case filled with awards, Cummins died in Snohomish, where he had resided for several years.

His last racing appearance in Canada was at Shawnigan Lake, just after the Second World War.

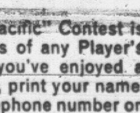
Win a Mustang!
in the big Player's PACIFIC contest
You can't beat the taste of Player's
EVERY PACKAGE FRONT AN ENTRY FORM

What a thrill to win a new Ford Mustang Hardtop. Beautifully styled, spirited and sporty, with the look, the fire and the flavour of a great European road car . . . a hand-made look and feel! Mustang!

World famous racing driver Stirling Moss will select the winning entry. It's easy to enter! Here's how!

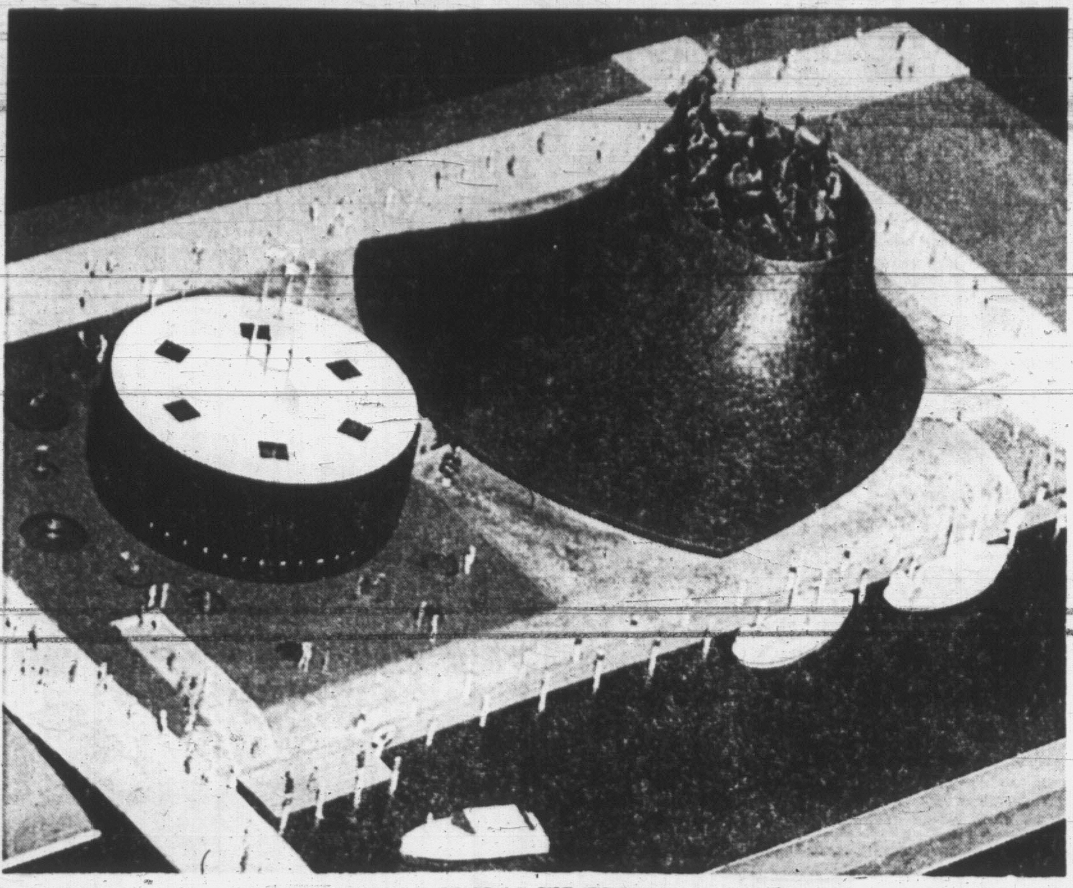


The "Player's Pacific" Contest is open to smokers of any Player's product. After you've enjoyed a pack of Player's, print your name, address and telephone number on the reverse side of the front panel, and send to Player's Pacific Contest, c/o Stirling Moss, Box 200, Vancouver 1, B.C.

Enter often! Every Player's package front gives you another chance to win!

OFFICIAL CONTEST RULES
1. Print your name, address and telephone number on the reverse side of the front panel of any package from any Player's Product and mail it to: Player's Pacific Contest, c/o Stirling Moss Box 200, Vancouver 1, B.C.
2. Enter as often as you wish, but each entry must be mailed in a separate envelope. Entries must be post-marked not later than midnight, May 11th, 1965, and received at Box 200, Vancouver 1, B.C. not later than 12:00 noon, May 12th, 1965.
3. Contest is open to all residents of British Columbia 18 years of age as at April 1st, 1965, except employees of the manufacturers of Player's Cigarettes, their agents, the judging organization and members of their immediate families.
4. The selected entrant, in order to win, must answer correctly a time-limited skill-testing question and complete an affidavit. Selection will be made by Stirling Moss in Vancouver, Wednesday evening, May 12th, 1965.
5. Prize must be accepted as awarded and no substitution will be made. Decision of judges is final.
6. All entries become the property of the manufacturers of Player's Cigarettes who will not enter into any correspondence with contestants but reserve the right to publish the name and address of winner.
7. This contest is subject to all federal, provincial and local regulations.

Player's AND PLEASURE GO TOGETHER



SIX LIVING DOUGLAS FIR TREES will rise 60 feet high to poke their tops through the open roof of this shoe-shaped building that will be the feature of the Western Canada exhibit at Expo '67 in Montreal. Eliptical structure will be finished with rough cedar shakes and will house resource exhibits of B.C., Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Other building, which is undergoing alteration design, will be topped with four pylons emitting flames fed by natural gas, and will be used to display cultural and social characteristics of westerners. The joint display will cost about $900,000. Tenders for two buildings, totalling about 15,000 square feet, will be called about August, a meeting of provincial representatives in Empress Hotel said Friday.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Indecision Blamed On Viet, Budget

By JOHN BELANGER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock exchanges, after zipping to record levels early in the week, relaxed in profit-taking and wound up just about where they started in moderately heavy trading.

Four of the five major indexes calculated hourly by the Toronto Stock Exchange attained highs this week behind strong gains in most sections.

But profit-taking cut into these gains as investors pondered an uneasy international situation and the prospect of a federal budget, Monday.

Trading was moderate and prices advanced on the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges.

Trading in junior and speculative oils relaxed somewhat but was still hectic. Banff Oil, on encouraging news from its exploration site in Northwestern Alberta, was the trigger for most of this section. Banff hit a high of $9.85.

The stock sold as low as $1.30 in January.

BLAME VIET NAM

Seasoned securities analysts blamed the tense Viet Nam situation for most of the market's indecision, saying that things should be better than they are since the economics of Canada and the United States are in excellent shape and most signs indicate a healthy future is in store.

There was no lack of favorable corporate news this week. This is annual report time and firms by the score are reporting record sales and earnings for 1964. Everybody from shoelace makers to the world's largest nickel producer is getting in on the act, and company presidents are outdoing each other in making rosy predictions for 1965.

Reporting higher profits were Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting, Caribbean Cement, Monarch Fine Foods, Canadian Utilties, Canadianwide Properties, Dominion Scottish Investments, John Labatt, Northern Telephone and Northwestern Utilities.

RAISE DIVIDENDS

Additionally, George Weston Ltd. and Imperial Life Assurance increased their dividends.

The usual spate of favorite industrials traded actively. Included were CPR, Abitibi, Canadian Breweries, Massey-Ferguson, Stelco, Brazilian Traction, Falconbridge and Pacific Petroleums.

Banff was ahead $1 to $9.20 and churned up 473,560 shares. Provo gained 16 cents to $2.86 and traded 394,533 shares, while Calvert traded 365,400 shares and rose 2 to 35 cents.

BASE METALS SLIP

Senior base metals were moderately active and slightly lower. Inco fell ⅛ to 95½, Cominco 1⅛ to 45, and Hudson Bay a point to 74. Mattagami Lake declined 1⅛ to 20⅜.

Golds were quiet and a little higher. Dome rose a point to 40¼ and Giant Yellowknife gained ½ to 14⅝.

On index at Toronto, industrials fell .06 to 175.67, the TSE index .04 to 164.95 and base metals .77 to 82.20. Golds rose .51 to 164.61 and western oils 1.54 to 107.64.

Volume at Toronto was 24,210,025 shares compared with 18,871,838 shares traded the previous week.

On index at Montreal, industrials fell .40 to 171.10 and papers .90 to 146.50. Banks rose 1.70 to 132.50 and utilities .60 to 154.90.

PEARSON, EISENHOWER INVITED FOR CEREMONY

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson and former U.S. president Dwight D. Eisenhower have invitations to join top British Columbia officials for ceremonies next month opening construction under the Columbia River Treaty.

Tentative dates are May 19 for a ceremony at the Duncan Lake dam and May 20 for the High Arrow dam near Castlegar, B.C. The main celebration will be at the Arrow project.

Host will be the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, which is responsible for construction of the storage dams under terms of the international agreement.

Representatives of both federal governments will attend along with Hydro officials, Premier W. A. C. Bennett and members of the provincial cabinet.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk is expected to represent President Johnson in the official U.S. party.

The group will leave Vancouver together for Revelstoke to tour the site of the Mica Creek dam, then visit the Duncan and Arrow sites. They will attend a civic banquet at Nelson.

Quarter Sales Up $19.8 Million

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Forest Products reported Friday that sales for the first quarter of 1965 at $19,800,000 are ahead of the same period last year but income of 64 cents a share will be less than in the first quarter of 1964.

T. N. Beaupre, chairman of the board, told the company's annual meeting that a number of things contributed to these results, including unusual snow and temperature conditions which affected woods and sawmill operations in the first three months of the year.

The main reason, he said, was the increased cost of products sold, arising from increased costs of purchasing wood and pulp conversion costs involved in the company's pulp expansion.

The chairman said capital cost of the company's Crofton pulp mill expansion will be about $500,000 to $1,000,000 lower than budgeted but conversion costs are high because of the need to increase and train operating crews, because of production losses incurred in shutdown of equipment and excessive fuel and chemical costs.

The company had net profits of $12,300,000 last year, up 10 per cent from 1963.

Mr. Beaupre said the company expects things to improve for the remainder of this year and "there is substantial basis for anticipating another good year."

Keep Own Pension Plan,

VANCOUVER (CP) — A specialist Friday warned companies not to drop their own pension plans when the Canadian Pension Plan comes into effect next January.

William Read, manager of William Mercer Ltd., specialists in employee benefits, said many companies retire employees at the age of 60 while the Canada plan is not effective until 65..

The Canada plan gave persons earning up to $5,000 a year 25 per cent of their income as a pension.

"Those earning more than $5,000 a year will receive less in relation to their income and this is possibly another reason for individuals to maintain their own pension schemes or review them seriously in light of the Canada Pension Plan."

ISLAND PLANT, UNION SIGN WAGE PACT

Settlement of a wage dispute between the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union and the James Island plant of Canadian Industries Ltd. was reported Friday by the department of labor.

Conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin was able to persuade both parties to agree to a new two-year contract raising hourly rates in two stages by 14 cents for those earning $2.29; 23 cents for those earning up to $2.52, and 29 cents for those earning up to $2.70.

Mediator Continues Digging

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A federal mediator continues digging today for a solution that will avert a steel strike throughout the U.S. May 1.

William E. Simkin is trying to pin down areas of agreements between the union and companies that will enable them to return to the bargaining table on better terms.

The two sides are attempting to reach an interim agreement —one that will extend the strike deadline.

As it stands, the United Steelworkers has demanded wage and benefit increases totalling 17.9 cents an hour. The companies have offered five to seven cents.

In another development, the union's executive board convenes to decide whether it will strike independent steel producers in the event a walkout is called against the 11 major steel companies.

Simkin, director of the federal mediation and conciliation service, worked day and night Friday, shuttling between a half dozen meetings.

The union, in taking a strike-if-necessary stance, said steel industry profits have been climbing at a healthy rate. It argues that steelworkers should receive a larger share. They now average $4.40 an hour.

A basic steel strike would idle some 425,000 workers. The last strike was in 1959 and ran a record 116 days.

One Million Miles Travelled

VANCOUVER (CP)—A self-propelled railway diesel car of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway completed 1,000,000 miles of service Friday on the run between here and Prince George.

The Budd car has been in service since 1956 and has made approximately 850 return trips to Prince George and carried 80,000 passengers.

ASK BENNETT

Vancouver Wants To Buy Utilities

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier Bennett and the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority are to be asked if they are prepared to sell Hydro's power and gas distribution and transit systems to Vancouver.

City council's service committee Thursday asked Mayor William Rathie to pose such a question to the premier and Hydro and ask if they are prepared to negotiate.

The mayor told the committee he doubted if the city would even get an answer.

Sale of the systems was proposed by Alderman Halford Wilson who said the purchase could be financed from profits of power and gas retailing in the Greater Vancouver area. It would be a contingent liability which would liquidate itself.

Alderman Wilson said many B.C. cities now are making money from power distribution and Vancouver would have a strong case for taking over Hydro's system.

$30 Million Plant

WINNIPEG (CP)—A $30,000,000 chemical fertilizer industry will be built in the Greater Winnipeg area with construction to start this spring, Industry Minister Gurney Evans has announced in the legislature. Mr. Evans said the project will open a new field for the manufacture of allied products. The complex will be built by the J. R. Simplot Company of Boise, Idaho.

PALM DAIRIES LIMITED APPOINTMENT

Harvey A. Seguin

Mr. H. Jack Robson, Executive Vice-President, is pleased to announce the appointment of Mr. Harvey A. Seguin as Project Engineer of Palm Dairies Limited.

Mr. Seguin formerly held the position of Manager for the DeLaval Quebec operations.

He will be located at the Company's Head Office in Calgary.

AMAZING LOW-COST LOANS

TOWER FINANCE COMPANY OF CANADA announces their centrally located office is ready to assist people availing themselves of our prompt low-cost loans.

HOW CAN WE HELP YOU . . .

Let's assume you owe about $2,000 on your car, furniture and TV set plus $500 to a finance company. And your present monthly payments amount to $123. We will start you off fresh with a low monthly payment of $40.43. This gives you an extra $82.57 a month to buy the things you need or put some money away for a rainy day. And best of all this is an amortized loan.

HOW ARE WE ABLE TO OFFER THIS SERVICE . . .

We are not a small loan company, discount company or an acceptance corporation. We deal only in loans of more than $1,500. By doing so we eliminate the high cost of servicing such as would be borne by a finance company making ten loans of $150 each. We deal only in mortgage loans for long terms and reasonable rates.

Many a home owner today may find that he is in the uncomfortable situation of having several high interest rate, short-term obligations that lead to over-burdening monthly payments. Why not give us a call to see if we can arrange to consolidate all these obligations into one low-cost long-term low monthly payment loan.

WHAT WE CAN OFFER YOU . . .

1. Low payment—reasonable rates—long-term loans.
2. Prompt, complete and courteous service.
3. All you have to do is to own a home and it does not have to be completely paid for.

Folks—our loan service can be of great assistance to you. Why not call us and if one of our loans can help you our advice is free and you are under no obligation whatsoever. Simply call 386-7578 before you come in and give us a few necessary facts so that you can take advantage of our prompt and effective loan service.

Clip this message out now as a reminder—Call us now.

IMPORTANT—Total interest charges clearly stated on all contracts and there are no hidden costs.

'PHONE HOUR

25 Years Of Memories Ring a Bell

Donald Voorhees looked thoughtful. "You know," the conductor of the Bell Telephone Orchestra mused, "this job might yet turn out to be steady work." Voorhees continued, "I don't think any of us who were in on the groundwork of the 'Bell Telephone Hour' ever thought we'd be celebrating a 25th anniversary. But, come Tuesday, April 27, that's what we'll be doing."

A distinguished-looking, white-haired gentleman whose black horn-rimmed glasses make him look what he is not—forbidding—Voorhees in 25 years has watched a lot of performers pass his podium.

"Of course there's a great danger in singling out one for praise over another," says he. "But this is an anniversary, so I'll risk it. I suppose my biggest thrill with the series came the night we booked our first guest star, Jascha Heifetz. He was an artist with whom I always wanted to work. In subsequent years, Jascha was on the show 53 more times. He always did something new and different. He believed it was his place, as a leader in his field, to perform the new and the unusual.

CLASSICS

"On the other hand," continues Voorhees, "Fritz Kreisler in his appearances played the time-honored classics—and played them brilliantly, I might add. Fritz was a tough one to land as a guest. He was afraid of radio, and so repeatedly turned down our offers to appear. But eventually he came around. He later said he liked the latitude we give our guests. Kreisler was wonderful to work with. He always came prepared. Incidentally, he expected every one else to come prepared, too, and Lord help those who didn't. With Fritz, we seldom rehearsed a piece more than twice."

Voorhees has learned that not all professionals have the self-assurance and composure of a Kreisler. "I remember when Bing Crosby sang with us in 1945. He was a nervous wreck. He was sure he was wrong for the show—that neither he nor the program would show to their best advantage because they weren't harmonious. What happened? Bing was marvelous! But then, when wasn't he?"

DEBUT

When Renata Tebaldi came to America to make her debut at the Metropolitan Opera, she was booked concurrently on the "Bell Telephone Hour." Voorhees recalls, "It was a gala event. Tickets to the show were like solid gold. I had no worries about attending, as I was on the podium. Madame Tebaldi is an experience I'll never forget. She spoke little English. I spoke little Italian. But we both spoke music. There were no problems. The lady was magnificent, both vocally and in interpretation. She became the role she was singing. I had never seen such total absorption before."

When the "Telephone Hour" moved into television, the program expanded somewhat to accommodate wider tastes. Thus more pop singers were used.

When the "Bell Telephone Hour" did become a TV presentation, Voorhees recalls, it was a day of jubilation. "I was gratified and thrilled. For many years I believed that TV had room for us. Eventually, we overcame obstacles and opposition to put the show on.

Musical Fairy Tale Iolanthe

Gilbert, Sullivan's Fantasy and Satire Wed., 9:30 p.m.

Oldest Man in the World Fights for Death Featured Monday, 8 p.m., Channels 2 and 6

Peers of the realm and spirits of the forest are the heroes and heroines of Gilbert and Sullivan's musical fairy tale, Iolanthe, to be telecast on the Festival series, Wednesday at 9:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

Norman Campbell's 90-minute production of the comic opera stars Eric House as that peer of peers, the Lord Chancellor, and Irene Byatt as an imposing Queen of the Fairies.

The popular Gilbert and Sullivan operetta satirizes politics, in particular the British House of Lords, with the light touch of fantasy. The Festival cast also stars Len Birman, in his first singing role, as Lord Mountarat; Barbara Strathdee as Iolanthe, the sprite who married a human; and Howell Glynne as the stalwart guardsman, Private Willis.

As the curtain goes up, the fairies are enjoying their revels in the forest but they complain to their queen that revels haven't been quite the same since Iolanthe was banished from their midst for her unpardonable crime, her marriage to a human being.

Daddy Sherry is the world's oldest man.

On his next birthday he'll be 111. The townspeople of Shelby, on the Canadian prairies, are planning a community celebration for the event. But as Daddy says, "No point in overdoin' it" —livin', that is— so he's decided to die.

Daddy Sherry is the salty central character of W. O. Mitchell's novel, The Kite, which has been adapted for television and will be seen on Show of the Week, Monday at 8 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

Jack Creley stars as the old, old man, with John Vernon, Charmion King and special guest star Eric House as some of the people most concerned when Daddy takes to his bed just three days before the birthday celebrations.

Vernon plays the part of David Lang, a magazine writer from the East who has come to the small Alberta town to write the Daddy Sherry story.

Humour and breath-taking scenery are combined on "It's a Small World" in "Ridgepole of the Rockies". Wednesday at 7 p.m. over Channel 4.

The scenery of Banff is the starting point of the tour. Sulphur Mountain gondola lift, Banff Springs Hotel, Cascade Mountain, Mount Norquay chair lift and Two Jack Lake are a few of the several hikes into the back country.

Viewers will also see Mount Eisenhower, Lake Louise, many colorful flowers, Moraine Lake, Columbia Icefields and then cross the Great Divide at Kicking Horse Pass into Yoho Valley and Takakaw Falls. Among the sites are moose, deer and mountain sheep, wildflowers in full bloom at Mount Robson, Mount Edith Cavell, Jasper Park Lodge, Lac Beauvert and Maligne Lake.

A little of the old Wild West comes to life at the famous Calgary Stampede. There is square-dancing in the street and flapjacks are served from chuckwagons. A parade with lots of Indians and cowboys and a big rodeo with bucking horses and Brahma bulls is shown.

"1945", an hour-long News Special tracing the continuing influences of the extraordinary events and major decisions of two decades ago upon the world today, will be broadcast Monday at 10:00 p.m. on Channel 7.

The underlying theme of the special broadcast will be an examination of those peculiarly momentous 1945 decisions and events, some still the subject of much conrtoversy.

The broadcast comes 12 days before the 20th anniversary of V-E Day, May 8, 1945. In that year the Second World War reached its climactic end. The special will range from the savage island fighting in the Pacific to Europe and the bloody battle of Berlin. It will encompass the meetings at Yalta and Potsdam.

Other sequences will depict the flavor and tempo of life in the United States in that year — the men returning from prisoner-of-war camps, the founding of the United Nations in San Francisco, demobilization and the beginning of the atomic age.

Jack Benny, with an assist from Bob Hope, departs from the usual Benny personality to play a plumber on "The Lucy Show" Thursday at 8:00 p.m. on Channel 12.

Benny is cast in the guest star role as Harry Tuttle, who considers himself intolerably burdened by a strange stigma—a resemblance to Jack Benny.

Tuttle's life is further complicated by his frustrated attempts to become a concert violinist. Lucy tries to gain recognition for him by arranging an appearance for him on the "Talent Discoverer" amateur show.

Bob Hope plays Benny's assistant plumber.

Problems and Benefits Of Farm Revolution Sunday, 6 p.m., Ch. 7

Judge Crusades for Enlightened Juvenile Laws Telecast Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 5

The technological revolution on the North American farm, resulting in food surpluses and labor displacement, is examined in "The Farmer: Feast or Famine" on The Twentieth Century, Sunday at 6 p.m. on Channel 7.

The broadcast, filmed in Iowa, North Carolina and California, visits farms ranging from small, uneconomic ones to huge, factory-like enterprises.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the big, highly capitalized farmer makes up 22 per cent of the industry and produces 72 per cent of all farm goods, including most of the surpluses; the rest of the farming population is being driven inexorably off the land by efficient machinery.

Experts who discuss the farm problem on the broadcast are Professor Ralph Parks, agricultural engineer at the University of California; Dr. Edward Higbee, author of "Farms and Farmers in an Urban Age"; Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and James Patton, president of the National Farmers Union.

"Judge Ben B. Lindsey," starring George Grizzard in the title role, dramatizes a judge's crusade for enlightened juvenile laws and against political corruption and social evils early in the century on "Profiles in Courage" Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

Judge Lindsey, going through the perfunctory motions of a theft case in Denver, Colo., stops suddenly while pronouncing sentence when he notices that the defendant, Johnny Alonzo (Jimmy Barden), is a 14-year-old youngster charged with stealing coal.

The judge postpones the case and launches a personal investigation which leads to his one-man crusade to introduce enlightened conditions for dealing with juvenile offenders.

Eventually Lindsey extends the fight to political corruption and social evils in general.

The exciting chase and capture of a porpoise near the Bahama Islands by naturalist Marlin Perkins and his assistant, Jim Fowler, will highlight the Wild Kingdom adventure, Mastermind of the Sea, on Sunday at 4:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

Purpose of the capture, made with the co-operation of the Seaquarium of Miami, was to investigate the intelligence and training methods of the porpoise.

Mastermind of the sea demonstrates U.S. Navy experiments in friction and turbulence to analyze the porpoise's amazing ability to speed through the sea. The program also shows tests made to communicate on a verbal level with the creature, whose brain is larger than man's.

Highlights of the show are porpoise acts around the world including the Seaquarium, Marineland of the Pacific, Sea Life Park, Honolulu; Collangatta, Australia; and Port Elizabeth, South Africa.

Anthony Franciosa portrays a wildcat truck driver who accidentally kills a motorcycle policeman in the "Arrest and Trial" episode, 'Call It a Lifetime" at 11:05 p.m. Sunday on Channel 5.

Steve Jared (Franciosa) spots a group of hi-jackers unloading his truck while he is stopped. He immediately takes off after them and soon notices a policeman giving chase. As the policeman attempts to stop Jared, his truck skids and knocks the policeman over a cliff. Arrested later, Jared is charged with murder.

Attorney Egan (Chuck Connors) defends Jared, hoping to prove that he is incapable of committing murder, and the death was accidental as he gave chase to the hi-jackers.

Egan then discovers that Jared's employer had planned the hi-jacking, hoping to collect for selling the goods and from the insurance.

With proof of the hi-jacking, Jared is given a minor prison sentence.

Special Agent John Drake undertakes a hazardous mission to the Middle East to rescue the organizer of a complex espionage system, in "Fysh On the Hook" on "Secret Agent" Saturday at 9:00 p.m. on Channel 7.

Drake follows, in reverse, the links through which invaluable espionage information has filtered out of the area in order to reach the source—a mysterious individual whose identity is masked by the name "Fysh." No one knows who he is or where he can be found, and Drake has barely 48 hours to accomplish his mission before local security forces are due to close in.

Series star Patrick McGoohan plays Drake. Guest star Dawn Addams appears as a secretary who renders him valuable assistance.

★ ★ ★

Eydie Gorme, Freddie and the Dreamers, Topo Gigio, Marty Allen and Steve Rossi, Leon Bibb and special guest Shelley Berman headline "The Ed Sullivan Show" Sunday at 8:00 p.m. on Channels 2, 6, 7, and 12.

Miss Gorme will sing a medley of tunes. Berman will offer a comedy monologue, perched on his familiar high stool.

Freddie and the Dreamers will sing their version of "I'm Telling You Now," the No. 1 record on many of the American charts. One of the most popular vocal and instrumental groups in England, they have inspired "the Freddie look" in clothes and a new dance, the Freddie.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN is given by Daniel Boone (Fess Parker) as he tries to convince a beautiful Indian "Juliet" that she should listen to her people and renounce her forbidden romance with a white boy, in The Courtship of Jericho Jones, on Daniel Boone, Thursday at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

The Italian Mouse, the little puppet personality named Topo Gigio, will appear in a sketch with his friend "Eddie" Sullivan. The team of Allen and Rossi will round out the program's comedy.

Leon Bibb, known primarily as a folk singer, will introduce his new night-club act, in which he sings popular tunes.

★ ★ ★

Other weekend viewing highlights are listed in order of appearance as follows:

TONIGHT

7:30: Channel 4: King Family. The whole family joins in High Society, Minuet and other musical highlights.

7:30: Channels 7, 12: Jackie Gleason. In his monologue, Jackie contrasts his Brooklyn boyhood with life today. Barbara Heller introduces the sketches: Rum Dum brewing a cup of tea and the Poor Soul's battle with a bellhop.

8:30: Channels 2, 6: Beverly Hillbillies. Elly May and Jethro have become beatniks, but Granny invades their coffee house to bring them home for chores.

9:00: Channel 7: Secret Agent. Fysh on the Hook. Drake is sent to the Middle East to protect Fysh, the organizer of a complex espionage system that is about to be exposed.

9:30: Channel 4: Hollywood Palace. Singer Pat Boone introduces songstress Dorothy Collins, comic Jack E. Leonard, comedian impressionist Ben Blue and company in a sketch about the Parisian sidewalk cafe.

10:00: Channel 6: Man From UNCLE. The Vulcan Affair. THRUSH attacks UNCLE headquarters in an attempt to kill Waverly, who has learned their plan to assassinate a visiting African premier.

SUNDAY

5:30: Channels 2, 6: Stanley Cup hockey finals. Special. The Montreal Canadiens meet the Chicago Black Hawks in the fourth game of the series.

6:00: Channel 7: Twentieth Century. The Farmer: Feast or Famine. This film focuses on how machines are driving people from the farms and piling up surpluses paid for by the taxpayer.

6:30: Channel 5: Profiles in Courage. In a Denver courtroom at the turn of the century, Judge Benjamin Barr Lindsey is about to pass sentence on a thief — and then he learns that the criminal is only 14 years old.

7:30: Channel 5: Walt Disney's World. Hans Brinker or the Silver Skates. Hans and his sister Gretel hope to pay for their father's operation by winning the ice-skating race at Amsterdam—even though they have only wooden skates.

8:00: Channels 2, 6, 7, 12: Ed Sullivan. Ed's guests include Sean Connery, songstress Eydie Gorme, Xavier Cugat and his orchestra and comedian Shelly Berman.

9:00: Channels 2, 5, 6: Bonanza. In this comedy-drama, fun-loving presentation, Lothario Larkin is back in Virginia City and he is still irresistible to women.

9:30: Channel 8: Men in Crisis. State vs. Walker: A Touch of Scandal. In the free-wheeling 20s, New York has a mayor to match the times: James J. Walker, a flamboyant Tammany Hall politician.

11:00: Channel 12: Target Corrupters. Prison Empire. Corrupt union boss Harvey Bragen is in prison and the union is now officially led by Allie Lewis.

Basic Mill Rate to Stay In Cowichan School Area

NORTH COWICHAN — The municipal budget presented Friday leaves the basic mill rate in School District 65 (Cowichan) the same as last year.

Reeve Donald Morton said the budget's only "depressing feature" was the three-mill increase in the education rate for School District 67.

Total budget is $1,983,039, which is $392,000 over last year.

In the whole municipality the general rate was reduced from 11 to 10 mills. However, in School District 65 this was offset by a one-mill rise in the education rate.

Minimum mill rate in District 65 will be 38 mills (general rate 10 mills, education 26 mills and hospital two mills).

District 67 will pay a basic 38.5 (general 10, and education 28.5 mills).

CAPITAL ITEMS

Treasurer A. Vandecasteyen explained it was possible to avoid a bigger increase in the mill rate because the value of one mill had shot up by $7,800.

Mr. Vandecasteyen said capital items like $585,000 for Chemainus sewer construction; $400,000 for Mary Street-Gibbins Road sewer project; and $145,000 for Somenos-Drinkwater Road waterworks system would be proceeded with if the owner-electors voted in their favor (although they weren't in the budget).

Education will cost North Cowichan a total of $1,100,708 ($783,874 in School District 65 and $316,834 in School District 67).

Other major budget expenses are: public works $210,000; sanitation, health and social welfare $405,970; police protection $167,770; recreation and parks $24,575.

SURPLUS FUNDS

Mr. Vandecasteyen said expected revenue is $14,631 short of the budgetted expenditures but the budget has been balanced by using current surplus funds instead of increasing the mill rate or slashing expenses.

Reiterating a public statement about B.C. Forest Products, Crofton, paying half the municipal taxes, Reeve Morton said: "If we are prepared to support criticism of alleged air contamination we must also be ready to give credit where it is due.

LIKE DEPRESSION

"It would be very much like a depression here if there was no pulp mill at Crofton. We should be sure of our ground before we support criticism.

"We have to keep in mind we are hoping for further increases in the industrial complex at Crofton and should not discourage B.C. Forest Products Ltd."

COUNCIL BACKS TRI-U FUND

NORTH COWICHAN Municipal council voted unanimously Friday to give $10,000 to the Tri-Universities Capital Fund.

Only question is whether to make it a one-shot donation or contribute $2,000 a year for five years.

A decision was left to the next meeting.

Chamber to Support Cowichan Museum

DUNCAN—Cowichan Forest Museum on the shore of Somenos Lake will be open to the public during the holiday weekend of May 24. But official opening ceremonies will not take place until later in the summer.

Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce Wednesday pledged its members' moral and physical support to Gerald Wellburn in promoting the May opening.

Denis Mason Hurley said Mr. Wellburn is working singlehandedly on the project.

Mr. Wellburn's private logging and early railroad collection from Deerholme is the foundation of the unique museum.

Already the site boasts over a mile of rail track with a trestle carrying the trains out over a scenic lake.

Swimmers Warned Of Pollution Threat

CHEMAINUS — Vancouver Island swimmers were warned this week against swimming in polluted waters.

Issuing the warning was Dr. Don Alderdice, research staff member at Nanaimo Biological Station.

He told Chemainus Chamber of Commerce: "It is unsafe to swim in any waters polluted with sewage."

He said he had made a survey of pollution problems in B.C. waters.

PESTICIDES

In particular he condemned the pulp and paper industry and the too liberal use of pesticides.

He said that in "not very many years" there will be serious trouble in the Fraser River from Prince George to Vancouver; in the Fraser River estuary; Alberni Inlet; embayments such as Crofton, and possibly all the east coast of Vancouver Island from Comox to Chemainus.

Dr. Alderdice said the public and governments must learn more about the multiple use of water.

He claimed water is a natural resource belonging to all users which must be returned after use in as good a condition as possible so that it can be used again.

POLLUTED WATER

He gave several examples of the effects of polluted water on salmon and shellfish.

The insecticide DDT is doing a great deal of harm, he claimed.

To illustrate this argument he said the DDT equivalent of one grain of salt diluted in 100 glasses of water, is sufficient to kill most marine life.

He also plugged for the treatment of all domestic sewage.

The Chemainus chamber is supporting the proposed $400,000 Chemainus sewer bylaw which is expected to go before the people in July.

AT SCHOOL

Young Boys, Some Girls Smoking

NANAIMO (CP) — Joan Darwin, president of the Nanaimo Cancer Society, says a large number of students at Nanaimo's Quesnel Elementary school are smoking outside the school grounds.

"The smokescreen around the school at lunch time and after school is wicked," she said in a speech to the Nanaimo Junior Chamber of Commerce this week.

She said the smokers, aged about 12 to 14 years, are mostly boys but she had seen some girls smoking as well.

"I don't know if their parents know about it but they should. It's no secret around here."

Miss Darwin said only junior and senior high school students now are being taught the dangers of smoking and "this education should start earlier."

She said the Cancer Society has made its feeling known to Dr. Gerald Bonham, Central Vancouver Island Health Unit director who has been conducting lung cancer information classes for higher school grades.

Tugs Summoned to Assist Grounded U.S. Fish Boat

Tugs were called out this morning to assist a U.S. fishboat aground off Texada.

Air-Sea Rescue in Vancouver said no one aboard was injured.

The vessel was identified as the Precho and was described as a halibut fishboat.

Texada Island is in the Georgia Strait, east of Courtenay.

First tug on the scene was the Chieftain III from Blind Bay, near Pender Harbor on the mainland.

Until it arrived the fishing vessel Pan Arrow stood by.

Destination of the grounded vessel has not been confirmed.

NANAIMO — Operation doorstep turned up 209 Vancouver Island school children with positive reaction to a tuberculin skin test.

Revealing the figures Friday, officials said this was 2.1 per cent—on a par with the provincial average.

A total of 11,255 students were tested in the period March 20 to April 13 in 52 schools in the Cowichan, Duncan and Ladysmith areas.

A positive reaction to the test means the reactor has been infected by someone having active tuberculosis.

A positive reactor has one chance in 20 of developing the disease at some stage in life.

The 209 students are now being x-rayed.

Nineteen schools failed to provide any positive reactors.

Highest rate of positive reactors was Shawnigan Lake Boys' School where 10 of the 232 students were found to be positive.

Operation Doorstep will begin May 10 to give TB skin tests and x-rays to residents all over Vancouver Island.

Victoria Daily Times
VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, APRIL 24, 1965—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

In my work basket, as I settle down to another bout of cramping the alphabet into new patterns, is a fat folder loaned me by a chum who is investigating a mail-order course on writing for money.

So far, I haven't got around to looking inside; but on the front cover is an encouraging picture of a sure-enough writer at work.

He is a big, handsome fellow with a good head of rumpled hair. His tweed jacket is a bit long in the pelt, but very well cut, and he is, of course, smoking a pipe. The desk in his book-lined study is obviously a writer's, because on it, along with typewriter, paper, manuscript pages and reference books is a bowl bristling with pencils.

This guy is typing, not with a two-finger hunt-and-poke, but with all his pinkies, yet; and the obvious inference is that the top seller on his publisher's fall list is in process of creation.

Well, so much for the picture. And I'll bet could we snoop over this operator's square shoulder, we would find he's inscribing 'Now is the time for all good men,' or jumping the quick brown fox over the lazy dog's back.

* * *

I won't say he isn't a writer. But if he is, you can bet that his wife has spent the last three days tidying up his workroom, and that he probably borrowed the pipe.

What I do insist is that he's anything but representative, and that your working scrivener — a moody fellow much better read than met — would never have made the cover of that correspondence school prospectus.

He might indeed have pencils in a bowl, peanut butter jar or bar glass, but not to use: They'd be for him to sharpen each morning, and so put off the agony of getting down to work.

His ears would slant slightly backward, a deformation that comes from listening for the mailman. At his elbow would be an ashtray overflowing with butts, and he would be surrounded by crumpled spoil-sheets. As for clothing, give him rump-sprung pants and a sport shirt.

He would welcome an excuse to shove away from his desk, light another cigarette, and reveal some daunting facts about his trade. These would include the following:

That even if it finds a publisher, which is by no means probable, a first novel may not net its author the price of a new set of tires.

(I have a friend whose first royalty cheque hangs framed over his desk . . . twenty-five cents.)

* * *

That a professional fictioneer may go six months or a year without making a strike; that if a newcomer is lucky enough to crack the short-story market, six sales will be his lifetime total as the percentages run; and that the average successful dream-merchant is humbly grateful if he sells from one third to half his output.

All this being so, you will understand why I am cool toward come-alongs which overstate the glamour and minimize the difficulties of writing for a living.

I know that in this city are any number of eager, young and not-so-young aspirants who will shrug off everything I've said here as so much pessimistic croaking.

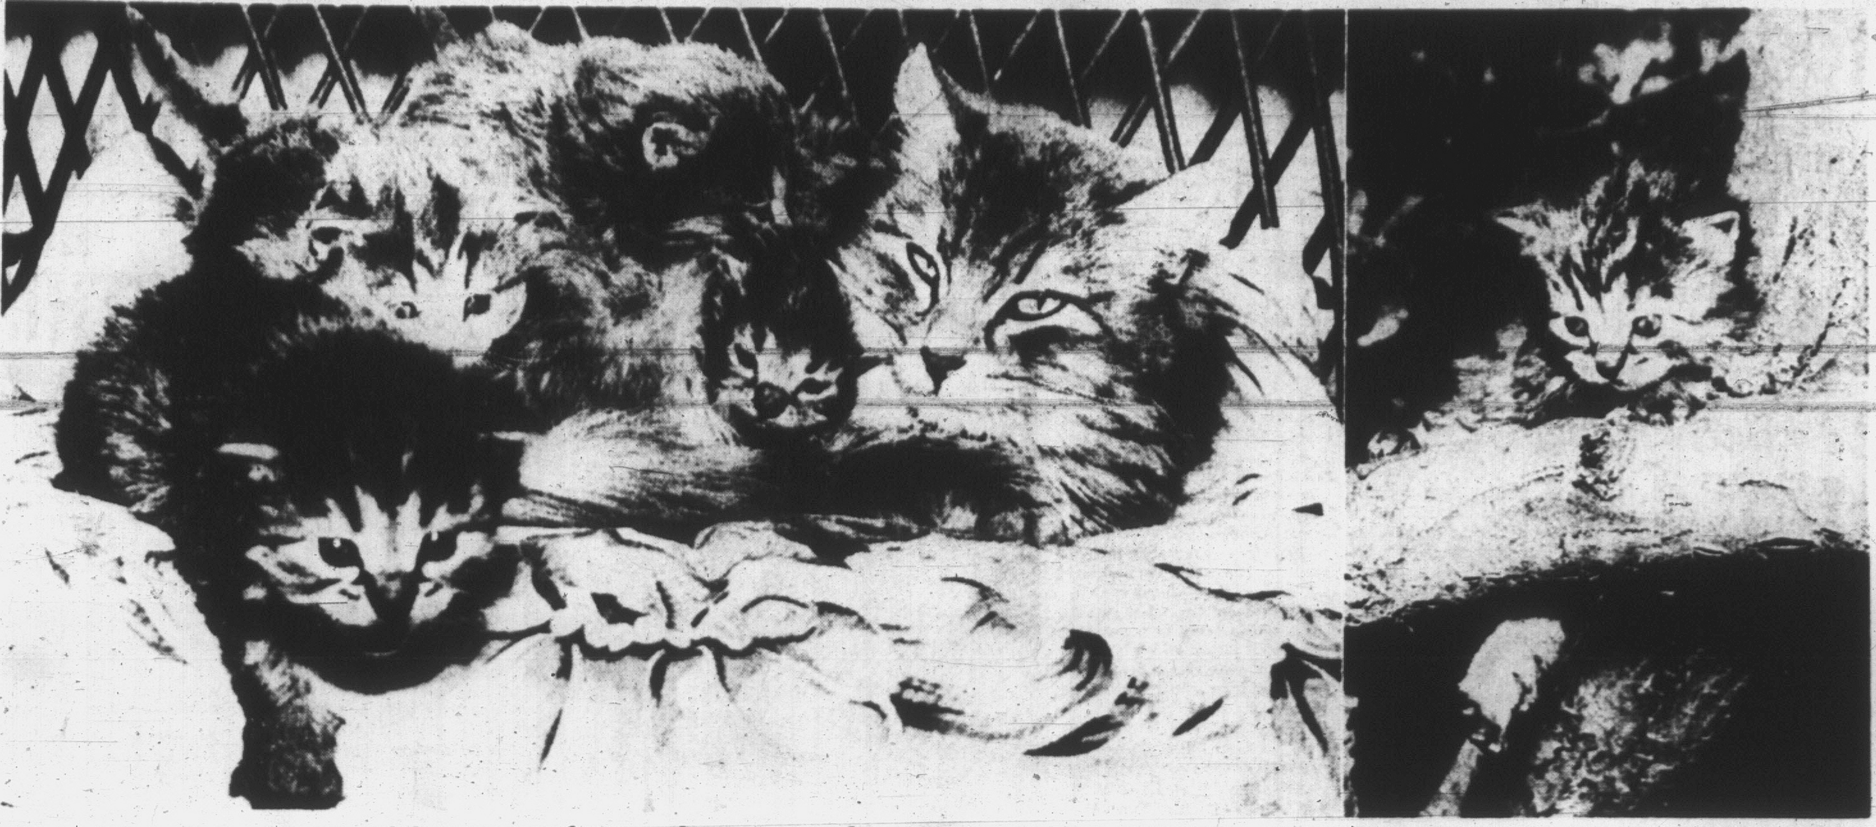
But since few weeks go by without a call from some would-be writer, I am going to set down a few ground-rules.

Don't go free-lancing until or unless you have proved you can make a living from your typewriter. Even then, write from the shelter of a job if you like security and hate gambling.

Study your markets; most beginners don't. Set up a writing schedule, and in that period, even if you feel like death warmed over, force words on to paper.

Never talk out a story plot, not even with your dearest. If you do, you're unlikely to write it.

And please, if you do crack the barrier, don't ever pose like that joker on the writing course enticement!



House for the Birds, Back to Tree for Him

"Rats! This down-to-earth stuff's getting me down. You lot can stay if you want, but I'm branching out. This terra-firma's too earthy for me. Maybe I'm barking up the wrong tree but, after all, there's no place like home . . ." For this young family, home was up a tree for the first two weeks of their life. Mother puss moved into the tree-top apartment on Crown Crescent, off Cook Street, in readiness for the big day. A stray part-Persian, she has since been removed from her precarious perch and found a more conventional home. (Times photos by Bill Halkett.)

GUARD TO WATCH FOR GOLDFINGER

A day and night guard will be kept on next month's Jaycee Fair.

The guards will be keeping watch on a brick.

No ordinary brick this; but a $10,000 gold brick.

The miniature mint is one of the special attracttions at the fair, opening May 17.

And Victorians will get a shot at taking the brick home.

It is to be raffled off during the six days of the fair by an Edmonton man.

Similar bricks have been raffled off in the past at the Calgary Stampede.

During the week it will be housed in a special showcase for would-be winners to feast their eyes on.

Said a Jaycee spokesman today: "We have been approached by this Edmonton man.

EARLY FORTUNE

"Special security police will be hired to make sure no one gets any ideas about building an early fortune."

The fair will run in Memorial Arena and the Curling rink.

Already most of the acts for the week have been booked though contracts have not yet been signed.

Top feature is expected to be a well-known accordionist and a singing group.

The usual midway—including a special kiddies' section—will be in full swing behind the arena while more than 130 display booths will be set up in the two buildings.

Although there will be only one gold brick there will be nightly prizes of $500 on weekly pass numbers.

Another $1,000 will be given away Saturday, plus a car.

In the agricultural field there will be displays of poultry and rabbits, plus a cattle judging contest.

Although arrangements have not yet been completed a local stable will stage a horse show.

Young and old men will get a chance to hit bull's eye and send a girl flying into a bath of water.

ELEGANT TOUCH

Adding a touch of elegance to the scene wil be the new Miss Victoria and the other nine finalists.

There will be hot-dogs and candy, swings and roundabouts, in fact all the fun of the fair.

SAWMILL TARGET

New Move Hinted In Smoke Battle

By BOB DONAHUE

Increased pressure for control may be brought against Plumper Bay Sawmills Ltd., described as the last major smoke pollution source in Greater Victoria.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer for the Metropolitan Board of Health, said today the company has ignored previous requests to control smoke and the subject may be brought up again at the next board meeting.

There has been a suggestion the provisions of the provincial Health Act be used to force the company to control the smoke from its refuse burners.

The manager of the company, P. S. Johl, said today he would make no comment as to whether the company would take steps to control its smoke pollution.

Residents of the area, mostly in View Royal and Christie Point, are again up in arms because officials of the company still refuse to make any comment about the situation.

Esquimalt member of the health board, Coun. George Argyle, said today he is looking forward to amalgamation with View Royal so increased pressure could be brought to bear against the sawmill.

B.C. Forest Products Ltd. announced this week that it is closing and dismantling the burner at Point Ellice sawmill and Smith Cedar Products Ltd. has annouaced its operation is now entirely smoke-free.

The Plumper Bay smoke problem was first brought before the Metro Health Board about two years ago.

Because the sawmill is outside the municipal boundaries the board could take no direct action.

CONTROL SMOKE

After making a study of the pollution from the plant the board appealed to Ottawa and the Indian Affairs department, on whose land the sawmill is situated.

They also requested the company to start some measures to control the smoke.

They have heard nothing more as a result of either of the three appeals.

Nothing to Lose Sleep About But Turn Your Clock AHEAD

By TERRY IZZARD

The hour of reckoning is upon us.

The fateful hour when time flies.

At least some of it will fly when daylight saving time comes into effect at 2 a.m. Sunday.

For others it will stand still.

It's all a question of how you look at it.

On (clock) face value it's quite simple.

At one minute to two you're up with the times.

At one minute past you're living on borrowed time.

To keep things ticking smoothly just twist the big hand ahead through 360 degrees when you retire tonight.

All being well you can drop into bed and dream until baby wakes at 7 a.m.

But baby's not going to wake at 7 a.m. She's going to be up and about at 6.

On the other hand maybe she's going to lie in until 8.

After all, it's 3 now. A minute ago it was 2.

So at 7 it will be 8; or will it be 8 at 7?

Three hours ago it was midnight, but it's only two hours since the clock struck 12. Add an hour that never was and subtract the difference from the total number of hours in the day.

Gives you 25 and nightmares.

This will be the quandry facing millions at the weekend as the regular-as-clockwork routine comes up for its biannual overhaul.

Some will pull through the ordeal unscathed.

Others will never tick the same again.

For the very weak the bells will have tolled their last.

After all, time waits for no man . . . and in this case only time can tell.

TOPICS of the DAY

Royal Victoria Yacht Club boating enthusiasts were hard at work today at 6 a.m. to get their craft in the water after the winter lay-off.

The early-morning hour was the only time a tide was available to carry out the launchings.

The club's opening day and sailpast will be May 8.

Dorothy Soderman, Munn Road, who was convicted one month ago of hit-and-run driving, today pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Evidence was she was arrested early this morning after her car crossed the centre line of Millstream Road and ran into a ditch.

She asked to keep her licence for business and was remanded to May 4 for pre-sentence report and sentence.

Saanich Police Sgt. Edward C. Owens will talk on "Traffic Safety" to Sacred Heart P-TO in the church hall, 1130 Palmer Road, Monday at 8 p.m.

P-TO members will also discuss a suggested radical change in school uniforms.

Magistrate William Ostler said Friday that relatives who helped a young man cover up bad cheques in his past actually did not help him.

He said they only encouraged Christopher Howson, 1239 Park Terrace, to think he "could get away with it."

Howson earlier pleaded guilty to eight charges involving bad cheques. The magistrate fined him $50 on each charge and bound him over on a $250 bond for six months.

The magistrate ordered Howson to pay the fine at the rate of $50 a month.

Navy Ship Movements

HMC Ships Mackenzie, Saskatchewan and Beacon Hill in port at Tokyo, Japan; return here May 13.

HMCS Fraser en route here from Hawaii; due 8 a.m. Wednesday.

In port are HMC Ships Qu'Appelle, Oriole, New Glasgow, Sussexvale, Grilse, Yukon, Ste. Therese, Stettler, Jonquiere and St. Croix.

Visiting ships, USS Interpreter, radar picket ship, due April 29 at E jetty, HMCS Naden; HMS Kent, guided missile destroyer, due April 30 at 9 a.m. A jetty, HMC Dockyard.

Return Subsidies Retroactively, MP to Tell Gov't

Victoria MP David Groos said today he intends to press the federal government to return the "frozen" subsidy for shipbuilding.

In particular, he said, he will ask the government if it will agree that when a decision is reached it will be made retroactive to the "freezing" in February.

He was commenting on local shipyards who say they face serious problems as a result of the freeze and the national tendering for conversion of the Esquimalt-based destroyer-escort HMCS Fraser.

This job, worth $3 million, went to Canadian Vickers Ltd. in Montreal.

Mr. Groos emphasized no policy decision has been made that federal government ships will be bid on a national basis.

Previously, bidding was restricted in the region where the ship was to be based.

"I think the government will turn down national bidding," he said.

NATIONAL BASIS

Asked why the Fraser was bid on a national basis, he said he could only guess that perhaps this was a test case to see what would happen with national bidding.

"It illustrates the point that national bidding is not feasible at this time," he said.

"In time, wage rates in the east will approximate those in the west."

At present, there is an average $1 per hour per man difference in wage costs.

Shipyard owners here say no amount of increased efficiency and favorable climatic conditions can make up that difference and put west coast yards on an equal footing with those in the east.

SUBSIDY PROGRAM

On the subsidy program, in which the federal government had paid 35 per cent of the cost of ships, Mr. Groos said no indication has been given when a special committee will complete its report.

In the meantime, the subsidies have been frozen and shipyards say this is holding back orders.

Both Yarrows and Victoria Machinery Depot, which employ more than 1,500, say they have no orders in sight beyond the end of the year.

"We can employ between 600 and 700 men until the end of the year, but after that there is nothing in sight," said John Wallace, general manager at Yarrows.

VMD president Harold Husband said his yard is busy at the moment particularly with ferries for the provincial government "and our work there ends at the end of 1965."

They recalled Defence Minister Paul Hellyer said last December regional building of ships is the "most inefficient way ever devised by man to build ships."

Employees Of Eaton's Back Fund

Employees of Eaton's of Victoria have decided to donate $5,000 to the Three Universities Capital Fund.

Fund officials have been told they will receive $1,000 a year for the next five years from the Eaton's employees.

Seven gifts, totalling $6,435, have already been received in the corporations and executives division.

Vancouver Island division of the fund hopes to raise $2,000,000 of a $28,000,000 fund objective which will be used for buildings and equipment at the three universities, University of Victoria, University of B.C., and Simon Fraser University.

DR. CARTER:

Fluoride Vote Likely To Get Council Nod

By RON SUDLOW

Oak Bay Councillor Dr. Harold Carter said today he is confident his motion to hold a water fluoridation referendum in the municipality will pass easily.

The issue will come before council Monday evening.

"All the motion needs is a simple majority. I think it will be passed," he said.

He based his prediction on "certain indications" of councillors present at a committee of the whole meeting April 5 when he served notice of motion.

"Only one councillor seemed to be a fence-hanger. I think he just wanted to see how the others felt about it first," he added.

"The reeve (Allan Cox) is for it."

Coun. Walter Dodsworth was absent when Coun. Carter put forth his motion.

EARLIEST DATE

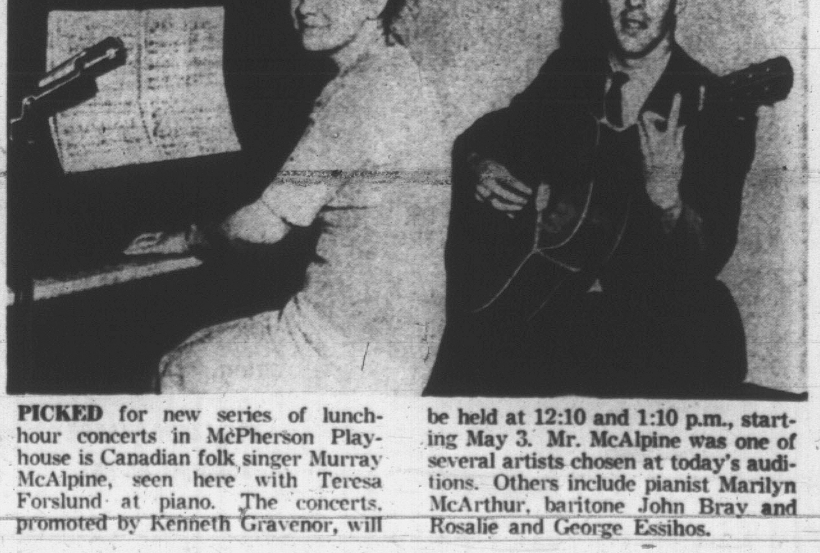
If council decides to hold a referendum, Coun. Carter will ask it to be held at "the earliest possible date that is legal."

To pass, the motion will need a 60 percent majority from those casting ballots.

This will be the second chance for Oak Bay residents to have their water fluoridated.

Last time was 1959 when only 37 per cent of Greater Victoria residents voted in favor.

Of the four municipalities, Oak Bay had the highest percentage of "yes" votes.



PICKED for new series of lunch-hour concerts in McPherson Playhouse is Canadian folk singer Murray McAlpine, seen here with Teresa Forslund at piano. The concerts, promoted by Kenneth Gravenor, will be held at 12:10 and 1:10 p.m., starting May 3. Mr. McAlpine was one of several artists chosen at today's auditions. Others include pianist Marilyn McArthur, baritone John Bray and Rosalie and George Essihos.

Carefree Clothes Go for Cruise

Damaske

No matter what she does or where she goes, the first thought that pops into a woman's head is: "What will I wear?" And, this is especially true of a cruise.

To begin with, the most blissful thought is the knowledge that "you CAN take it with you." No worry about over-weight, no regrets about a favorite dress left behind because there's no room for the right shoes, no tiresome packing and unpacking . . . because on a cruise your stateroom is your headquarters for the entire trip.

So . . . travel light if you're that kind of a gal . . . but if you are a typical woman, rejoice that your luggage is unlimited on your luxurious floating hotel.

As you're packing, remember you don't want to spend your precious holiday time worrying with clothes that need pampering . . . so concentrate on knits and jerseys, carefree drip-dry cottons and miracle blends . . . all of which "hang out" as fast as you hang them up.

So, what will you take? First, embark in a lightweight but warm coat, like a fluffy mohair, a featherweight tweed or boucle, or a simply styled camel hair or cashmere. White or pale beige would be a good color choice . . . or it could be one of the luscious new pale pastels. Under the coat, nothing could be smarter or more practical for your "going away" choice than a dress or suit in double-knit.

Now for those delightful days on deck . . . lazy or action-filled, as you like it . . . you will want play clothes that are easy to move about in. Comfortable well-cut wool slims with a bright top would be fine for cool days. Bermuda shorts, if you wear them well, and a divided skirt with a shirtwaist top would be pretty, feminine, and great for shuffleboard.

Around the pool, swimming or just sunning, you'll wear swimsuits . . . better take along two or three. A cover-up is a must . . . something with a fun look, like a hooded windbreaker in terry towelling, or a gay beach shift.

For tea or bridge or just plain lounging on deck, and for sightseeing on shore, you'll want an assortment of several smart dresses.

Include an easy shift in jersey, a two-piece cotton-knit, a comfortable shirtdress in easy-care cotton and a smart dark shade dress in non-muss linen-like blend.

Jacket dresses are good and a Chanel-type suit with a shell blouse is a handy stand-by.

Dinner on board is the perfect time for your glamorous cocktail dresses and those delightful ankle length cotton dinner dresses. A sophisicated black dress-up dress is a must . . . it's definitely the correct thing for evenings at on-shore restaurants and night clubs.

All of your lingerie should be easy-care, of course, quick-dry nylon or if you are going where it is very hot . . . drip-dry cotton.

Nice to have along . . . cardigan sweaters rate high, to throw over your shoulders by day and night. An assortment of gay, colorful scarves will protect your hair from wind and sun. A small clutch purse for evening and a big roomy travel bag should see you through the handbag department.

Don't forget your sunglasses, and in case it isn't that kind of day everyday, take a fold-up plastic shower coat.

Whether you are taking a short cruise to Alaska on the new CNR ship Prince George or an extended trip on one of the beautiful P and O liners, plan carefully for a pretty but easy-care wardrobe.

From Beach to Baby— This Bag Serves All

By PENNY SAVER

After searching high and low for her knitting, Penny finally found it when she flopped down to rest in her favorite easy chair. I sat on part of it—two great long knitting needles! This decided me—I had to buy some sort of container to keep my needles, wool and other paraphernalia in one place—easy to find and store.

Lucky me! I discovered the perfect carry-all bag for my knitting and for a score of other purposes as well!

Made of a gaily striped cotton blend, the bag is large enough for all your knitting—including those long, long needles—or bathing togs if you're going to the beach. It holds lots and lots of diapers if you want it for a baby bag.

Easily washable, the bag sells for $2.95.

Browsing about the store, I found something else I'd like to pass along to you. It is a new English wool, heavenly soft and perfect for a summer sweater or suit.

Selling for 62 cents an ounce, this wool is available in a myriad of colors—all with a misty streak of white threaded through the color. (It's a wonderful idea for a baby's outfit.)

Or if you prefer just a little heavier wool, there is one available for 57 cents an ounce. This is slightly thicker but the soft, soft colors make it ideal for a suit or close-fitting sheath dress.

By the way, if you're in the market for clothes for baby, here's a tip for Mom or for those wanting a shower gift.

These are little six months to one-year size dresses, on sale for $1.59. The charming outfits are of stiffened nylon, trimmed with lace or satin ribbon, over a detachable slip of taffeta. Styles are sleeveless or with a tiny capped sleeve, in smock or fitted designs.

Remember, Penny is at 382-3131. Give her a call and find out where to shop.

Guides Gather For Music Reunion

The voices of 65 Guides and Guiders from all over British Columbia will fill St. Matthias' Church hall, this evening, for the Guide provincial music camp reunion. Campfire singing, commencing at 7:30 p.m., will be preceded by a potluck supper at 5:30 p.m.

B.C. music adviser for the Guides, Mrs. R. H. Rogers, Vancouver, organized the affair. Because of the interest stimulated by music camps at Tsoona, provincial Guide training camp, and interest in the reunion, five companies of Guides have entered the Victoria Music Festival.

TODAY'S RECIPE

LAMB AND EGG WESTERN

Two tbsp. butter or margarine, ½ cup chopped onion, ¾ cup chopped cooked lamb, 2 eggs, slightly beaten; ¼ tsp. salt, few grains pepper, 8 slices buttered toast, and tomato catsup or chili sauce.

Melt, but do not brown, butter in frying pan; add onion; stir and cook over medium heat for 2 minutes. Combine remaining ingredients; pour over onion and butter. Cook, without stirring, over low heat until the eggs are set.

Cut into four servings, lift carefully with a wide spatula on to slice of buttered toast, top with another slice of buttered toast. Serve hot with tomato catsup or chili sauce. Makes four sandwiches.

Dinner Party

Miss Donna J. Vinen, whose marriage takes place this evening, was honored at a dinner party in the Oak Bay Marina restaurant by her co-workers from Confederation Life Association. A corsage was presented to the bride-elect. Guests were Mrs. E. Taylor, Mrs. Richard K. Willis, Miss Verna Beek and Miss Grace Chu.

CURTAIN GOING UP...

GREATER VICTORIA MUSIC FESTIVAL, APRIL 26 – MAY 7

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

Beginning Monday at 9 a.m., the sound of music will prevail in several centres as the 1965 Greater Victoria Music Festival swings along for 10 days and nights of competitive sessions involving between two and three thousand persons.

Adults participate during the first week in vocal solo, choral and instrumental classes. Highlight of the festival is the concluding concert of this week which comes Friday night and will be presented this year in the McPherson Playhouse.

Top performers in the piano and vocal classes are invited to participate and the program also includes the keenly-interesting Rose Bowl (vocal) and City of Victoria Medallion (piano) championship competitions.

First week's sessions in vocal solo, adult ensemble, piano, organ, speech arts and accordion are centred in First United Church and St. John's Anglican halls on Balmoral Road.

School classes in instrumental, choral and speech work and folk and creative dance occupy the second week, May 3-7.

Central Junior and Oak Bay Junior Secondary Schools and Sir James Douglas Elementary are centres for these sessions.

Possessing a delightful quality is the family ensemble class in which any combination of instruments and/or voices is permitted. This year the musical Dysons will compete in friendly rivalry with the well-known Patterson family at the first evening session, Monday. With Mrs. Dyson is her quartet of sons and daughter, from left, Michael, Bill, Peter and Anne.

Practising at the console of Christ Church Cathedral organ, gifted Lynne Dougan prepares for her festival 'moment of truth.' She already holds an ARCT diploma in piano and after only eight months' organ tuition is preparing for Grade 9 examinations. She is a University of Victoria student and trains in judo as a hobby.

Brilliant young pianist, Marilyn McArthur, and well-known soprano soloist Adele Lewis were last year's winners of the major trophies, the City Medallion and Rose Bowl. They will appear as guest soloists at the grand concert, Friday at McPherson Playhouse.

Doing The Town

with DOROTHY FRASER

Let it rain, let it rain, let it rain . . .

It was raining cats and dogs when we visited Miss Frith's last Monday . . . so naturally enough, their chic hats for rainy days captured our immediate attention . . . Believe us, it's no longer necessary to look a fright when the weather man goofs! . . . There are smart reversible rain hats . . . navy and light blue . . . black and white . . . brown and gold . . . brimmed to keep the rain out of your eyes . . . $7.98 well invested, we'd say! . . . Real fetching are the visored kerchief-type rain hats . . . in smooth, silky poplin . . . cheerful shades of pink, yellow, blue and beige . . . Pert young things will flip over the "little boy" caps of simulated leather, treated to be water repellent . . . only $3.98 . . . Also treated to be impervious to everything short of a deluge are the stitched bengaline hats in various shapes and colors . . . Just the thing for travel, too . . . you can roll them up and put them in your pocket . . . And for days when the sun is smiling . . . Miss Frith's have some of the dreamiest flowered chapeaux and airy brimmed organdies we've ever laid eyes on . . . These organdies are very new this year . . . completely feminine and beguiling . . . Miss Frith Millinery & Fashions, 1617 Douglas St., EV 3-4912.

Givenchy's "one-shoulder-bared" theme is carried out even in an ensemble for dressy daytime wear . . . A twilled brown and white print dress wrapped close to the body and tied on the hip . . . right shoulder bared. With it, an oval-back jacket.

Coats with the smart "Victoria" look . . .

It's no secret that the various sections of this vast country of ours each have their own special "looks" when it comes to the matter of dress . . . dictated by climate as well as by temperament, tempo and favorite mode of life of the people who dwell therein . . . Here on the West Coast it's the casual, tailored look . . . which doesn't mean that our women aren't, on occasion, as high-styled as any on the continent . . . Simply that the backbone and mainstays of our wardrobes are the good, wool classics . . . like the English hand-tailored topcoats we saw at Wilson's this week . . . in typically English materials like West of England tweeds . . . muted plaids and checks in lovely misty colors . . . impeccably tailored on classic lines . . . with raglan or set-in sleeves . . . Such a coat is never dated . . . travels confidently anywhere in the world . . . lasts practically forever! . . . The sort of coat no well-dressed woman would dream of being without . . . And as a complement . . . and to wear with innumerable other outfits . . . the new Liberty and Jacqmar scarves from England are superlative . . . Big pure silk squares in heavenly colors and myriad designs . . . This scarf shipment has just newly arrived and there's a tremendous choice . . . so drop in soon and browse amongst them . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Some of the new lingerie has the look of the Twenties . . . Knickers trimmed with lace and embroidery, worn with a similarly adorned undershirt.

Foot-prints from Italy . . .

The carefree season is rapidly approaching . . . time to bare your feet to sunshine and fresh air . . . give them soft, relaxed covering for all casual occasions . . . Mr. Munday was showing us their new shipment of canvas shoes and sandals just arrived from Italy . . . and believe us, they're wonderfully pretty as well as practical . . . with that unmistakable Continental look . . . The casuals, or play shoes, are really burlap rather than canvas . . . in gay colors like red, gold, jade green, natural . . . crepe rubber soles, slightly squarish toe, rope trim around the bottom . . . These come in two styles . . . a one-eyelet tie, and a slip-on . . . priced at $8.95 and $6.95 respectively (the latter style may also be had in black) . . . There's a really nice range of Italian sandals . . . Bandolinos with crepe rubber soles . . . leather straps, arranged in various interesting ways . . . Dark brown, bone and red . . . the latter color especially pretty . . . $9.95 . . . Amalfi sandals have leather soles, and cushy foam rubber insoles . . . coffee brown, sahara, oyster (which is really white) . . . One called "Esope" has a high Roman front . . . other styles have plain or braided leather straps . . . "Delta" has a little covered heel, if you prefer a bit of height . . . Priced at $11.95 and $12.95 . . . Munday's, 1203 Douglas St., EV 3-2211.

Toss out your diets and learn to frug (other adaptions known as the frog, monkey, jerk, swim, dog shake and mashed potato) . . . said to be fabulous for streamlining the figure!

An outstanding silver exhibition at Birks . . .

Don't on any account miss dropping by Birks between now and next Thursday . . . to feast your eyes on their current exhibition of modern and antique sterling silver hollowware . . . from France, England, Italy and Spain . . . along with a few exclusive pieces from Birks' own craftshops . . . It's a remarkable collection . . . the sort of thing that doesn't come our way too often . . . and Birks are understandably proud of being able to show it at their stores throughout Canada . . . If you love beautiful things . . . masterpieces of artistry and craftsmanship . . . it will delight you, as it did us . . . There are bowls, candelabra, wine coolers, complete tea and coffee services, soup tureens, compotes, entree dishes . . . plus numerous other objects exquisitely shaped, embossed and chased . . . Some are adorned with sculptured mythical and heraldic figures . . . encrusted with lapis lazuli, malachite and agate in various colors . . . All are of the finest sterling silver, and are mostly one of a kind . . . As you may have suspected, they're pretty costly too . . . but every piece is for sale . . . Indeed a number have already been sold while the exhibition was in Halifax and Montreal . . . We're really lucky to see it so intact before it wends its way back across Canada . . . Birks Jewellers, 706 Yates St., 382-4241.

A skinny double-knitted dress of pink-dotted cotton has long white fishnet sleeves; textured stockings exactly matching the dress in color and pattern.

Laces for life's important days . . .

Graduation days are looming in the horizon . . . wedding bells will be ringing out for many in the months ahead . . . and we don't need to tell those involved in these joyous occasions that now is not a minute too soon to start preparations for the all-important gowns . . . It doesn't take much imagination to visualize charming . . . or even magnificent . . . creations when you see the new fabrics at Saba's . . . To our mind, the laces . . . imported from France and Switzerland . . . present infinite possibilities . . . All we can tell you is that they're completely beautiful . . . There's a real Chantilly . . . delicate and ethereal . . . Alencons, Guipures, re-embroidered laces of all kinds . . . For graduation dresses we especially recommend a dainty nylon lace which is extra wide (54") and costs only $1.98 a yard! . . . In the "magnificent" class is a very exclusive French sequined lace . . . The general color effect is palest pink . . . but it's iridescent and picks up any color you care to team with it . . . Expensive . . . $35 a yard . . . but unbelievably beautiful . . . and you wouldn't need much . . . The other laces run from $9.98 to $11.98 . . . Nothing richer looking nor more universally becoming . . . Saba Bros. Limited, 1130 Douglas St., EV 4-0561.

If you want to teach Junior the value of a dollar, borrow one from him.

It's Cantin's for safe, modern storage . . .

Are you one of those people who's on the wing, so to speak? . . . Maybe duty calls . . . and you're being transferred, temporarily, to some other spot on the globe . . . or again, you're off on a long travel jaunt and plan to rent your house unfurnished . . . Or maybe you've just decided to sell the house and try apartment living instead . . . In any case, you own furniture and other treasured possessions, and you're pondering ways and means of keeping them together and safe from fire, water, moth, theft and other hazards . . . without bankrupting yourself in the process . . . Then hear this: Cantin's can and will store your possessions . . . safeguard them with the utmost efficiency . . . at a very modest cost . . . (Average contents of a 5-room house for around $10 a month) . . . Your peace of mind alone will be worth twice the price! . . . Cantin's wrap your furniture and store it in individual pallets . . . carpets are put in crush-proof tubes . . . pianos given a temperature-controlled room of their own . . . all this in a completely steel and concrete warehouse . . . Mrs. Hugh L. Keenleyside, wife of the chairman of British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority, entertained at a luncheon in her Mayfair Drive home, Friday. Guests included wives of members of the board of directors of Resources for the Future Inc., who are in Victoria for the group's semi-annual meeting. Some of the guests are seen with their hostess, at right. They are, left to right, Mrs. Luther H. Foster, wife of the president of Tuskegee Institute in Alabama; Mrs. Joseph L. Fisher, Washington, D.C., wife of the president; Mrs. Laurance S. Rockefeller, New York, whose husband is president of the Rockefeller Brothers Foundation, founder of the Conservation Foundation and a brother of Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York, and Mrs. Ray G. Williston, wife of provincial minister of lands, forests and water resources. (Bill Halkett photo.)

DEAR ABBY . . .

It Takes Two, Lady!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My daughter-in-law invited my husband and me to have Easter Sunday dinner at their home. Just as we were getting ready to leave for their house, they presented themselves at our home all dressed up. This is the way she put it: "Your son decided to take me out for Easter Sunday dinner instead, just the two of us. Wasn't that sweet of him?" And off they went! Since we had planned to have dinner at their home, I had nothing prepared at home, so my husband and I went to a restaurant and ate by ourselves.

A few days later I found out that my son and his wife went to her parents' home for Easter Sunday dinner. This upset me terribly and has been preying on my mind. What is your opinion of a daughter-in-law like that?

UPSET.

DEAR UPSET: It was a very shabby trick, but your daughter-in-law had to have the full co-operation of your son in order to pull it off, so he is as guilty as she is. Don't let it fester. At the opportune time, tell them both that you are wise, and clear the air.

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of my problem. My husband is retired and his hobby is walking. There's no harm in that, but besides taking long walks outside, he walks back and forth inside our house half the night. He weighs over 200 pounds and when he walks the whole house shakes. I tell him that walking in the house is not the same as walking outside, and he should please go outside and walk around the block as many times as he wants to, but he says I am being unreasonable. I have never asked him to stop walking before 10:30 p.m. I like to go to bed early and, with his feet stamping, I can't tell you how nerve-racking it is. So who's unreasonable?

WALKER'S WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: He is. Ask him to walk to his doctor's. Your husband could be walking himself (or you) into a nervous breakdown.

DEAR ABBY: Somewhere I had heard that during an electrical storm it is always best to leave a cellar window open so that if lightning strikes, it can find a way out of the house. Do you, or any of your readers, know anything about this? My husband has turned it into a big joke, and I have no way of knowing if what I heard was true or false. I hope you can come up with an answer because I am tired of being called "FLASH."

DEAR "FLASH": According to Mr. Charles C. Benford, who has been the chief of the Beverly Hills fire department for 40 years, this is false. Lightning seeks the "ground" (that's the purpose of a lightning rod), not a "way out." Chief Benford added that this tale is superstition — like the old Pennsylvania myth that if you put on shingles by the light of the moon, it will keep them from curling.

The Hair on the Head has finished growing, is dead and incapable of improvement, even by the roots.

• But Can Be Damaged •

Hair Roots are the size of a pin-point, have no digestive properties and cannot be nourished by so-called "Hair Foods" whatever. The average life of each individual hair is from 2 to 6 years, when they naturally drop out and are replaced by a new Growth. The hair root selects the (Keratin) hairs substance, and color (Pigment) from Nature's source the Blood. Hair roots do not die. From the lack of activity, hair roots shrivel and are absorbed.

My exclusive method of "MANIPULATIVE THERAPY" is the answer to hair loss. Caused by a tightened state of the tissues. Causing insufficient supply of blood to the hair root. Receding at the temples, etc., is corrected; this treatment has given UNFAILING SATISFACTION for over 30 years in Victoria, B.C.

Many receive advice — only the wise profit by it.

Dear Mr. Firth:

This is just a few lines to express to you my appreciation for the very excellent job you have done towards restoring the vigour of my hair and now even some of the color. Last fall when you first started your massage, my hair was getting to a very poor condition and one side of my head very sore, but now following a great deal of patience, the whole situation has improved immeasurably. I am indeed grateful for your perseverance. Thank you.

Yours sincerely,
Lily.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Do You Give Your Eyes The Right Kind of Rest?

Lowman

Eyes have been called "windows of the soul." Perhaps that is very poetic but eyes are extremely expressive. They, and perhaps the mouth, give our emotions away most readily.

Of course there is no need to mention how valuable they are to us in other ways, how different life would be without sight. Yet folks constantly abuse their eyes or take them for granted.

Why not give your eyes some special consideration? Many women spend lots of time on eye makeup, and that's wonderful, but they may cheat their orbs in other ways.

Do you read in inadequate lighting? You should have some light in the room beside the bright light by which you are reading.

Do you squint instead of wear glasses when you need them? Sooner or later your arm will not be long enough.

Do you have your eyes examined periodically? They deserve a medical checkup just like the rest of you does. Many cases of glaucoma would be discovered in the early stages, when adequate treatment is available.

Do you subject your eyes to the glare of bright sunlight without the protection of colored glasses? Do you ever give them little rest periods when you are taking a rest? Small cotton pads, dipped in ice water and then placed over the lids are most soothing, especially after being out in the wind and dust or after a long day of reading or sewing.

When using your eyes for long stretches of time take a minute or two once in a while and give them some exercises.

If you would like to have my exercises which are restful to the eyes, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for my leaflet "Keep Something in Your Eye — Keep Beauty." Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Entertain Delegates

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes entertained at a reception this afternoon for delegates attending the convention of the Grand Post of the Native Sons and Daughters of British Columbia being held in Victoria at present. Also attending were members of the 4-H clubs from Maple Ridge and Saanich.

Sunday, the Lieutenant-Governor will cross to Vancouver to attend the Ceremonial Wing Parade at Seaforth Armory parade square to mark Air Cadet Week.

Firemen's Ball

The Empress Hotel ballroom will be the setting next Friday evening for the 50th annual Victoria Fire Department ball. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes head the list of patrons for the event which is held each year in aid of the Mutual Benefit Society. Other patrons include Premier and Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, Mayor and Mrs. R. B. Wilson and fire wardens. Charlie Hunt's orchestra will play for dancing.

For Ellen Voyer

Miss Ellen Voyer, whose marriage takes place this evening, was honored at a grocery shower given by Miss Gail Coppinger of Vancouver at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. W. Potvin, 53 West Maddock Ave. The bride-elect, her mother, Mrs. E. Voyer; her sister, Mrs. B. Barton, Calgary, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. M. Coppinger, were presented with corsages of yellow and red roses. Gifts were held in a decorated basket. Invited guests included Mrs. C. D. Smith, Vancouver; Mrs. J. McKinnon, Mrs. F. Sherman, Mrs. M. Jewell, Mrs. B. Williams, Mrs. M. Anderson, Mrs. R. Mutrie, Mrs. D. Micks, Mrs. D. Wilson, Mrs. M. Conrad, Mrs. B. Girardau, Mrs. E. Siddons, Mrs. P. Minter, Mrs. K. Mortimore, Mrs. E. M. Thorsen, Mrs. I. Quinn, the Misses Judy Williams, Mary Lynn Anderson and Marg Smith.

Cocktail Hour

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald R. Wilde are entertaining at a cocktail party in the Union Club next Wednesday evening. There will be 200 guests.

Couple Wed

The marriage is announced of Carole Deirdrie Coulson to Mr. Daniel William Arnason. The wedding took place in Oak Bay United Church with Rev. L. Calder officiating. Mrs. Ronald Hutton was matron of honor. Best man was Mr. Ronald Hutton. Mrs. L. Readman sang "God Bless This House" during the signing of the register. A reception was held in the War Amputations Hall.

Arrive Soon

Among those from out of town who will be attending the annual meeting of the British Columbia Surgical Society to be held in the city next weekend are Californians Dr. M. Kathleen Belton, Oxnard; Dr. Emily Jane Brown, Monterey Park; Dr. Charles Clay, Long Beach, and Dr. and Mrs. Emmett P. Edward of Bakersfield. Dr. and Mrs. Bentley Colcock of Boston, Mass., will also be attending the three-day meeting to be held in the Empress Hotel.

Reception

Mr. and Mrs. Zane Griffin, who were married in Prince George on April 10, were honored at a reception in the Ingraham Hotel by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Rogers of Victoria, on return from their honeymoon. Mrs. Griffin is the former Doreene May Rogers. She has been teaching home economics at the Prince George High School. The groom is from Portland, Ore. A three-tier wedding cake centred the bridal table, flanked by arrangements of pink gladioli, carnations and snapdragons. Mr. J. McLeod proposed the toast to the bride. The newlyweds will make their home in New Westminster in late June, where Mrs. Griffin will be on the staff of the high school there.

Wedding Guests

Here for the recent marriage of Miss Shirley Clark and Mr. Michael Cole in Centennial United Church were Mr. and Mrs. William E. Clark of Port Hammond, B.C.

Exchange Vows

St. Andrew's Cathedral was the setting on Wednesday evening when Mrs. Annie Mantell Long exchanged vows with Mr. Thomas W. Rapanos in a quiet ceremony. Following a reception at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, the couple left on a honeymoon trip to Harrison Hot Springs. On return, Mr. and Mrs. Rapanos will make their home at 1140 View Street.

To Convention

Victorians who will be attending the convention of the British Columbia Hairdressing Association, to be held in the Bayshore Inn in Vancouver this weekend include Mrs. N. Vida, Mrs. Ben Vivian, Mr. Tibor Uranyi, Mr. Edward Williams, Mr. Danny Hajnal, Mr. George Molner, Mr. K. William, Mrs. V. White, Mr. John Van Amstel, Mr. R. Martino, Mr. John Lolietes and Miss Marcia Darry.

Cousins Meet

Miss Christie Molhoek was in Victoria on Friday and spent the day visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jorgen V. Svendsen of Crescent Road. Mrs. Svendsen is the visitor's cousin. Miss Molhoek arrived in Canada last week. Formerly of Dordrecht, a city near Rotterdam in The Netherlands, Miss Molhoek plans to make her home in Vancouver.

Stardust Ball

The Empress Hotel Ballroom will be the setting for the annual Stardust Ball to be held Friday, May 7, by the City Council of Beta Sigma Phi. The Encores orchestra will play for dancing. Mrs. Leonard Frenette is convener of the ball.

Engagement

Former Victorians Mr. and Mrs. Harry Taylor of Westsyde, Kamloops, announce the engagement of their daughter, Ellen Elsie, to Mr. Stephen Schafer, Kamloops. The wedding will take place on Wednesday, April 28, in the Kamloops United Church.

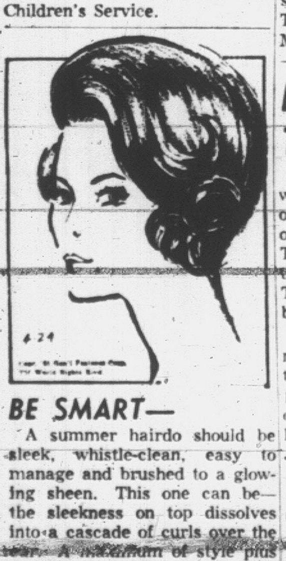
In Hawaii

Holidaying in Hawaii just now are Dr. Denny Dowman and Mr. Merlin Hawes of Victoria. The pair travelled by air to the sunny islands two weeks ago. They will return to the city this Monday.

Director to Speak

Gerald K. Webb, director of Sevenoaks School for Emotionally Disturbed Children, will be the guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club next Monday at 6:15 p.m., in the War Amputations Hall, Oak Bay Avenue.

Special guests will include Mrs. M. Webb, Mrs. M. Ludgate, matron of the B.C. Protestant Orphanage and Mrs. G. McConachie, president of the auxiliary to the Family and Children's Service.



BE SMART—

A summer hairdo should be sleek, whistle-clean, easy to manage and brushed to a glowing sheen. This one can be—the sleekness on top dissolves into a cascade of curls over the ears. A maximum of style plus a minimum of upkeep makes this a warm-weather winner.

Local Architect To Address CAC

Victoria architect, John Wade, will address the Victoria branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada on "Better Housing Today," Monday at 8 p.m. in the B.C. Hydro Flame Room. The meeting is open to members and friends.

CAC members who are planning to attend the convention to be held on Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Tally-Ho Travelodge should contact Mrs. Ralph Penman, 382-3872, or Mrs. R. Jeune, 382-9031.

HAVE TEAPOT, WILL TRAVEL . . . Mme. Jehane Benoit always carries her own teapot with her on her travels across Canada and to Europe. Her current cross-Canada tour is to promote the 11th annual Tea Week, which begins on Monday and continues until next Saturday. Sponsored by the Tea Council of Canada, her trip will find her promoting "the cup that refreshes" from St. John's, Nfld., to Victoria.

She Balks at Beef, Loves Lamb

By PAT DUFOUR

—Mint sauce with roast lamb? "No, no, no!" says Mme. Jehane Benoit, with an expressive shrug of her French-Canadian shoulders. "This business of mint sauce is overdone."

She gives two ideas which she prefers to try with lamb roasts or chops. "I often mix equal parts of currant jelly, Worcestershire sauce and chutney . . . it's delicious! Another thing I do with a roast . . . I chop some fresh mint, mix it with creme de menthe and spread it over the meat five minutes before it's done. It makes a glorious glaze and the perfume is delightful."

NO OBJECTIONS

Not that Mme. Benoit, who was here on a one-day visit this week, has any objection to mint sauce. She tells of one way in which she loves to serve it. "I often bake a potato, slit it and fill with butter, top with cottage cheese and then pour mint sauce over the whole thing. My husband loves it!"

With or without sauce, Mme. Benoit prefers lamb to any other meat. "I like lamb, cheese (we're great cheese eaters), sea food and fruit. I could live on these for ever . . . every other food is just accessories as far as I'm concerned."

Her love of lamb may have been the reason that prompted the Benoits to buy a sheep farm at Knowlton, a few miles from their town home in Montreal. Of course, it could have worked the other way!

LAMBING TIME

Mme. Benoit is not sure what the count in livestock stands at now. "There were 250 when I left but there could be 300 when I get back this weekend. It's lambing season."

Not that the count will stay that high for long. "It's the Greek Easter this weekend and they always buy lots. It's their special holiday dish.

"Those that can afford it roast a whole lamb and often there'll be two or three families to share the feast. They cook everything . . . even the innards . . . they make beautiful soup."

Once you get Mme. Benoit off the subject of lamb, it's almost impossible to stop her raves about tea. This is undoubtedly why the Tea Council chose her as a trans-Canada ambassadress to promote Tea Week which begins Monday.

For that matter, they should have sent her whole family along.

"My daughter, Monique, is married to a man who's an absolute tea fanatic. Howard drinks it all day long and when he's watching the hockey games on television, he settles himself in the living room with his Dutch basket. This is an insulated container that holds quarts of tea. When the rest of men are drinking beer, he sits there refilling his big cup of tea until he's almost awash!"

Does she like tea bags? With a disparaging tilt of her eyebrows she confides, "I don't exactly love them . . . but you can't fight the Indians. There are 86,000 Canadian women using them today."

She even admits that sometimes she stoops to using them herself, when time doesn't allow the traditional tea-making ritual.

This must be fairly often when you take into account her many activities. In addition to pampering her two homes and two grandchildren, Mme. Benoit also finds time to do a weekly television show on cooking for an English-speaking network, two shows a week for a French-speaking radio station, write a cooking page for the Canadian Homes Magazine (she's done this for 14 years), and other columns for a weekly French newspaper. She also founded an 8,000-pupil cooking school.

Where does she get all the energy? "Why, from tea, of course," she parries with a triumphant chuckle.

Queen Sends Message

DIAMOND WEDDING MARKED

Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth sent a message of congratulation to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Griffiths on the occasion of their diamond wedding anniversary last Tuesday.

Greetings were also received by the well-known couple from the Rt. Hon. Lester Pearson, prime minister of Canada; His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, George R. Pearkes; His Honor Lieutenant-Governor R. L. Hanbridge and Mrs. Hanbridge of Saskatchewan, the Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker, Premier and Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, J. Donald Smith, MLA; Waldo Skillings, MLA; Hon. W. N. Chant, Mr. and Mrs. W. Bushy of Kindersley, Sask.; Mr. and Mrs. A. Merkley and Bill Turner, Springwater, Sask.

Mr. and Mrs. Griffiths were married in Penetanguishene, Ont., in 1905. They lived in Saskatchewan before coming to Victoria in 1947.

They have two daughters, Mrs. R. C. Cameron, McBride, B.C., and Mrs. H. W. Turner, Springwater, Sask. There are also eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

FAMILY DINNER

To celebrate the anniversary, a family dinner was held in the Sunday school room of Fairfield United Church hall. A three-tier anniversary cake centred the head table.

Grace was said by Dr. H. W. Kerley and the toast to the guests of honor was proposed by Rev. A. M. Angus.

"The Lord's Prayer" was sung by Rev. Cecil Barner, accompanied by Mrs. K. Pullyblank. Miss Grace Barner read a poem composed by her mother, Mrs. A. Barner and dedicated to Mr. and Mrs. Griffiths.

Rev. Kerley gave the benediction. Master of ceremonies was Sam McCullough.

Guests included Rev. and Mrs. Kerley, Rev. and Mrs. Angus, Rev. and Mrs. Barner, Mrs. Ada Barner, Mrs. Pollyblank, Mrs. E. Hartley, Mrs. E. Harkness, Mrs. M. Baillie, Mrs. M. Lambie, Mr. Douglas Barner, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Horwood, Mr. and Mrs. A. Schroeder, Mr. and Mrs. R. Osland, Mr. and Mrs. H. Horst, Mr. Edward Horst, Errol Horst, Mrs. M. Meville, Mrs. E. Meville, Mrs. M. Hepworth, Mrs. B. Jacques, Mrs. D. Fraser, Mr. H. W. Turner, Mr. and Mrs. S. McCullough and the Misses Grace Barner, Doreen Pashley, Diane Wood, Mary Tidball, Wendy McDiarmid, Betty Lynn Turner.

Following the dinner Mrs. Cameron and Mrs. Turner entertained at an open house for Mr. and Mrs. Griffiths in their Sutlej Street home.

Presiding at the refreshment table were Mrs. Barner and Mrs. Jacques.

Serviteurs were Mrs. McDiarmid, Mrs. Horst and Miss Betty Lynn Turner, granddaughters of the couple; Miss Wendy McDiarmid, great-granddaughter, and Mrs. McDonald, a niece.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD JACOBY

This hand from England is a real gem. East's double of four clubs was rather questionable and if West had led a club against the spade slam it would have made the play a cinch but West made the brilliant opening lead of his singleton trump.

Opening lead—♠ 3

East took his ace and led a second trump which was won in dummy. At this point if you look at all the cards you may not see how South made the hand but he did and there was no defence to beat him.

The key was in that double of four clubs. Declarer led dummy's king of clubs and East covered. Now declarer ruffed and simply ran off all his trumps.

This brought everyone down to five cards. The dummy held three hearts, a diamond and the jack of clubs. West was down to the queen of clubs and four red cards. He elected to keep three hearts and one diamond while East hung on to three diamonds and two hearts.

Now all South had to do was to cash his two good diamonds and West was squeezed in hearts and clubs.

If West had elected to unaguard hearts and hold diamonds, East would have been able to guard the hearts but would have had to unguard the diamonds, whereupon declarer would have led a heart to dummy's king and cashed the ace to squeeze poor West between diamonds and that same queen of clubs.

SHAWNIGAN BEACH HOTEL
Shawnigan Lake

Make plans to get away from sea level for a while.

Come up to the well-known change of air at Shawnigan—warmer—softer.

Good, too, for tensions—good for nerves—or just if you are a bit run down.

Try a day or two, or stay longer. You will notice the difference and feel great.

A very comfortable family hotel with a beautiful setting in 30 acres of grounds. Owned and operated for many years by the Hurleys.

Peaceful surroundings.

Plenty to do if you want to, or just sit.

Home of "The Fire That Is Never Out."

Fine library, bridge, "socializing," pitch and putt golf, tennis, boats, fishing, woodland walk and many other things.

PRICES AND INFORMATION?
Just phone collect, 743-9303 or 743-2312. Write Denis Mason Hurley, P.O. Box 9, Shawnigan Lake

THERE WERE THREE

The only house of this design in Canada, replicas grace Europe and Australia. Designed by John di Castri to the specifications of its present owner. 34,000 people inspected this unique property 12 years ago, some to thrill to its beauty and seclusion, others to scoff at its being "way way out." ¾ of an acre of park-like property affords seclusion and a beautiful view of city and mountains. It would be sacrilege to do so, but the property can be subdivided. The location is high on Richmond; the price, $25,000. 1964 REGIONAL DESIGN OF MERIT AWARD UNIVERSITY-SHELBOURNE AREA

This contemporary house design has been awarded the 1964 Regional Design of Merit by the Canadian Housing Design council. It features an exterior of rustic siding with attractive wood and stucco panelling. The entrance foyer leads to the large living room with interesting mondrian windows, a fireplace and planter. The good sized dining room also has mondrian windows and the oriental screening adds interest and privacy. The family room, so important in the opinion of the various housing requirement polls is a good size, close to the kitchen and the patio-sundeck. The galley type kitchen provides the most efficient working area — fewer steps — less work. The bedrooms and closet areas are larger than in most houses and feature louvred sliding doors for fresher clothing. The master bedroom suite has its own 2-piece bathroom with a large L-shaped vanity. The basement is large and suitable for a rumpus room or additional bedrooms. This is the home for the discriminating buyer located in the fastest appreciating area in Victoria. NHA 6¼% mortgage. Various financial arrangements possible. Full price $18,950.

'Post-Prison Checks Might Have Helped'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Post-prison supervision of William Russell Spears, 59, might have kept him from shooting RCMP constable Neil Bruce and subsequently committing suicide, George Street, chairman of the national parole board, said Friday.

Mr. Street, here to confer with authorities on parole matters, said in an interview post-prison checks on Spears "would have acted as a deterrent."

Spears killed himself with a single rifle bullet April 19, nine days after he fatally wounded Const. Bruce when the officer approached his cabin near Kelowna to check a complaint by neighbors that a girl was being held against her will.

Under the existing penal system, only prisoners released on parole are supervised while men who complete their full terms are released without any program of periodic checks with authorities.

Mr. Street said he agreed to suggestions that the system be changed to provide supervision for all prisoners. However such supervision could not be provided by the parole board, he said.

"We haven't enough parole officers to do the regular parole work.

"There should be more treatment facilities outside our prisons than there are now."

He said forensic clinics to treat sexual offenders should be established from coast to coast.

The public is giving increasing acceptance to the parole system and tremendous improvements have been made in the federal penal system in Canada, he said.

Unusual Film Shows Life Under Water

One of the most unusual underwater documentary films Village Beneath the Sea received a rousing welcome from an appreciative audience Friday night.

The premiere showing in Victoria of the underwater color film played to a full house at Oak Bay Junior High Auditorium. The program will be presented again tonight at 8 p.m.

A classic among underwater films Village Beneath the Sea was presented in person by its producer, Harry Pederson.

His work includes contributions to Walt Disney productions such as Twenty Thousand Leagues Under The Sea and Mysteries of the Deep.

Filmed 15 feet below the warm and clear waters off the western end of New Providence, The Bahamas, the action centres on and around the coral reef formations.

The movie tells the story of a sort of topsy turvy underwater Alice In Wonderland type of life.

On Cruise To Bellingham

About 80 officers and men of HMCS Malahat, Victoria's naval reserve division, are on a training cruise to Bellingham, Washington, this weekend.

The reservists are in 80-foot vessels of the Pacific Command's auxiliary training unit.

Their training includes pilotage, officer-of-the-watch manoeuvres, seamanship and communications.

They were to rendezvous with another vessel from HMCS Discovery, Vancouver's naval reserve division, before reaching the U.S. port.

Commanding the training squadron is Capt. Peter Thomas, commanding officer of HMCS Malahat.

Root Elected President

Gordon Root of Gordon Root and Associates Ltd., of Victoria, has been elected president of the Public Relations Society of B.C.

Other officers named were Fred Moonen, Council of B.C. Forest Industries, vice-president; Seymour Park, B.C. Forest Service, secretary; S. R. Wilson, Williams and Wilson Ltd., treasurer.

Directors are D. Hal Holden, Crown Zellerbach Canada Limited; R. T. Rudd, Aluminum Company of Canada Ltd., G. Doug Mackie, Ford Motor Company of Canada Ltd., and Roy Minter, White Pass and Yukon Route.

City Boys' Club Selects Queen

The crowning moment of Boys Club week in Victoria came Friday with the installation of the Boys Club queen.

Queen Sharon Holland, 16, was selected from among the sisters of club members. She was crowned in a ceremony at the club hall, 1240 Yates Street, by her 14-year-old brother David.

It was a fun-filled week for the more than 700 members.

Many of the events presented good competition. Winners of some of the events were: Arthur Holland, physical fitness—15 chin-ups on the high bar; Douglas Spence, model car contest and Tim Gilmore, bike roadeo.

CLIFFHANGER RACE

Manchester U., Leeds Both Win

LONDON (AP) — Leeds United and Manchester United won their matches today and now fight out a cliff-hanging finish to the English League soccer championship as a discipline-weakened Chelsea team dropped out of the running.

Leeds United won 3-0 in an away game against Sheffield United and lead Manchester United by one point.

Manchester United defeated Liverpool, England's European Cup semi-finalists, 3-0 and still remain favorites to take the title and qualify for next season's European Cup.

Manchester, sparked by two goals from Denis Law, has 59 points to Leeds United's 60. But Leeds has only one remaining match. Manchester United has two games to play next week.

Chelsea, the team that hit the headlines this week when manager Tommy Docherty sent home eight of his first team players for breaking curfew, crashed 6-2 at Burnley. Chelsea with one game to play has only 56 points and is out of the championship race.

The eight players disciplined by Chelsea manager Docherty did not play in today's game. They watched from the stands.

The banned players included stars such as club captain Terry Venables, England centre forward Barry Bridges and Scottish fullback Eddie McCreadie.

USES RESERVES

Docherty patched up his team with reserves and youngsters. But this courageous decision—taken for disciplinary reasons—did not pay off.

And the man who belted Chelsea was Burnley's inside right Andy Lockhead who got five of Burnley's six goals.

Now the most thrilling finish in years to the English championship rests between Leeds and Manchester — with Leeds still having a chance of completing the league and Cup double. Leeds play Liverpool in the FA Cup final at Wembley Stadium next Saturday.

Leeds took the lead against Sheffield United through Jim Storrie before half time and then another two goals from Billy Bremner and Alan Peacock made the game safe in the second half.

Meanwhile, Manchester was giving Liverpool, who play inter Milan of Italy in the European Cup, a few lessons in soccer.

Law scored for Manchester in the 40th minute and then netted a second in the 59th minute. Manchester's final goal came from winger John Connelly in the 82nd minute.

Law injured his leg and was off the field for 15 minutes.

Wolverhampton and Birmingham drop into the Second Division and Newcastle and Northampton move up into the premier division.

'Trulv' Catholic Plan Started

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Representatives of six U.S. Protestant denominations decided this week to start drafting a specific plan for a united church "truly catholic, truly evangelical, and truly reform."

The step came at the fourth annual consultation on church union, which for three years has been exploring the possibility of attempting such a plan.

The six denominations involved are the Episcopal (Anglican), Methodist, Christian Disciples, Evangelical United Brethren, United Presbyterian and United Church of Christ. They have a total of 23,000,000 members.

Rev. Eugene Carson Blake of Philadelphia, United Presbyterian chief executive, said many delegates feel the consultation can't progress much farther until it begins to set forth its goals.

Union will require approval of rank-and-file church members.

SEA BASKET IN PASTURE

The directors of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce are not too impressed with Victoria's new slogan "Flower Basket by the Sea."

Several members at Friday's regular directors meeting said they thought the slogan contest had been a success in so far as it focused attention on chamber work.

"But," said Dick Batey whose brainchild the slogan contest was, "I must admit the slogan doesn't do much for me."

The directors decided to leave the slogan free for anyone desiring to use it. But they balked at making it the official slogan of the city.

Firm Blasts Proposed Road Change

Proposed traffic flow improvement on north Douglas was protested by a lumber yard today because left-turning southbound traffic will be banned at Larch Street.

Saanich Lumber Yard wrote city hall complaining of the proposal to turn some 600 feet of centre lane into left turn holding lane for Finlayson intersection.

The firm, on the corner of Larch, recently made its main access Larch Street, which is only about 240 feet south of Finlayson.

A distance of 350 feet north of Finlayson also would be reserved for left turn traffic onto Finlayson.

At present, the centre lane on north Douglas is left turn lane for most of the street up to Saanich Road.

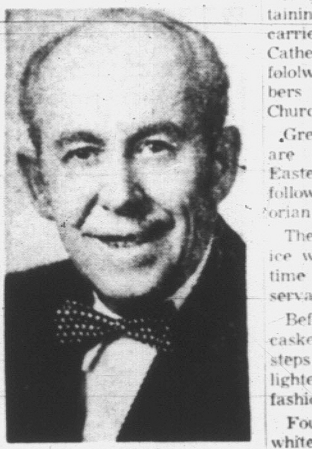
Colorful Service as Greeks Celebrate Arrival of Easter



TOMS
... after Easter

A flower-decked casket containing a figure of Christ was carried through Christ Church Cathedral Friday night and fololwed by more than 200 members of the Greek Orthodox Church bearing lighted candles.

Greeks throughout the world are observing this week as Easter weekend because they follow the Julian, not the Gregorian calendar.

The colorful Epitaphios service was held here for the first time as the official Greek observance of Good Friday.

Before the service began, the casket was placed on the altar steps of the cathedral, with lighted candles and a cross fashioned with white lilies.

Four small girls in flowing white robes stood by the casket carrying white baskets of rose petals and later followed it down the main aisle of the church and around the cathedral block.

Members of the congregation followed carrying lighted candles.

Father John Floropoulos of Vancouver conducted the service, which is symbolically a funeral service for Christ. The Lord's Prayer was recited in Greek—the language in which the New Testament was originally written.

A native of Athens, Father Floropoulos cme to British Columbia 11 years ago. He explained that the Greek Orthodox Church was originally part of the Roman Catholic faith.

"The division occurred in the 11th century," he said. "It was partly due to a difference of opinion over the authority of the Pope."

GUEST preacher in Fairfield United Church Sunday morning will be Very Rev. Dr. Hugh A. McLeod, former moderator of the United Church of Canada. The resident minister, Rev. Dr. H. W. Kerley will conduct baptisms at this service and Mrs. Dorothy Dawson will sing I know that my Redeemer liveth.

Significance Of Ascension Church Topic

The Importance and Significance of the Ascension of Christ into Glory will be the post-Easter subject of Rev. R. E. S. Toms in the Apostolic Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

"The message will deal in part with an event that took place after the Ascension and is now stirring the great church denominations from coast to coast," says Mr. Toms.

Rev. Neil Moore, outstanding evangelist and musician, will play in the church Monday and Tuesday at 8 p.m. The public will be welcome.

Man's Search For Answers Film Topic

Where did man come from? Why is he here? Where is he going?

Such questions are answered in the film Man's Search for Happiness, to be presented in the Victoria Morman Chapel, 2990 Quadra Street, May 1 at 7:30 p.m.

The film was shown in the Morman Pavilion at the New York World's Fair and has been booked for Victoria by two Mormon missionaries now working here.

They are Elders Ronald Bower from Melba, Idaho and Roland Anderson, Alamo, Nevada, both stationed at 2990 Quadra Street.

They expect to be in Victoria for at least six months, but are subject to transfer at any time. There are six Mormon missionaries in Victoria and about 145 in B.C. and Alaska.

Man In Hurry Leaves Scene, Found Guilty

A young man in a hurry was convicted Friday in Oak Bay court of careless driving and failing to remain at an accident scene.

Norman Abbott, 1239 Oliver, was remanded o May 7 for sentence. Abbott was involved in an accident March 9 on Hampshire in which he collided with a parked car.

His lawyer said the accused was late for an appointment and it was worry over this that caused him to drive off after stopping briefly.

Sermons To Glow In Sky

ESSEN, West Germany (Reuters)—Biblical texts and short sermons glow in letters against the sky over industrial Essen as the Roman Catholic church uses the latest advertising methods to preach to a mass audience.

The texts are flashed across the city from a moving electrical signboard erected on top of a skyscraper in the heart of the city.

It is believed to be the first time that such a signboard has been used for religious purposes.

The signboard, dedicated by the Bishop of Essen, Franz Hengsbach, will carry religious messages twice daily, during the morning and evening rush hours.

Child Safety Day Trumpeted For May 2

Two proclamations were announced today designating Child Safety Day and National Insurance Women's Day in B.C.

Child Safety Day was set for Sunday, May 2, "to focus attention on the tragic and needless toll of accidental deaths and injuries suffered by the children of our province."

The proclamation, signed by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, noted that 149 children under the age of 10 years died in accidents last year and another 8,881 were hospitalized.

National Insurance Women's Day will be observed Tuesday, May 18 in B.C., the other proclamation said.

BEFORE MEN'S CLUB

Newsman Relates Odd Experiences

A bag of egg and tomato sandwiches nearly disturbed the dignity of the Queen's wedding to Prince Philip in Westminster Abbey in 1947, Norman Cribbens of the Victoria Times told the Men's Club of Metropolitan United Church this week.

Speaking on Adventures in Journalism, Mr. Cribbens said he and other correspondents took sandwiches to the wedding because they were virtually imprisoned in a wooden grandstand constructed high up at the back of the Abbey.

Regulations required them to be in their seats three hours before the ceremony began.

"I foolishly placed my sandwiches on the ledge in front of the grandstand," Mr. Cribbens said, "and they were nearly pushed over the side by a passing woman reporter in a fur coat.

"Monarchs and ambassadors of other countries were assembled in the pews below. And, with my heart in my mouth, I snatched back the sandwiches in time.

"To this day I've wondered what would have happened if some royal head had been smitten by a descending package of egg and tomato."

SERIOUS NOTE

On a more serious note, the speaker said he believed in the symbolic value of the Crown and thought most people saw in the Queen's wedding an idealization of their own marriages — past, present or future.

"In essence, it was much the same as any other church wedding, but it was ennobled by the glorious music and splendid pageantry."

Mr. Cribbens said one of the ironies of journalism is that reporters sometimes dine with kings and princes and great captains of industry while wondering how they were going to pay the electric light bill.

Recalling his early experiences as a student seeking entry into journalism, Mr. Cribbens told of approaching a dour Scottish editor who said:

"Do ye know what ah'd do if a son of mine wanted to join a newspaper?"

There was an awful pause, then he added:

"I'd drown him—it would be kinder in the end!"

Pr. Rupert Drowning

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Arthur Witzke, 25, identified as a native of Ontario, drowned Thursday afternoon when his rented skiff overturned in the rough waters of Prince Rupert harbor. The body was recovered half an hour later 20 yards from shore.

BEFORE HOGUE INQUEST JURY

Comment on Killings Hit

VANCOUVER (CP) — A lawyer charged before an inquest jury Friday that the press, senior police officers and civic officials have no right to comment on the violent deaths of Constable Leonard Hogue and his family.

H. A. D. Oliver, counsel for the Vancouver Policeman's Union, made the attack in a special statement granted by coroner J. P. Wellwood.

Police spokesmen have said that Hogue, a victim with his wife and six children in a murder-suicide Tuesday, was under suspicion in the February robbery of $1,250,000 in cancelled money from a Vancouver warehouse.

Mr. Oliver said a host of unrelated matters had been introduced into the investigation of the deaths and he hoped the jury would be spared further interference of this kind.

The six jurors viewed the bodies of Hogue, his wife and six children, heard medical evidence and the lawyer's statement, and then were released until a police investigation of the deaths is complete. Officials said this would be done within two weeks.

Mr. Oliver sought to establish that Hogue might have suffered a brain injury in an automobile accident less than 24 hours before the shootings.

DAMAGE POSSIBLE

A pathologist, the family's doctor, and a doctor who closed a cut on Hogue's head with six stitches after the accident agreed that brain damage was possible although there was no indication of a brain injury.

Hogue was described by the family doctor, Dr. Leonard Zimich, as a good father who did not show signs of any depressive or psychotic condition.

Pathologist Frederick L. Sturrock said a sample of Hogue's blood showed no evidence of alcohol or barbiturates. He agreed at the suggestion of a jury member to check for traces of narcotic drugs or tranquilizers.

The jury was told all members of the family died instantly of multiple skull fractures and brain injuries inflicted by gunshot wounds. No evidence was given to indicate who might have fired the weapon.

NEWS OF CHURCHES

Nurses to Seek Higher Guidance

Graduate nurses from Royal Jubilee Hospital will pray for spiritual guidance in their vital work at the 11 a.m. service in Christ Church Cathedral Sunday.

"It is fitting they should be here because the hospital was founded by an earlier dean of the cathedral," writes Dean Brian Whitlow.

"To them we say: May God go with you and may you be the means of bringing comfort and health to many people."

Archbishop Harold Sexton will address the nurses.

Rev. E. W. S. Gilbert will speak at the service of family communion and instruction at 9:30 a.m. The dean will preach at the 7:30 Evensong.

Honorary DD Honor Looms For Chaplain

Command Chaplain Andrew J. Mowatt, has been chosen to receive an honorary Doctorate of Divinity degree May 6 at McGill University, Montreal.

The degree will be awarded by the university's theological college.

Chaplain Mowatt came to the Pacific Command in 1958 from the navy's training establishment HMCS Cornwallis, near Digby, N.S.

He has held his present appointment since May, 1963. Chaplain Mowatt joined the Canadian army in 1942 and served in the United Kingdom and Europe during the Second World War.

He accompanied the Queen's Own Rifles during the D-Day Normandy invasion and also during the action preceding the liberation of Antwerp.

Federalists Get Support Of Area MPs

George Chatterton, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, and Colin Cameron, (NDP) Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) are among 63 members of parliament who are members of the World Federalists of Canada.

National president is Prof. C. S. Burchill of Royal Roads.

He said 63 MPs now belong to the federalists including Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing and Agricultural Minister Harry Hays.

Dr. Harvey Richardson, a scientific officer at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, was elected president of the Victoria branch this week.

Can you find a route that starts starts at A and ends at B in which the numbers you touch total 100?

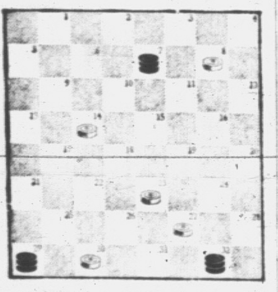
Moves may be made as the king moves in chess—that is, one square in any direction vertically, horizontally or diagonally.

There are several ways of reaching the required total in as few as 17 moves.

Remember, you are to begin at A and end at B. Numbers you touch are to total 100.

Answer: One way to do it in 17 moves is: A, 7, 5, 7, 5, 7, 5, 5, 7, 9, 7, 7, 9, 5, 7, 3, 5, B. Another: A, 7, 5, 5, 7, 7, 5, 7, 7, 9, 7, 9, 5, 1, 7, 7, 5, B. Other solutions are also possible.

IT'S YOUR TURN TO WIN



A clever twist wraps up this checker contest. White checkers, moving up the board, to move first and win in four moves is the challenge. After you have found out how it is done, we think you will agree that checkers can be a highly intriguing game.

Long-time champ Millard Hopper's solution to this problem is given below.

Solution: White, 30-25; Black, 29-22. White, 25-18; Black, 32-23 (or 22-15). White, 8-3; Black, 22-15 (or 32-23). White, 3-10-19-26.

MASTER REVERSE ENGLISH?

In each of the following sentences, the word needed in the first blank will, reversed, satisfactorily replace the second blank. For example: teem is the reverse of meet.

1. The patient's knees began to —— as the —— took effect.
2. Hecklers —— the speaker when he arrived to —— his speech.
3. —— tennis players had battled each other across that net in three games.
4. Joe said he —— there and —— you.

Answers: 1. Sag, gas. 2. Reviled, deliver. 3. Ten, net. 4. Was, saw.

IT'S A TAKE-OFF PROBLEM

Try this puzzler on your friends. Place twelve pennies, dimes or buttons, in a square, as shown here. There will be four coins on each side.

Now ask your friend to take away two coins (that is, leaving ten), and still have four coins on each side.

See if you can work it out for yourself before consulting the answer.

Solution to Above: Take away No. 11 and No. 2. Place No. 6 upon No. 4 and No. 9 upon No. 10. You then have four in each row.

SIMPLY SPEAK IN NORMAL TERMS

Normal in a medical sense means general or average. To be above normal in this test, you must give normal answers to all three of the following questions:

1. Normal heartbeat of the average adult is 60—72—86 times per minute.
2. Normal body temperature for the average person is 69.8—89.6—98.6 degrees.
3. Normal blood supply of the average person is 3—5—10 liters.

Answers: 1. Seventy-two. 2. Ninety-eight point six. 3. Five liters.

FENCE WITH THIS POSER

It isn't necessary that you be a farmer to be able to answer this question: If one mile of fence encloses a field of forty acres, what area, in acres, will two miles of fence enclose?

Think this over before answering.

Answer: One hundred and sixty acres. The enclosure around forty acres would be one-fourth mile by one-fourth mile in area. The two miles of fence would provide an enclosure one-half mile by one-half mile in area, or four times as large.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Phrases now in common speech testify how widely persons have listened to, and perhaps been influenced by certain men and women. Can you supply what's omitted here in a quotation from the past?

"I am climbing a difficult road; but the —— gives me strength."—Propertius.

What five-letter word did the Roman poet use where the blank appears?

Answer: The missing word is "glory."

WOOD THAT YOU KNEW?

Clues to the names of half a dozen different trees are listed below. Put on your thinking cap and see if you can guess what trees they are.

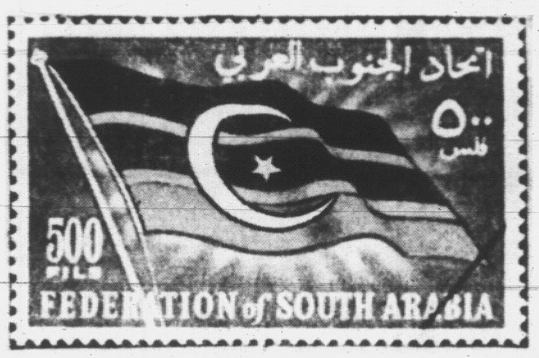
1. Yearn.
2. End of a cigar.
3. Well liked.
4. Old Andy Jackson.
5. There's a fish in it.
6. Animal pelt.

Hint: Tree No. 1 is green the year 'round. 'Nuff said?

Answers: 1. Pine. 2. Ash. 3. Poplar. 4. Hickory. 5. Basswood. 6. Fir.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE



Our albums will no longer start off alphabetically with the colony of Aden, for the territory has lately joined the Federation of South Arabia. Stamps bearing the new designation supercede the no wobsolete Aden series.

Actually the change was first foreshadowed philatelically as far back as Nov. 25, 1963, when two stamps inscribed with the new name were issued to mark the centenary of the International Red Cross.

★ ★ ★

Aden has a history that goes into the far distant past: in fact it could hardly go back further, for it is the legendary burial place of Cain!

The port was referred to in the Book of Ezekiel, written 4,000 years ago, and was the place from which the Queen of Sheba set out on her visit to Kilng Solomon.

It has been said that the Magi foregathered here before going to Bethlehem. It was occupied by the Romans, the Turks, and, around 1650, by the Yemeni Arabs.

Following a piratical attack by its inhabitants on an East Indiaman, the town was captured by the East India Co., and later was an important coaling station. It now has over 200,000 inhabitants.

During the last few years negotiations wit hadjacent warring Arab tribal groups have been concluded, and it is now hoped that the Federation will successfully put an end to years of unsettled conditions.

The new series of stamps consists of nine values. The lower denominations feature the crest of the country, while the higher values depict the flag.

★ ★ ★

According to figures recently released at Ottawa, 255,000 of the last 50c were issued with the G overprint, which is only about one quarter of the number for the $1 Totem G's., This seems strange, as most dealers would probably guess that the figures should be reversed, judging from the relative numbers available on the market.

In last week's article it was mentioned that there were three of the Tonga "Coins" issue revalued. It now appears that eight different denominations were surcharged.

A. Before I was born, my father married the sister of his widow. How was that possible?

B. "His mother was my mother's only child." What was the relationship?

Answers: A. He married the sister first. B. Her son.

WHOM DID HE SEE?

A person with a Cockney accent at Winston Churchill's funeral was heard to call excitedly to a friend: "'Ere 'e his now."

You can find the name of the famous personage to whom he was referring by rearranging the letters in the remark.

Answer: Rearrange the letters to spell "Eisenhower."

LET'S TALK SHOP

The local pet shop has in stock rabbits, chicks and hamsters. It has more rabbits than chicks. The rabbits and chickens together have heads and feet totalling 100. The hamsters are only one-third of the number of the others combined. How many of each?

Answer—There are eight hamsters, 14 rabbits and 10 chicks.

FIGURING 'AT CROSS-PORPOISES

Answer in 30 seconds: What is the total distance covered by an angry porpoise that makes five jumps up in the air, each 11 feet high?

Answer: One hundred ten feet up and down.

There is something unusual about the critter that is scurrying about the countryside above. It has no tail. That is to say, it has a tail, but the artist didn't include it in the picture. What animal can it be? To find out, simply connect dots consecutively from 1 to 20.

ELECTRONIC EFFICIENCY

City Hall of Tomorrow To Be in Computer Age

By AB KENT
Times City Hall Reporter

Tomorrow's city hall will hum with electronic efficiency on a background of automated assistance.

The computer age in civic administration is waiting impatiently in the wings to enter public business here as it has in city halls across the country.

Officials take the first firm step to set the pattern in motion when they advertise next month for the key post of program supervisor.

There is $10,000 in 1965 estimates for salary and machine rentals that will allow a modest beginning to be made in the streamlining of accounting, water and tax billing, purchasing, payroll and other systems at city hall.

Ultimately, if current thinking proceeds, the whole routine in the vital comptroller's section will be new.

EXISTING STAFF

Procedures will change, specialists will be hired or retrained from existing staff, fewer personnel will be needed to put out equivalent work in shorter time.

But the preparation of the material to be handled by the sophisticated computer age machines will still need the qualities, numbers and capabilities of today's staff.

In other words the human element will remain.

Application of computer techniques is almost limitless. It will be up to the program supervisor to oversee staff and machines as well as to program automated work and discover new applications in many city hall departments.

He will be a sort of personnel officer with control over human and electronic employees.

None of the details have had final clearance at city council level, although the 1965 estimates are through their first hurdle.

Officials, who have been investigating automated techniques for months, hope to start with four machines:

Two for card punching, or transferring written information onto index cards that can be "read" by machine;

A verifier, to check material punched onto cards;

A sorter, to put cards in a particular order.

These are regarded as the nucleus of a computer system.

In addition to these aids, the programmer will send work to a computer centre on a monthly or annual basis to deal with specialized problems such as the annual budget.

Eventually, the city might need its own computer machine when full utilization warrants the step.

EVERYONE'S DOING IT

Victoria Paint Up Drive Catches Fire

A sharp upswing in popularity of the city's paint-up program is reported today by architectural consultant Roderick Clack.

City hall special projects office has 45 applications from downtown businesses and landlords wanting to take part in Paint-Up 65, compared with only 40 completed jobs in 1964.

Only the first month of the downtown improvement campaign has passed.

Efforts are being concentrated this year on the area bounded by Broad, Yates, Government and Trounce Alley, in which it is expected the entire block will be painted.

But the paint-up area in which owners are asked to make improvements extends beyond this focal point.

Work will be done on Fisgard, Blanshard, Johnson, View, Fort, Cormorant, Bastion and Pandora.

Mr. Clack said experience gained from last year's plan dealing with paint-up co-ordination is showing "definite results."

Helping promote the plan is Victoria Real Estate Board.

The architect said co-operation of the board will be asked in follow-up work in area one, covered by the 1964 campaign, and including "tourist row" on Government, where many persons get their first impression of the city.

IMPAIRED

Remanded In Crash

Donald Graber, 1970 Fort Street, pleaded guilty in Oak Bay Court Friday to impaired driving on Estevan April 2.

Crown Prosecutor Alan Bigelow said Graber was involved in a collision that afternoon at the junction with Beach Drive.

A breath test showed Graber had a blood alcohol level of .19 per cent. He was remanded to May 7 when he asked to keep his licence for business purposes.

Margaret Dighton, 1327 Beach Drive, was fined $350 and ordered to drive only on business for four months. She pleaded guilty at an earlier hearing in Oak Bay court to driving while impaired.

Two young men were each fined $50 when they pleaded guilty to consuming liquor in a public place.

John Hunter, 2607 Shelbourne, and John Langdon, 2236 Lincoln, were checked by police late on the night of April 2 behind the Club Tango. They admitted to police they had been drinking beer outside their car.

Environment Quality Subject of Project

Resources for the Future Incorporated is to undertake a giant research program on the quality of the environment of modern society.

Joseph L. Fisher, president of the organization devoted to research, said the study was already under way but would take several years to complete.

Mr. Fisher was in Victoria Friday for the semi-annual meeting of the directors of the organization.

Dr. Hugh L. Keenleyside, chairman of B.C. Hydro and the lone Canadian on the organization's board of directors, was host at luncheon for the group.

Premier Bennett was a guest at the luncheon.

"We have just completed a study of the natural resources of the North American continent," Mr. Fisher said. "We are now moving from the field of quantity to the field of quality."

He said the new program would carefully study problems of water pollution, air pollution, pesticides, urban development "in fact anything and everything that produces the environment in which we live."

RESEARCH STAFF

While the organization has a permanent research staff it also makes grants to universities to pursue certain lines of study.

"We have made grants to UBC and even a small one to the University of Victoria," he said.

Members of the executive in Victoria for Friday's meeting included Laurence S. Rockefeller, president of Rockefeller Brothers Fund Inc., William S. Paley, chairman of the board, Columbia Broadcasting System, Erwin D. Canham, editor-in-chief of the Christian Science Monitor, L. H. Foster, president of Tuskegee Institute, Edwin S. Mason, dean of the graduate school of public administration, Harvard Uniersity and several top economists.

After lunch the group was taken on a tour of the city and Butchart's Gardens.

They resume their business sessions today in Vancouver.

YOUTHFUL LOVERS DIE IN FLAMING SUICIDE

SAYREVILLE, N.J. (UPI) The wind off the bay sent the flames crackling through the brush and high grass for half a square mile. No one knew it consumed two teen-aged lovers.

The fire roared through the tinder-dry weeds for more than an hour on a strip of land south of Staten Island, 30 miles from Times Square.

Firemen put the fire out Thursday night and left.

Tormented by her parents' objections to the romance, the girl had written a note and she left it in a wallet at her home here.

"I want to be buried with Jack," it said.

The bodies of Virginia Zubrick, 16, a high school sophomore honor student, and John Connors, 18, a tall grave worker from nearby South Amboy, were found Friday clinging together on the lonely strip of burnt land.

Vital B.C. Interest

Japanese Trade Here At New High

(Next month the B.C. government will send a substantial trade mission to Japan, headed by Premier Bennett. Behind this move is a major boom, not only in Japanese trade with B.C. and the rest of Canada, but in Japanese investment in our industry. In two articles Times business editor Jim Hume examines this background.)

By JIM HUME

Japanese-Canadian trade, booming since the late 1950's, took a $16,000,000 leap in 1964 when exports through B.C. ports hit a record $272,894,736.

The record came as no surprise to government officials who early last year confidently predicted that the $256.4 million mark set in 1963 would easily be passed.

They are equally confident that before 1965 ends trade with Japan will be pushing $300,00,000.

Their forecast is not as fearless as it might sound.

Since 1959 when Canadian exports to Japan via B.C. were $119 million sales figures have climbed at a rapid rate.

In 1960 B.C. ports cleared $138 million in raw materials, wheat and other products destined for Japan.

A year later the total had climbed to $173.9 million and in 1962, the year the Japanese cut back on buying, still managed a three million dollar increase to reach the $176.9 million mark.

Second Boom

In the wake of the trading boom which has seen trading figures double in five years has come a second boom in the investment of Japanese capital in Canada.

To date most of that investment has been made in B.C. with mining projects the main target.

But there are signs, such as the recently announced automobile assembly plant in Nova Scotia, that the Japanese are starting to expand both their buying and their investment horizons.

Alberta makes no secret of the fact that it looks with envy on B.C.'s role of prime target for Japanese buying and investment.

Minister of Industry Russ Patrick says his government is doing all it can to encourage the Japanese to look beyond the Rockies for new fields to conquer.

"But," he adds, "compared with Japanese developed business with British Columbia I would have to say that ours is in its infancy."

Japan does buy some coal from Alberta and is looking for more. She buys potash from Saskatchewan and a limited amount of ore from Manitoba, but B.C., with average annual sales of around $120,000,000 to Japan, still tops the list.

Not that the prairie provinces are not profiting from the Japanese search for raw materials and food.

Big Grain Sales

For the past five years wheat purchases from Canada, all shipped through B.C. ports, have hovered around the $90 million mark.

In 1964, for example, Japan paid $98 million for Canadian wheat, close to $4,000,000 for

Cyprus Armed Posts Being Dismantled

(See Story Page 3)

NICOSIA (AP) — The Greek Cypriot government announced today it has started dismantling its fortified positions along the borderline, dividing the Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot sectors of Larnaca in south Cyprus.

A spokesman for the government of President Makarios said similar fortifications in Paphos in the northwest and Limassol in the south already have been dismantled.

Makarios had announced that all Greek-Cypriot armed posts, fortifications and police checkpoints in three of the island's six districts will be removed as a step toward pacification and normalization of life in Cyprus.

The Turkish - Cypriot leadership has branded the Makarios move as an attempt to mislead international public opinion. A Turkish - Cypriot statement, added, however, that anything that makes life easier for some of the island's Turkish minority is welcome.

The Greek and Turkish-Cypriots have been feuding since December, 1963, when open fighting broke out over Makarios' attempt to abrogate the island's constitution. A UN peace force, to which Canada has supplied troops, has been maintaining an uneasy truce between the two sides.

MARTIN DETAILS TREATY SIGNING

'Not You (Quebec); But Us (Ottawa)'

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government, concerned over Quebec's claims to international treaty-making powers, Friday night issued a three-page policy pronouncement that says prov- [illegible] pacts with foreign governments.

External Affairs Minister Martin conceded there is a "lack of harmony" between treaty-making and treaty-implementing powers but said "there is no doubt that only the government of Canada has the [illegible] treaties with other countries."

His statement, an expansion of remarks made recently by himself and Prime Minister Pearson, was an apparent reply to speeches during the week by Paul Gerin-Lajoie, Quebec's education minister.

The External affairs minister said "once it is determined that what a province wishes to achieve through agreements in the field of education or in other fields of provincial jurisdiction falls within the framework of Canadian foreign policy, the provinces can discuss detailed arrangements directly with the competent authorities of the country concerned.

"When a formal international agreement is to be concluded, however, the federal powers relating to the signature of treaties and the conduct of over-all foreign policy must necessarily come into operation."

Mr. Martin, in his home riding of Essex East in Windsor, Ont., issued the statement through his office in the capital. The fact the government found it necessary to issue it at all

Crest of Destruction Strikes Iowa, Illinois

DUBUQUE, Iowa (AP)—The Mississippi River, its high water mark achieved in Wisconsin, continued its destructive rush past Iowa and Illinois communities today.

The river crested Friday in Prairie du Chien, Wis., at an estimated 25.3 feet — 7.3 feet above flood stage. It was difficult to tell the exact river level because the flood gauge was under water.

Dubuque residents braced for a record 26.7-foot crest expected Sunday and watched in fear as two tall tanks filled with inflammable material threatened to topple.

Guttenberg, Iowa, a town of 1,900 some 20 miles down river from Prairie du Chien, fought a major battle with the churning river that assaulted its levee.

Winds began whipping waves over the flood wall Friday but scores of volunteers, including high school girls, heaved sandbags to raise the dike to a safe level. Four feet of water would have flooded two-thirds of Guttenberg if their efforts had failed.

In Dubuque, workers pumped water into the two weakened storage tanks for balance as they threatened to fall.

The Red Cross said it is feeding more than 1,000 workers in Dubuque and more than 400 in Guttenberg and reported 1,000 of the 5,700 Prairie du Chien residents had left their homes.

Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota have been declared federal disaster areas and Illinois petitioned Friday for the status.

Governor Otto Kerner wired President Johnson for $1,000,000 in initial aid, saying Illinois property has suffered $25,000,000 in flood and tornado damage.

Governor Karl Rolvaag of Minnesota raised his estimate of flood damage to $88,000,000 from $50,000,000.

Goodies or Dismay ... All Known Monday

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's best-kept annual secret will be unveiled when Finance Minister Gordon rises, to the usual desk-thumping encouragement of Liberal backbenchers, and delivers his third budget speech Monday night.

In 90 minutes, or perhaps less, he will present the results of months of work, affecting virtually every person in Canada.

Only about half a dozen persons have advance knowledge of what he will say.

With the secrecy of a military invasion, the budget is brought to fruition with painstaking precautions.

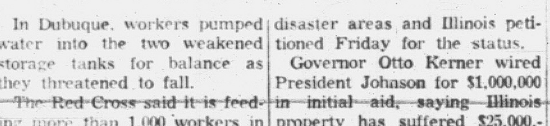
The final draft of this budget was completed before Easter, but minor changes in the speech were inserted this week. This was a polishing job, not affecting the meat of the matter.

Besides Mr. Gordon, the budget's entire contents are known only by Prime Minister Pearson, deputy finance minister R. B. Bryce, two or three senior officials in the finance department and the parliamentary secretary to the minister, Larry Pennell (L—Brant-Haldimand). Revenue Minister Benson would certainly know about the tax-change portion of the speech, if not all of it.

RECALLS RHUBARB

Mr. Gordon is responsible for the secrecy. He is reported to be ultra-cautious about it after the rhubarb that resulted from his first speech when it was disclosed that outside consultants were involved in its preparation.

In last year's speech, he made a point of assuring the Commons that no outsiders were involved.



M' Uncle Zeke's lookin' forward t' th' fed'ral budget on Monday. Wants t' find out how y' git rich from yer debts.

Neighbors Awakened By Noise

By DESMOND BILL

An 18-year-old youth was fatally injured early this morning in a grinding two-car collision at a suburban intersection.

GARSIDE
... dies at 18

The impact was so violent it awakened the neighborhood and shook houses 150 feet away.

Dead is Ronald Garside, 1712 Bay Street, an apprentice carpenter.

Police said the other driver involved, Garry B. Haut, 20, of 920 Jasmine, escaped with a slight cut on his chin.

Both drivers were alone in their cars when the accident occurred shortly after 1 a.m. at Obed and Bodega.

FIFTH [illegible]TIM

The youth was the fifth traffic victim in Greater Victoria this year.

He apparently had been out with friends Friday night and was on his way home.

Saanich police said Garside was going south on Bodega and Haut west on Obed. Their cars met at the uncontrolled intersection.

After the impact Haut's car continued west and Garside's vehicle went off the road and spun around a power pole.

Garside, who did not have seat belts in his car, was thrown from the driver's side into the front passenger seat. He was found lying partly out of the door.

CHEST INJURIES

Saanich fire department ambulance rushed him to St. Joseph's Hospital where he died of chest injuries at 4 a.m.

An autopsy was held this morning to determine the exact cause of death. The date of the inquest will be announced later.

Mrs. William Jordan, 370 Obed, who lives three houses away from the intersection, said she was half asleep in bed when she heard the noise of the accident.

She said, "I heard a squeal and a thump. The whole house shook. It sounded like it happened on our front lawn."

HEARD CRASH

Mrs. Jordan said that when she and her husband went outside other neighbors were appearing who had also heard the collision.

Garside was born in Victoria and was educated at Gordon Head School before his family moved to Kitimat in 1955. When they came back to Victoria in 1963 he attended Oak Bay Junior High School before going to work as an apprentice carpenter.

He is survived by his father, George Garside, and two brothers, Allan and David. His mother died more than a year ago.

STEEL FIRM, UNION EXTEND DEADLINE

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The United Steelworkers' Union announced today the first contract extension with a steel company, postponing the May 1 strike deadline for Phoenix Steel Corp.

Union President David J. McDonald said the agreement will be signed formally Monday, covering some 1,000 steelworkers at the firm's plant in Phoenixville, Pa., and 2,000 workers at another plant in Claymont, Del.

Border Clash 'Almost War'

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Fighting continued today at a disputed India-Pakistan border point and Indian reinforcements were being moved up, a defence ministry spokesman said late tonight.

Earlier tonight, an Indian spokesman said there was "no military build-up" by the Indians although Pakistani forces had allegedly launched a big new attack.

"This is almost war," the spokesman declared, saying Pakistani forces were supported by tanks in the disputed border area between West Pakistan and the marshes of Kutch.

The spokesman said Pakistan had moved an infantry division to the border, a regiment of medium tanks, one of light tanks, a medium artillery and two squadrons of F-86 fighter-bombers.

REPLY EFFECTIVELY

The spokesman said only a small force held the Indian position but they "replied most effectively to the unprovoked Pakistani attack." It was not known whether fighting was continuing.

He said the size of some of the attacks, and the "obvious preparation that has gone into this large-scale aggressive activity" gave rise to the belief that Pakistan's "belligerent attitude was becoming positively more threatening."

Both India and Pakistan have moved tank-supported regular troops into the Rann of Kutch, an uninhabited 10 mile square patch of marsh and mudflat on the India-West Pakistan border.

Pakistan has included its section of the region in coastline to be surveyed for off-shore oil drilling by the Sun Oil Company of the United States.

Plane Wreck Seen

SEATTLE (AP)—Wreckage of a four-engine transport plane that disappeared Friday with five persons was sighted today at the 10,000-foot level on Mt. Rainier. Search officials said there was no sign of survivors.

Flood Threat Still Eases

EMERSON, Man. (CP) — The Red River continued to spill its flood-waters slowly into the business section of this border community today.

Residents, cheered by a downward revision in the flood forecast Friday, breathed more easily in the hope the peak was near.

Mayor Leonard Carless said after a morning tour of the town: "I don't think it will come up farther than it has. At least we're hoping."

World-Wide Search For Rear View ID

LONDON (UPI)—The individuality of a cow is not apparent from the rear. That, alas, is the vista most often confronting the milker.

The problem is to devise a method for identifying cows from the rear.

The government milk marketing board yesterday offered a £500 ($1,400) prize to the person who comes up with the answer.

"The identification mark must be readable from a distance of four yards, from behind. "In a great majority of cases," the board said, "the cow stands with her back to the milker."

"And why must cows submit to such classification?"

"Cows," the board answers, "are required to be identified at milking times for correct allocation of the quantity and quality of the milk produced, and for the rationing of feeding stuffs."

Further, "cows and calves are required to be identified at other times for breeding and management purposes."

The identification must be permanent. It must not hurt. It must be cheap.

Branding is out. It would spoil the animal's appearance and her market value. Dye washes off.

Entries must be received by September. Most early suggestions favored identification plates.

"WHAT AM I BID" will be theme tonight at the third annual Prospect Lake District Community Association's auction sale. Co-ordinator Jack Whitehead holds hand pump which will be offered, along with all the doo-dads and thingummybobs donated to the auction. Proceeds will help pay for the association's new building. VANCOUVER POLICE

Unsolved Crime Under Review

VANCOUVER (CP) Vancouver police are reported to be reviewing unsolved holdups dating back more than two years with fresh interest following disclosures that members of the force may have been involved in recent crimes here.

One of the holdups was a slick operation in which $106,000 was taken from a suburban Burnaby bank on Christmas Eve, 1962.

This week Police Chief Ralph Booth announced that several members of the force are under suspicion for complicity in a February robbery of $1,250,000 in mutilated bills and a $15,000 January robbery of a bank.

The announcement was made Thursday, the day after police Const. Leonard Hogue, under investigation in connection with the currency robbery, shot himself, his wife and his six children.

Police are investigating a station wagon Hogue rented during the week.

Meanwhile, Ald. Tom Campbell said today he will ask city council Tuesday to appoint its own commission to investigate the police force.

He said he thinks that an impartial and independent commission should conduct such an inquiry out of fairness to the police department.

. . . JAPANESE

barley and $12 million for flax seed.

With B.C. handling all shipments the prairie grain boosted west coast economy while paying handsome profits to farmers.

But it was in B.C. that most of the Japanese money remained.

The B.C. department of trade and industry warns that its preliminary figures for 1964 are open for revision but adds that any revisions that do take place will be minor.

In All Fields

In all fields exports are up over 1963, but for dramatic evidence of the tremendous increase in B.C.-Japanese trade a comparison should be made with trade figures of five years ago.

In the following list 1964 sales figures are given first with 1960 figures in brackets.

Copper in excess of $26 million ($1.3 million); lumber more than $21 million ($0.2 million); iron ore $20 million ($9.4 million); pulp and allied products in excess of $21 million ($3 million).

Other products that are expected to push B.C.'s share of the $272 million total well over the $125 million mark (of $256 million spent by Japan in 1963 B.C. got more than $118 million) are aluminum (more than $10 million), logs, scrap brass, scrap copper, nickel, lead and zinc, all well over a million dollars.

But, rich though the Japanese bonanza is and happy though British Columbia businessmen are to share it, it has brought problems with its prosperity.

In 1963 while Japan was spending $256 million in Western Canada Japanese exports to this country through B.C. ports were only $41.6 million.

The imbalance is expected to be similar when the 1964 import figures are tallied.

Must Close Gap

Economist and Minister of Trade and Commerce Ralph Loffmark says the $3 to $1 gap in trading must be closed if the present boom is to be maintained.

In speeches to the legislative assembly, and on the banquet circuit, he warned that Japan can find raw materials elsewhere in the world and will unless she can find a better trade balance with Canada.

Japan could sell more to Canada but tariff and trade regulations restrict the variety and amounts of goods that can be sold in this country.

Mr. Loffmark claims that the tariff barriers could be lowered, allowing Japan freer access to the Canadian market without harming domestic manufacturers.

But eastern industrialists who see little of the money spent by Japan, view such proposals with alarm. They say that removal or lowering of tariffs would result in a food of Japanese goods to the detriment of Canadian manufacturers and workers.

Andrew Ito, a Canadian of Japanese descent who acts as a liaison man for Mitsui, one of the big-three Japanese trading companies with permanent offices in Vancouver, says the fears of Eastern Canadians are unfounded.

Want Equal Chance

"We don't want to step on the toes of domestic manufacturers in Canada," he says. "All we want is an equal chance to compete on the Canadian market with goods Canada imports from other countries."

Eiichi Kodama, vice-president of Mitsubishi International Corporation, says the same thing.

"What we are saying when we ask for greater freedom to compete on the Canadian market is, 'will you please buy from Japan the heavy machinery and industrial equipment you are now buying from the United States and other countries'," he says.

"We have many more things Canada could buy from us without hurting her domestic producers at all. We must get the balance of trade a lot closer than it is at present. Even two dollars spent for one taken in would be wonderful and I think that point could be reached if Canada just bought more heavy equipment from us."

Picture Brighter

Mr. Kodama quotes two examples to illustrate his point.

"Recently your government purchased turbines for the Peace River power project from Japan and even more recently the CPR signed a contract with a Japanese shipyard for the building of two fully-automated 85,000-ton bulk oil carriers. These are the sort of things that make the balance of trade picture much brighter and I think you will agree that no harm is done to Canadian industry."

In May Premier Bennett and several members of his cabinet will visit Japan with the trade imbalance high on the list of items to be discussed with Japanese government officials.

A half-dozen Japanese traders interviewed in Vancouver point out that the stakes are high. They stress that if the trade imbalance can be levelled off there is no reason why Japanese-Canadian trade should not continue in the pattern of the past five years.

That would mean that by 1967 Japan would be spending around $500,000,000 annually in Canada with the greater proportion of the money going to western producers.

Monday: Japanese investment in Canada.

indicated its concern with Mr. Gerin-Lajoie's remarks.

The latest political controversy between the federal and Quebec administrations was set off by the signing in February of an agreement for a student exchange between Quebec and France. Each government interprets the signing differently.

The federal government calls the agreement an "entente or understanding" and on March 1 Mr. Martin said "standing alone, these agreements between France and Quebec could not have been regarded as agreements subject to international law."

In addition, the agreement was assented to by the Canadian and French governments by an exchange of letters.

Quebec's viewpoint was indicated Friday by Premier Jean Lesage when he was asked to comment on the prime minister's statement that the provinces should go through Ottawa in any negotiations with another country.

"I can't see how Mr. Pearson can say that Quebec is not qualified to sign international agreements when we have just signed one with the government of France."

DIFFER WIDELY

The federal and Quebec positions also appear to differ over the jurisdictions within which a province may negotiate.

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie said Thursday Quebec intends to negotiate not only in areas falling exclusively within provincial jurisdiction but in those of common interest with the federal government.

Mr. Martin's policy statement mentions only "fields of provincial jurisdiction" as areas where a province may negotiate with a foreign power.

The external affairs minister concedes there are special problems created by the constitution without provincial consent to treaties that touch provincial jurisdiction.

"The problem is not unique," he adds. "Other federal states have adopted various approaches to the task of harmonizing treaty-making and treaty-implementing powers; but there is no federal state in the world whose constitution allows its members to make treaties freely and independently of the federal authorities.

"The reason for this is obvious. Independent treaty-making powers are the prerogative of sovereign states. A federal state whose members actually possess such powers would neither be a federal union nor a state. It would be an association of sovereign powers."

TOO FRIENDLY

Stoney Dunned By Police

VANCOUVER (CP)—Stoney, a dog that arrived here in a blaze of publicity in 1962, has been dunned out of the police department in disgrace.

"He's just to damned friendly," a senior police officer said Friday.

Photographers were at the airport 18 months ago when Stoney, a gift to the department from RCMP Inspector R. P. Stone of Halifax, arrived.

He was a dog with a noble background, son of a champion Alsation in Germany and grandson of a holder of international honors.

He showed excellent promise —he was big, had an excellent nose and good speed.

But . . .

"He was quite happy to run alongside a man trying to escape and want to shake hands," said Inspector Bud Errington, police dog squad chief.

"We felt he might be like an overgrown teenager who is slow to mature. But perhaps we all made too much fuss of him when he first came and he thought the world was wonderful.

"He had no enthusiasm for police work."

WIDE SEARCH FOR CHILDREN

ABBOTSFORD (CP) Three children disappeared from a church outing Friday and still were missing late Friday night as rain pelted Sumas Mountain near here.

The boys, aged 10 and 12, were identified as Garry Goddart, Patrick McKinney and Reg Martin. All are from this area.

Truck Talks Held Still Possible

Talks to avert a trucker's strike remained possible today even as both sides appeared to harden their positions.

Twenty-one cartage companies in Vancouver served 48-hour lockout notice Friday night, after the International Brotherhood of Teamsters gave 48-hour strike notice at 41 companies there and three on Vancouver Island.

The statutory warning notices expire after Sunday.

Affected here by strike notice are Heaney's and Dowell's, together with West Coast Freight in Nanaimo. Together, about 200 drivers, swampers and warehousemen are involved.

Two other Victoria companies Ideal Fuel and Alert Service could be but have not been served 48-hour strike notice.

A fifth company, Capital Freightways, earlier applied for a government-supervised strike vote which may be held next week.

A spokesman for teamsters Local 31 the General Truck Drivers and Helpers Union—said one Island company has asked for negotiations.

It was asked to contract the other two and arrange a meeting for next week.

"If they don't want to talk, then we will sit down with the individual company," he said.

In Vancouver, a union spokesman called the lockout move an attempt to force the teamsters to settle the dispute on management terms.

Campaign Launched to Aid Island World Village Plan

A campaign to raise $8,000 has been launched by Vancouver Island Chapter, Children's International Summer Villages.

The group is well on its way to founding the 68th international village for children at Brentwood College, Mill Bay.

The campaign for the camp, which will run July 15 to Aug. 15, began this week with a mail canvass. About 1,500 letters were sent out.

The village will be the second in Canada. The other is located in Waterloo County, Ontario.

Purpose of CISV is to better world understanding by giving children of many nations an opportunity to meet annually in different countries of the world.

Each country invited will send a delegation of four 11-year-olds, accompanied by an adult leader.

"Eleven years old is a stage of flexibility," Mrs. John Fraser, chairman of Vancouver Island Chapter, CISV, said today.

"At that age there are no racial prejudices. Language is no barrier because it is such an active age."

Countries invited to send delegations to the Brentwood village are Finland, Denmark, Guatemala, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Norway, Philippines and the U.S.

In addition, four Vancouver Island youngsters will also be selected to attend.

So far, five foreign delegations have indicated they will attend.

"This is a wonderful project Year," Mrs. Fraser said.

The delegations pay for their own transportation to and from the village site and the local CISV chapter pays accommodation and recreation expenses.

CISV was conceived in 1946 by Dr. Doris Twitchell Allen, associate professor of psychology at University of Cincinnati.

The first camp was held on the outskirts of Cincinnati in 1951 with 55 children, aged 10-12, attending from nine countries.

The organization was incorporated as a non-profit corporation in 1950 and has established itself in 35 countries on five continents.

Blaze Season Starts May 1

The B.C. forest fire season will open May 1, the forest service said Friday.

During the season no outdoor fires for any purpose are permitted within half a mile or any forest or woodland in the province without a permit.

The only exception will be fires set in approved facilities in provincial camping and picnic grounds.

Saint George Feast To Be Annual Event

Roast beef, red roses and red wine formed the background for a public Saint George's Day dinner in the Empress Hotel dining room Friday night.

Manager Leslie Parkinson organized the event to mark the revival of the Royal Society of Saint George in Victoria.

"We plan to make this an annual black-tie affair at which people can enjoy themselves in a traditional, dignified fashion," Mr. Parkinson said.

Friday's gathering was dignified but informal. Doreen Jackson played appropriate organ music, including There'll Always Be an England, In a Country Garden, Scotland the Brave, The British Grenadiers, The Weaver, and songs from Gilbert and Sullivan.

Among the diners were Victoria lawyer Rodney Taylor, James A. A. George of the Royal Commonwealth Society, Capt. James Steel, Capt. Ernest Beaumont and Dr. Donald Cummings from Red Deer, Alta.

Brian Travers-Smith, 420 Victoria, is chairman of a provisional committee appointed to revive the Victoria chapter of the Royal Society of St. George.

Chisox 'Fill-In' Stock Provides Early Power

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chicago White Sox, who applied for a passport to power when they engineered a complicated three-way trade for Johnny Romano, may find the elusive entry visa was presented to them by inexperienced Danny Cater.

A 25-year-old outfielder with less than a full season of major league experience, Cater hit a decisive two-run homer and remained the American League's leading hitter with a .522 average Friday night as the White Sox defeated Washington Senators 5-3.

The White Sox, suffering from a chronic power deficiency, moved to correct the situation last winter by acquiring Romano from Cleveland in the three-way deal that saw Rocky Colavito move from Kansas City to the Indians while the White Sox sent outfielders Mike Hershberger and Jim Landis to the Athletics.

ONE-FOR-ONE

Cater, meanwhile, was acquired in a simple one-for-one deal with Philadelphia Phillies in exchange for pitcher Ray Herbert, figuring to stock the White Sox' depleted outfield.

He had an impressive minor league record but showed little power with the Phillies.

Elsewhere, Minnesota Twins stretched their winning streak to five games by edging Detroit Tigers 8-6 in 10 innings, Cleveland downed Kansas City 6-2 and Baltimore Orioles defeated Boston Red Sox 4-2. Los Angeles Angels and New York Yankees were rained out.

PODRES SHARP

Johnny Podres, taking a cue from Sandy Koufax, has elbowed his way back into Los Angeles Dodgers' strong-arm corps—most fearsome pitching array in the major leagues today.

Podres, who underwent elbow surgery last summer, made his first appearance since last May Friday night and blanked Philadelphia Phillies 4-0 on four hits.

The veteran southpaw's comeback, on the heels of Koufax's second complete-game victory—a four-hit 2-1 decision over New York Mets Thursday night—enabled the Dodgers to stay atop the National League with seven victories in their first nine starts.

The Mets rallied for four runs in the ninth inning and another in the 11th to nip San Francisco Giants 9-8; Houston Astros edged Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 in 12 innings for their first indoor victory and St. Louis Cardinals, paced by Curt Flood, defeated Cincinnati Reds 6-3 in other league games. The Milwaukee Braves-Chicago Cubs' matinee was rained out.

Podres, who had not pitched since last May and had not won since September, 1963, gave the Dodger staff its fifth complete game. Koufax, Don Drysdale, Claude Osteen, Podres and the supporting cast have given up only 12 runs, 10 of them earned, in 71 innings—an ERA of 1.27. They've held the opposition to a .145 batting average.

Victoria Aces Defend League Rifle Crown

Trigger aces from Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association will be starting out Sunday in defence of the title they won last year when the Vancouver Island Shooting League stages its first rifle shoot of the new season.

Gil Carmichael, Ernie Foulser, Ray MacDougall and Garry Williams will make up the "A" squad of the Victoria team in the competition at the Esquimalt Lagoon range of the VFGPA.

Shooting starts at 10 a.m. and snipers will be firing in three sight divisions—telescope, aperature and open. Entrants will be shooting in five classes, according to ability.

The range will open at 8:30 for registration and sighting-in.

Several new contestants are joining the regulars and the meet promises to be largest rifle event in league history.

Rocks Invite Minor Players

Youngsters registered with the Greater Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association have an invitation to attend the opening game of the senior Inter-City League season.

New Westminister and Victoria Shamrocks meet Wednesday in the curtain-raiser at Memorial Arena. Minor players wishing to attend the game are asked to meet at the Arena at 7:30 p.m.

Next week's minor workout schedule (all practices at Stevenson Park unless noted otherwise):

Sunday (9 a.m.)—All Juveniles
Monday (3:15)—Midgets (Hampton Park)
Tuesday (3:15)—Peewees
Thursday (3:15)—Midgets; (6:30), Juveniles

FINAL WEEK

Bowling Tourney At End of Trail

The clock has run down for pin-spillers still hoping for shots at Bowler-of-the-Year titles and cash prizes of $100.

Berths in the Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs on May 9 could only be earned by winning one of the weekly awards in the 28-week Bowler-of-the-Week contest, sponsored by The Daily Times.

The final week ended Friday night, which means that scores of disappointed guys and gals will have to wait until next year.

All that now remains is to compile this week's scores and announce the 28th winners in each of the four divisions—men's and women's fivepins, and men's and women's tenpins.

Awards each week went to bowlers who posted the highest three-game scratch totals during regular league play on southern Vancouver Island Lanes.

When the winners compete in the rolloff on city lanes on May 9, the top bowlers in each division will receive a Times Trophy for permanent possession. Any rolloff winner who is also a subscriber to the Times will also receive a cash prize of $100.

Completing the list for the 27th week is Ida Valleau, who has captured honors in the women's fivepin division for the second year. Mrs. Valleau, who has won several awards for high averages in league play, hit the top with a sparkling 305-231-361—897 series in the Sunday Senior Mixed League at Esquimalt Bowladrome.

FormerOutboardKing Was Victoria Native

City speedboat fans of an old era were saddened this week to learn of the death last Sunday of Pat Cummins, one of the Pacific Northwest's most famous outboard champions of former years.

Born in Victoria 58 years ago and a graduate of Victoria College, Cummins won four national titles after moving to Seattle. His last U.S. outboard championship was won when he was 50 years of age.

A daring driver who had a trophy case filled with awards, Cummins died in Snohomish, where he had resided for several years.

His last racing appearance in Canada was at Shawnigan Lake, just after the Second World War.

ISLAND PLANT, UNION SIGN WAGE PACT

Settlement of a wage dispute between the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union and the James Island plant of Canadian Industries Ltd. was reported Friday by the department of labor.

Conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin was able to persuade both parties to agree to a new two-year contract raising hourly rates in two stages by 14 cents for those earning $2.29; 23 cents for those earning up to $2.52, and 29 cents for those earning up to $2.70.

ASK BENNETT

Vancouver Wants To Buy Utilities

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier Bennett and the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority are to be asked if they are prepared to sell Hydro's power and gas distribution and transit systems to Vancouver.

City council's service committee Thursday asked Mayor William Rathie to pose such a question to the premier and Hydro and ask if they are prepared to negotiate.

The mayor told the committee he doubted if the city would even get an answer.

Sale of the systems was proposed by Alderman Halford Wilson who said the purchase could be financed from profits of power and gas retailing in the Greater Vancouver area. It would be a contingent liability which would liquidate itself.

Alderman Wilson said many B.C. cities now are making money from power distribution and Vancouver would have a strong case for taking over Hydro's system.

$30 Million Plant

WINNIPEG (CP)—A $30,000,000 chemical fertilizer industry will be built in the Greater Winnipeg area with construction to start this spring, Industry Minister Gurney Evans has announced in the legislature. Mr. Evans said the project will open a new field for the manufacture of allied products. The complex will be built by the J. R. Simplot Company of Boise, Idaho.

PALM DAIRIES LIMITED APPOINTMENT

In my work basket, as I settle down to another bout of cramping the alphabet into new patterns, is a fat folder loaned me by a chum who is investigating a mail-order course on writing for money.

So far, I haven't got around to looking inside; but on the front cover is an encouraging picture of a sure-enough writer at work.

He is a big handsome fellow with a good head of rumpled hair. His tweed jacket is a bit long in the pelt, but very well cut, and he is, of course, smoking a pipe. The desk in his book-lined study is obviously a writer's, because on it, along with typewriter, paper, manuscript pages and reference books is a bowl bristling with pencils.

This guy is typing, not with a two finger hunt-and-poke, but with all his pinkies, yet; and the obvious inference is that the top seller on his publisher's fall list is in process of creation.

Well, so much for the picture. And I'll bet could we snoop over this operator's square shoulder, we would find he's inscribing 'Now is the time for all good men,' or jumping the quick brown fox over the lazy dog's back.

★ ★ ★

I won't say he isn't a writer. But if he is, you can bet that his wife has spent the last three days tidying up his workroom, and that he probably borrowed the pipe.

What I do insist is that he's anything but representative, and that your working scrivener — a moody fellow much better read than me — would never have made the cover of that correspondence school prospectus.

He might indeed have pencils in a bowl, peanut butter jar or bar glass, but not to use. They'd be for him to sharpen each morning, and so put off the agony of getting down to work.

His ears would slant slightly backward, a deformation that comes from listening for the mailman. At his elbow would be an ashtray overflowing with butts, and he would be surrounded by crumpled spoil-sheets. As for clothing, give him rump-sprung pants and a sport shirt.

He would welcome an excuse to shove away from his desk, light another cigarette, and reveal some daunting facts about his trade. These would include the following:

That even if it finds a publisher, which is by no means probable, a first novel may not net its author the price of a new set of tires.

(I have a friend whose first royalty cheque hangs framed over his desk . . . twenty-five cents.)

★ ★ ★

That a professional fictioneer may go six months or a year without making a strike; that if a newcomer is lucky enough to crack the short-story market, six sales will be his lifetime total as the percentages run; and that the average successful dream-merchant is humbly grateful if he sells from one third to half his output.

All this being so, you will understand why I am cool toward come-alongs which overstate the glamour and minimize the difficulties of writing for a living.

I know that in this city are any number of eager young and not-so-young aspirants who will shrug off everything I've said here as so much pessimistic croaking.

But since few weeks go by without a call from some would-be writer, I am going to set down a few ground-rules.

Don't go free-lancing until or unless you have proved you can make a living from your typewriter. Even then, write [illegible] you like security and hate gambling.

Study your markets; most beginners don't. Set up a writing schedule, and in that period, even if you feel like death warmed over, force words on to paper.

Never talk out a story plot, not even with your dearest. If you do, you're unlikely to write it.

And please, if you do crack the barrier, don't ever pose like that joker on the writing course enticement!

House for the Birds, Back to Tree for Him

"Rats! This down-to-earth stuff's getting me down. You lot can stay if you want, but I'm branching out. This terra-firma's too earthy for me. Maybe I'm barking up the wrong tree but, after all, there's no place like home . . ." For this young family, home was up a tree for the first two weeks of their life. Mother puss moved into the tree-top apartment on Crown Crescent, off Cook Street, in readiness for the big day. A stray part-Persian, she has since been removed from her precarious perch and found a more conventional home. (Times photos by Bill Halkett.)

GUARD TO WATCH FOR GOLDFINGER AT JAYCEE FAIR

A day and night guard will be kept on next month's Jaycee Fair.

The guards will be keeping watch on a brick.

No ordinary brick this; but a $10,000 gold brick.

The miniature mint is one of the special attractions at the fair, opening May 17.

And Victorians will get a shot at taking the brick home.

It is to be raffled off during the six days of the fair by an Edmonton man.

Similar bricks have been raffled off in the past at the Calgary Stampede.

During the week it will be housed in a special showcase for would-be winners to feast their eyes on.

Said a Jaycee spokesman today: "We have been approached by this Edmonton man.

EARLY FORTUNE

"Special security police will be hired to make sure no one gets any ideas about building an early fortune."

The fair will run in Memorial Arena and the Curling rink.

Already most of the acts for the week have been booked though contracts have not yet been signed.

Top feature is expected to be a well-known accordionist and a singing group.

The usual midway including a special kiddies' section will be in full swing behind the arena while more than 130 display booths will be set up in the two buildings.

Although there will be only one gold brick there will be nightly prizes of $500 on weekly pass numbers.

Another $1,000 will be given away Saturday, plus a car.

In the agricultural field there will be displays of poultry and rabbits, plus a cattle judging contest.

Although arrangements have not yet been completed a local stable will stage a horse show.

Young and old men will get a chance to hit bull's eye and send a girl flying into a bath of water.

ELEGANT TOUCH

Adding a touch of elegance to the scene wil be the new Miss Victoria and the other nine finalists.

There will be hot-dogs and candy, swings and roundabouts, in fact all the fun of the fair.

SAWMILL TARGET

New Move Hinted In Smoke Battle

By BOB DONAHUE

Increased pressure for control may be brought against Plumper Bay Sawmills Ltd., described as the last major smoke pollution source in Greater Victoria.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer for the Metropolitan Board of Health, said today the company has ignored previous requests to control smoke and the subject may be brought up again at the next board meeting.

There has been a suggestion the provisions of the provincial Health Act be used to force the company to control the smoke from its refuse burners.

The manager of the company, P. S. Johl, said today he would make no comment as to whether the company would take steps to control its smoke pollution.

Residents of the area, mostly in View Royal and Christie Point, are again up in arms because officials of the company still refuse to make any comment about the situation.

Esquimalt member of the health board, Coun. George Argyle, said today he is looking forward to amalgamation with View Royal so increased pressure could be brought to bear against the sawmill.

B.C. Forest Products Ltd. announced this week that it is closing and dismantling the burner at Point Ellice sawmill and Smith Cedar Products Ltd. has announced its operation is now entirely smoke-free.

The Plumper Bay smoke problem was first brought before the Metro Health Board about two years ago.

Because the sawmill is outside the municipal boundaries the board could take no direct action.

CONTROL SMOKE

After making a study of the pollution from the plant the board appealed to Ottawa and the Indian Affairs department, on whose land the sawmill is situated.

They also requested the company to start some measures to control the smoke.

They have heard nothing more as a result of either of the three appeals.

Nothing to Lose Sleep About But Turn Your Clock AHEAD

By TERRY IZZARD

The hour of reckoning is upon us.

The fateful hour when time flies.

At least some of it will fly when daylight saving time comes into effect at 2 a.m. Sunday.

For others it will stand still.

It's all a question of how you look at it.

On (clock) face value it's quite simple.

At one minute to two you're up with the times.

At one minute past you're living on borrowed time.

To keep things ticking smoothly just twist the big hand ahead through 360 degrees when you retire tonight.

All being well you can drop into bed and dream until baby wakes at 7 a.m.

But baby's not going to wake at 7 a.m. She's going to be up and about at 6.

On the other hand maybe she's going to lie in until 8.

After all, it's 3 now... A minute ago it was 2.

So at 7 it will be 8; or will it be 8 at 7.

Three hours ago it was midnight, but it's only two hours since the clock struck 12. Add an hour that never was and subtract the difference from the total number of hours in the day.

Gives you 25 and nightmares.

This will be the quandry facing millions at the weekend as the regular-as-clockwork routine comes up for its biannual overhaul.

Some will pull through the ordeal unscathed.

Others will never tick the same again.

For the very weak the bells will have tolled their last.

After all, time waits for no man . . . and in this case only time can tell.

TOPICS of the DAY

Royal Victoria Yacht Club boating enthusiasts were hard at work today at 6 a.m. to get their craft in the water after the winter lay-off.

The early-morning hour was the only time a tide was available to carry out the launchings.

The club's opening day and sailpast will be May 8.

Magistrate William [illegible] said Friday that relatives who helped a young man cover up bad cheques in his past actually did not help him.

He said they only encouraged Christopher Howson, 1239 Park Terrace, to think he "could get away with it."

Howson earlier pleaded guilty to eight charges involving bad cheques. The magistrate fined him $50 on each charge and bound him over on a $250 bond for six months.

The magistrate ordered Howson to pay the fine at the rate of $50 a month.

Return Subsidies Retroactively, MP to Tell Gov't

Victoria MP David Groos said today he intends to press the federal government to return the "frozen" subsidy for shipbuilding.

In particular, he said, he will ask the government if it will agree that when a decision is reached it will be made retroactive to the "freezing" in February.

He was commenting on local shipyards who say they face serious problems as a result of the freeze and the national tendering for conversion of the Esquimalt-based destroyer-escort HMCS Fraser.

This job, worth $3 million, went to Canadian Vickers Ltd. in Montreal.

Mr. Groos emphasized no policy decision has been made that federal government ships will be bid on a national basis.

Previously, bidding was restricted in the region where the ship was to be based.

"I think the government will turn down national bidding," he said.

NATIONAL BASIS

Asked why the Fraser was bid on a national basis, he said he could only guess that perhaps this was a test case to see what would happen with national bidding.

"It illustrates the point that national bidding is not feasible at this time," he said.

"In time, wage rates in the east will approximate those in the west."

At present, there is an average $1 per hour per man difference in wage costs.

Shipyard owners here say no amount of increased efficiency and favorable climatic conditions can make up that difference and put west coast yards on an equal footing with those in the east.

SUBSIDY PROGRAM

On the subsidy program, in which the federal government had paid 35 per cent of the cost of ships, Mr. Groos said no indication has been given when a special committee will complete its report.

In the meantime, the subsidies have been frozen and shipyards say this is holding back orders.

Both Yarrows and Victoria Machinery Depot, which employ more than 1,500, say they have no orders in sight beyond the end of the year.

"We can employ between 600 and 700 men until the end of the year; but after that there is nothing in sight," said John Wallace, general manager at Yarrows.

VMD president Harold Husband said his yard is busy at the moment particularly with ferries for the provincial government "and our work there ends at the end of 1965."

They recalled Defence Minister Paul Hellyer said last December regional building of ships is the "most inefficient way ever devised by man to build ships."

Employees Of Eaton's Back Fund

Employees of Eaton's of Victoria have decided to donate $5,000 to the Three Universities Capital Fund.

Fund officials have been told they will receive $1,000 a year for the next five years from the Eaton's employees.

Seven gifts, totalling $6,435, have already been received in the corporations and executives division.

Vancouver Island division of the fund hopes to raise $2,000,000 of a $28,000,000 fund objective which will be used for buildings and equipment at the three universities, University of Victoria, University of B.C., and Simon Fraser University.

DR. CARTER:

Fluoride Vote Likely To Get Council's Nod

By RON SUDLOW

Oak Bay Councillor Dr. Harold Carter said today he is confident his motion to hold a water fluoridation referendum in the municipality will pass easily.

The issue will come before council Monday evening.

"All the motion needs is a simple majority. I think it will be passed," he said.

He based his prediction on "certain indications" of councillors present at a committee of the whole meeting April 5 when he served notice of motion.

"Only one councillor seemed to be a fence-hanger. I think he just wanted to see how the others felt about it first," he added.

"The reeve (Allan Cox) is for it."

Coun. Walter Dodsworth was absent when Coun. Carter put forth his motion.

EARLIEST DATE

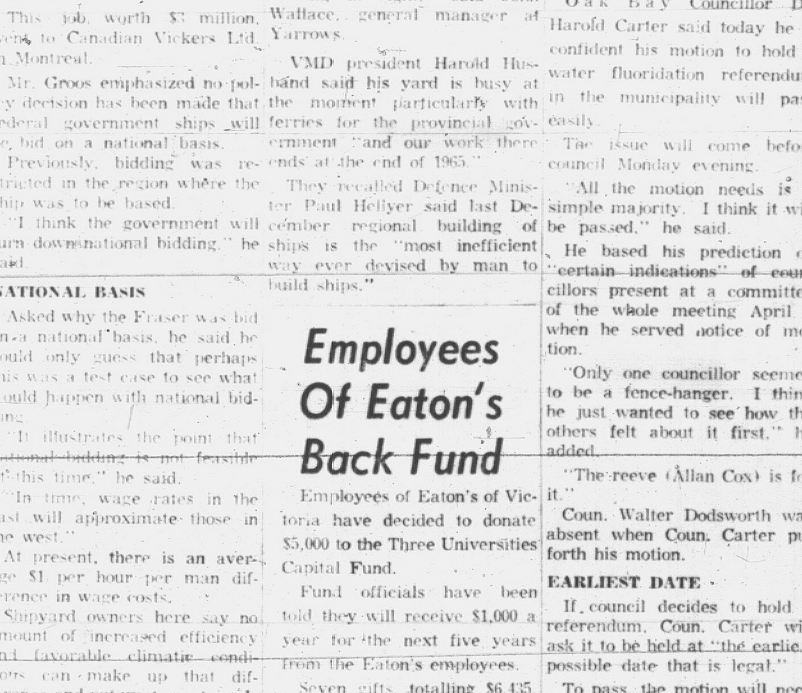
If council decides to hold a referendum, Coun. Carter will ask it to be held at "the earliest possible date that is legal."

To pass, the motion will need a 60 percent majority from those casting ballots.

This will be the second chance for Oak Bay residents to have their water fluoridated.

Last time was 1959 when only 37 per cent of Greater Victoria residents voted in favor.

Of the four municipalities, Oak Bay had the highest percentage of "yes" votes.



PICKED for new series of lunch-hour concerts in McPherson Playhouse is Canadian folk singer Murray McAlpine, seen here with Teresa Forslund at piano. The concerts, promoted by Kenneth Gravenor, will be held at 12:10 and 1:10 p.m., starting May 3. Mr. McAlpine was one of several artists chosen at today's auditions. Others include pianist Marilyn McArthur, baritone John Bray and Rosalie and George Essihos.

Vital B.C. Interest

Japanese Trade Here At New High

(Next month the B.C. government will send a substantial trade mission to Japan, headed by Premier Bennett. Behind this move is a major boom, not only in Japanese trade with B.C. and the rest of Canada, but in Japanese investment in our industry. In two articles Times business editor Jim Hume examines this background.)

By JIM HUME

Japanese-Canadian trade, booming since the late 1950's, took a $16,000,000 leap in 1964 when exports through B.C. ports hit a record $272,894,736.

The record came as no surprise to government officials who early last year confidently predicted that the $256.4 million mark set in 1963 would easily be passed.

They are equally confident that before 1965 ends trade with Japan will be pushing $300,000,000.

Their forecast is not as fearless as it might sound.

Since 1959 when Canadian exports to Japan via B.C. were $119 million sales figures have climbed at a rapid rate.

In 1960 B.C. ports cleared $138 million in raw materials, wheat and other products destined for Japan.

A year later the total had climbed to $173.9 million and in 1962, the year the Japanese cut back on buying, still managed a three million dollar increase to reach the $176.9 million mark.

Second Boom

In the wake of the trading boom which has seen trading figures double in five years has come a second boom in the investment of Japanese capital in Canada.

To date most of that investment has been made in B.C. with mining projects the main target.

But there are signs, such as the recently announced automobile assembly plant in Nova Scotia, that the Japanese are starting to expand both their buying and their investment horizons.

Alberta makes no secret of the fact that it looks with envy on B.C.'s role of prime target for Japanese buying and investment.

Minister of Industry Russ Patrick says his government is doing all it can to encourage the Japanese to look beyond the Rockies for new fields to conquer.

"But," he adds, "compared with Japanese developed business with British Columbia I would have to say that ours is in its infancy."

Japan does buy some coal from Alberta and is looking for more. She buys potash from Saskatchewan, and a limited amount of ore from Manitoba, but B.C., with average annual sales of around $120,000,000 to Japan, still tops the list.

Not that the prairie provinces are not profiting from the Japanese search for raw materials and food.

Big Grain Sales

For the past five years wheat purchases from Canada, all shipped through B.C. ports, have hovered around the $90 million mark.

In 1964, for example, Japan paid $98 million for Canadian wheat, close to $4,000,000 for

Crest of Destruction Strikes Iowa, Illinois

DUBUQUE, Iowa (AP)—The Mississippi River, its high water mark achieved in Wisconsin, continued its destructive rush past Iowa and Illinois communities today.

The river crested Friday in Prairie du Chien, Wis., at an estimated 25.3 feet — 7.3 feet above flood stage. It was difficult to tell the exact river level because the flood gauge was under water.

Dubuque residents braced for a record 26.7-foot crest expected Sunday and watched in fear as two tall tanks filled with inflammable material threatened to topple.

Guttenberg, Iowa, a town of 1,900 some 20 miles down river from Prairie du Chien, fought a major battle with the churning river that assaulted its levee.

Winds began whipping waves over the flood wall Friday but scores of volunteers, including high school girls, heaved sandbags to raise the dike to a safe level. Four feet of water would have flooded two-thirds of Guttenberg if their efforts had failed.

In Dubuque, workers pumped water into the two weakened storage tanks for balance as they threatened to fall.

The Red Cross said it is feeding more than 1,000 workers in Dubuque and more than 400 in Guttenberg and reported 1,000 of the 5,700 Prairie du Chien residents had left their homes.

Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota have been declared federal disaster areas and Illinois petitioned Friday for the status.

Governor Otto Kerner wired President Johnson for $1,000,000 in initial aid, saying Illinois property has suffered $25,000,000 in flood and tornado damage.

Governor Karl Rolvaag of Minnesota raised his estimate of flood damage to $88,000,000 from $50,000,000.

Cyprus Armed Posts Being Dismantled

(See Story Page 3)

NICOSIA (AP) — The Greek Cypriot government announced today it has started dismantling its fortified positions along the borderline dividing the Greek and Turkish-Cypriot sectors of Larnaca in south Cyprus.

A spokesman for the government of President Makarios said similar fortifications in Paphos in the northwest and Limassol in the south already have been dismantled.

Makarios had announced that all Greek-Cypriot armed posts, fortifications and police checkpoints in three of the island's six districts will be removed as a step toward pacification and normalization of life in Cyprus.

The Turkish - Cypriot leadership has branded the Makarios move as an attempt to mislead international public opinion. A Turkish - Cypriot statement, added, however, that anything that makes life easier for some of the island's Turkish minority is welcome.

The Greek and Turkish-Cypriots have been feuding since December, 1963, when open fighting broke out over Makarios' attempt to abrogate the island's constitution. A UN peace force, to which Canada has supplied troops, has been maintaining an uneasy truce between the two sides.

Goodies or Dismay ... All Known Monday

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's best-kept annual secret will be unveiled when Finance Minister Gordon rises, to the usual desk-thumping encouragement of Liberal backbenchers, and delivers his third budget speech Monday night.

In 90 minutes, or perhaps less, he will present the results of months of work, affecting virtually every person in Canada.

Only about half a dozen persons have advance knowledge of what he will say.

With the secrecy of a military invasion, the budget is brought to fruition with painstaking precautions.

The final draft of this budget was completed before Easter, but minor changes in the speech were inserted this week. This was a polishing job, not affecting the meat of the matter.

Besides Mr. Gordon, the budget's entire contents are known only by Prime Minister Pearson, deputy finance minister R. B. Bryce, two or three senior officials in the finance department and the parliamentary secretary to the minister, Larry Pennell (L—Brant-Haldimand). Revenue Minister Benson would certainly know about the tax-change portion of the speech, if not all of it.

RECALLS RHUBARB

Mr. Gordon is responsible for the secrecy. He is reported to be ultra-cautious about it after the rhubarb that resulted from his first speech when it was disclosed that outside consultants were involved in its preparation.

In last year's speech, he made a point of assuring the Commons that no outsiders were involved.

MARTIN DETAILS TREATY SIGNING

'Not You (Quebec); But Us (Ottawa)'

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government, concerned over Quebec's claims to international treaty-making powers, Friday night issued a three-page policy pronouncement that says provinces may negotiate but not sign pacts with foreign governments.

External Affairs Minister Martin conceded there is a "lack of harmony" between treaty-making and treaty-implementing powers but said "there is no doubt that only the government of Canada has the power or authority to enter into treaties with other countries."

His statement, an expansion of remarks made recently by himself and Prime Minister Pearson, was an apparent reply to speeches during the week by Paul Gerin-Lajoie, Quebec's education minister.

The external affairs minister said "once it is determined that what a province wishes to achieve through agreements in the field of education or in other fields of provincial jurisdiction falls within the framework of Canadian foreign policy, the provinces can discuss detailed arrangements directly with the competent authorities of the country concerned.

"When a formal international agreement is to be concluded, however, the federal powers relating to the signature of treaties and the conduct of over-all foreign policy must necessarily come into operation."

Mr. Martin, in his home riding of Essex East in Windsor, Ont., issued the statement through his office in the capital. The fact the government found it necessary to issue it at all

Youth Killed In Midnight Car Collision

Neighbors Awakened By Noise

By DESMOND BILL

An 18-year-old youth was fatally injured early this morning in a grinding two-car collision at a suburban intersection.

The impact was so violent it awakened the neighborhood and shook houses 150 feet away.

Dead is Ronald Garside, 1712 Bay Street, an apprentice carpenter.

Police said the other driver involved, Garry B. Haut, 20, of 920 Jasmine, escaped with a slight cut on his chin.

Both drivers were alone in their cars when the accident occurred shortly after 1 a.m. at Obed and Bodega.

FIFTH VICTIM

The youth was the fifth traffic victim in Greater Victoria this year.

He apparently had been out with friends Friday night and was on his way home.

Saanich police said Garside was going south on Bodega and Haut west on Obed. Their cars met at the uncontrolled intersection.

After the impact Haut's car continued west and Garside's vehicle went off the road and spun around a power pole.

Garside, who did not have seat belts in his car, was thrown from the driver's side into the front passenger seat. He was found lying partly out of the door.

CHEST INJURIES

Saanich fire department ambulance rushed him to St. Joseph's Hospital where he died of chest injuries at 4 a.m.

An autopsy was held this morning to determine the exact cause of death. The date of the inquest will be announced later.

Mrs. William Jordan, 370 Obed, who lives three houses away from the intersection, said she was half asleep in bed when she heard the noise of the accident.

She said, "I heard a squeal and a thump. The whole house shook. It sounded like it happened on our front lawn."

HEARD CRASH

Mrs. Jordan said that when she and her husband went outside other neighbors were appearing who had also heard the collision.

Garside was born in Victoria and was educated at Gordon Head School before his family moved to Kitimat in 1955. When they came back to Victoria in 1963 he attended Oak Bay Junior High School before going to work as an apprentice carpenter.

He is survived by his father, George Garside, and two brothers, Allan and David. His mother died more than a year ago.

STEEL FIRM, UNION EXTEND DEADLINE

(See Also Page 16)

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The United Steelworkers' Union announced today the first contract extension with a steel company, postponing the May 1 strike deadline for Phoenix Steel Corp.

Union President David J. McDonald said the agreement will be signed formally Monday, covering some 1,000 steelworkers at the firm's plant in Phoenixville, Pa., and 2,000 workers at another plant in Claymont, Del.

Border Clash 'Almost War'

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Fighting continued today at a disputed India-Pakistan border point and Indian reinforcements were being moved up, a defence ministry spokesman said late tonight.

Earlier tonight, an Indian spokesman said there was "no military build-up" by the Indians although Pakistani forces had allegedly launched a big new attack.

"This is almost war," the spokesman declared, saying Pakistani forces were supported by tanks in the disputed border area between West Pakistan and the marshes of Kutch.

The spokesman said Pakistan had moved an infantry division to the border, a regiment of medium tanks, one of light tanks, a medium artillery and two squadrons of F-86 fighter-bombers.

REPLY EFFECTIVELY

The spokesman said only a small force held the Indian position but they "replied most effectively to the unprovoked Pakistani attack." It was not known whether fighting was continuing.

He said the size of some of the attacks, and the "obvious preparation that has gone into this large-scale aggressive activity" gave rise to the belief that Pakistan's "belligerent attitude was becoming positively more threatening."

Both India and Pakistan have moved tank - supported regular troops into the Rann of Kutch, an uninhabited 10 mile square patch of marsh and mudflat on the India-West Pakistan border.

Pakistan has included its section of the region in coastline to be surveyed for off-shore oil drilling by the Sun Oil Company of the United States.

WIRE BRIEFS

Suspension Reported

VANCOUVER (CP) — Radio station CKNW says that a Vancouver police constable who has been under investigation was suspended today by Chief Ralph Booth.

Hangs Self in Jail

MONTREAL (CP) — A cloth belt, said by prison officials to be part of a new prison outfit, was used by 19-year-old Jean-Pierre Monette to hang himself in Montreal's Bordeaux Jail Friday night.

SAIGON (AP) — A Buddhist monk burned himself to death today at a crematory a few miles south of Saigon. The monk was discovered after he was dead. His name was not known.

Plane Wreck Seen

SEATTLE (AP)—Wreckage of a four-engine transport plane that disappeared Friday with five persons was sighted today at the 10,000-foot level on Mt. Rainier. Search officials said there was no sign of survivors.

World-Wide Search For Rear View ID

LONDON (UPI) — The individuality of a cow is not apparent from the rear. That, alas, is the vista most often confronting the milker.

The problem is to devise a method for identifying cows—from the rear.

The government milk marketing board yesterday offered a £500 ($1,400 prize to the person who comes up with the answer.

The identification mark must be readable from a distance of four yards, from behind. "In a great majority of cases," the board said, "the cow stands with her back to the milker."

And why must cows submit to such classification?

"Cows," the board answers, "are required to be identified at milking times for correct allocation of the quantity and quality of the milk produced, and for the rationing of feeding stuffs."

Further, "cows and calves are required to be identified at other times for breeding and management purposes."

The identification must be permanent. It must not hurt. It must be cheap.

Branding is out. It would spoil the animal's appearance and her market value. Dye washes off.

Entries must be received by September. Most early suggestions favored identification plates.

Flood Threat Still Eases

EMERSON, Man. (CP) — The Red River continued to spill its flood-waters slowly into the business section of this border community today.

Residents, cheered by a downward revision in the flood forecast Friday, breathed more easily in the hope the peak was near.

Mayor Leonard Carless said after a morning tour of the town: "I don't think it will come up farther than it has. At least we're hoping."

NEW U.S. HEAVY ATTACK BOMBERS DUE SOON

Jets Hammer Viet Convoys

SAIGON (AP)—An armada of 66 U.S. Air Force jets hammered at road convoys and a ferry installation in Communist North Viet Nam today in round-the-clock attacks.

A military spokesman reported six U.S. Air Force B-57 Canberra jet bombers blasted an anti-aircraft site and a truck convoy Friday night in North Viet Nam. He said all planes returned safely.

The daylight raids were carried out in two operations. Six Canberra jets attacked a road convoy in strafing attacks on three routes. A spokesman reported they knocked out the convoy and an anti-aircraft site.

Later, 35 F-105s supported by 25 jet fighters struck a highway bridge and docking ramps at a ferry crossing near Vinh, 135 miles south of Hanoi, the North Viet Nam capital. The bridge was reported destroyed.

In the ground war, a force of 300 to 500 Viet Cong attacked and defeated a government force in Kien Hoa province, 60 miles southeast of Saigon.

OVERRUN POST

The Viet Cong also overran a government post 15 miles south of Saigon Friday killing 16 and wounding 15 of the 33 defenders. Government artillery hammered the enemy and the post was reoccupied Saturday, but the Viet Cong had moved out.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Navy is bringing in its powerful A-6 Intruder jet attack bomber for strikes against North Viet Nam, a 7th Fleet spokesman reported.

The Intruders will arrive aboard the carrier Independence, which is to arrive for duty off Viet Nam "within the next couple of months," the fleet spokesman said.

Although the Intruder isn't a supersonic warplane like the F-4 Phantoms and the A-4 Skyhawks, an electronic countermeasures system carried by the Intruder could become increasingly important. More and more radar-aimed anti-aircraft emplacements are reported being put into operation in North Viet Nam and the radar-guided Soviet Sam II missiles apparently are on the way. Electronic counter measures could be used to jam the ground systems.

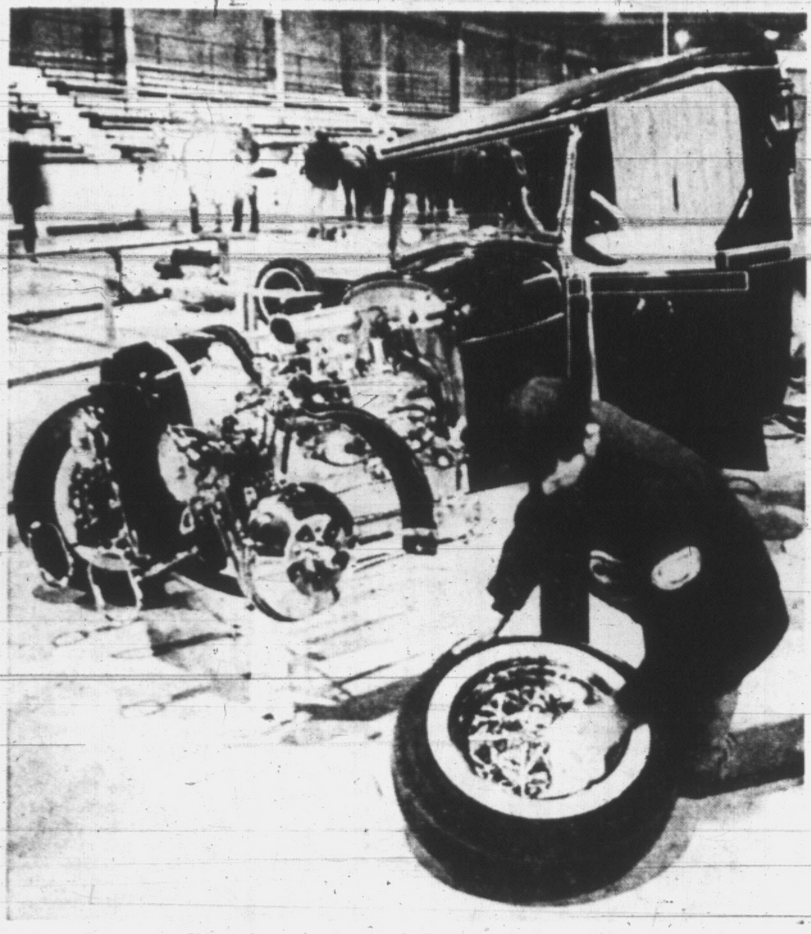
In East Berlin, Gen. Heinz Hoffmann, East Germany's defence minister, said Friday that Soviet ground-to-air missiles and jet fighters are in Viet Nam now.

Military spokesmen said the B-57s destroyed the North Vietnamese anti-aircraft site but damage to the truck convoy is unknown. The jets dropped 17,500 pounds of bombs and fired 50 rockets during the two-hour raid.

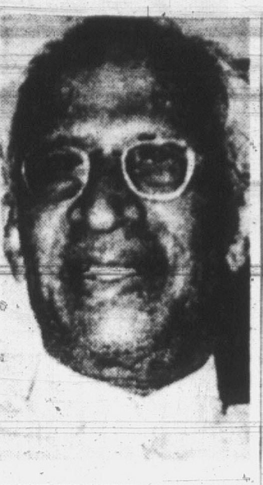
MARINE KILLED

A U.S. Marine Corps enlisted man was killed and another wounded early today when a grenade exploded accidentally at the Phu Bai marine installation northwest of Da Nang air base.

Saigon press reports said today that three American frogmen killed in a coastal area 340 miles north of the capital were slain by Viet Cong guerrillas while carrying out a beach survey.



King Camper . . . will hit freeways soon.



AFRO-ASIAN force to patrol the border between North and South Viet Nam was proposed today by Indian President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan. The force, he said, would help to prevent the conflict there from escalating into a major war.

PTA Pushes Referendum Law Change

The B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation wants the Public Schools Act amended to allow capital expenditures without a referendum.

A resolution approved by delegates asks that provincial grants be permitted without a referendum unless five per cent of the eligible owner-electors petition for a referendum.

It says the legislation should be changed because in many fast-growing areas of the province school construction does not keep pace with the demand for classroom space, resulting in overcrowded classrooms.

The resolution says referendums are not necessary under normal circumstances in the provinces of Alberta, Ontario and Quebec.

The resolution was proposed by the Prince Charles Parent-Teacher Association in Surrey.

CLOSE LOOK

The B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation will ask the provincial government to take another close look at the Liquor Act and provide a more effective means of controlling minors drinking.

The BCPTF says present legislation has placed the owners of liquor outlets in a "hypocritical" position because it is almost impossible to stay within the limits of the law.

The resolution also said the provincial government has relaxed many of the laws regarding the sale of liquor and as a result it is impossible for the liquor laws regarding minors to be effectively enforced.

Dies at Car Wheel

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—An autopsy will be performed on the body of William James Elder, 80, of North Vancouver, found dead at the wheel of his car after he left the highway Friday.

TIMES REPORTER IN CYPRUS

After Rainfall in France Bright Mediterranean Sun

(In recent weeks Victoria's Queen's Own Rifles have flown to Cyprus to take over peace-keeping duties for the United Nations. Times reporter Pete Loudon has followed them for a one-week visit. This is the first part of his continuing report.)

By PETE LOUDON

NICOSIA — France is like Trenton, you can't beat the navy and you're safe if a Turk is aiming at you.

These are the three main points I have to report a few hours after landing in Cyprus to visit the QORs.

The RCAF Yukon that brought 35 soldiers and newsmen and 18,000 pounds of freight here from Trenton, Ont., in about 13 hours landed for two hours at Marville, France, after a smooth Atlantic crossing.

It was frustrating to see the yellow-orange lights of Cardiff and Brighton and London and not make a landing. But we'd make up for it in France, we thought.

By our Ontario standards it was 8 p.m. and we were raring to spend a two-hour stopover sight-seeing. But it was 2 a.m. in France, dark and raining, and we never left the airport. It is a duplicate of the RCAF station we'd left from. The only Frenchmen we saw came from Quebec.

Racing toward the dawn at 450 miles per hour and four miles above the ground, we lost a night somewhere. It was daylight and we were over the Alps, the Riviera, Monaco. Nice looked nice and Napoleon's Elba appeared a grand place to be marooned.

Finally Cyprus, halfway around the world from Victoria and there's an ex-Victorian, Lieutenant-Commander Jim Wightman saying hello. It takes 6,000 soldiers to keep the peace here but just one sailor. Grounded by the complexities of a tri-service public relations system, Jim is the whole navy crew.

He has shepherded us through this lush, sunny island of date palms, mimosa blossoms, lemon and orange trees and horn-tooting taxis driving on the wrong side. We pass sandbagged positions manned by armed Greek Cypriots, Turk Cypriots and blue-helmeted UN troops.

Don't take pictures of the Turks, we're told, they don't like it and might shoot. A Turk shot a Greek in Nicosia while we were flying in. There are bullet scars on the hotel but we are told "You are safe if they are aiming at you." We don't plant to test the theory.

We plan to sleep. Then we'll go out and mail another letter for Lucien Rivard, as the current joke goes. We want to shop, too, and maybe find the hotel swimming pool.

Haven't seen any QORs yet, but in all this sub-tropical splendor one can't really hurry.

Grievances Of Negroes Under Study

BOSTON (AP)—Mayor John Collins studied a list of grievances from the city's Negro community today in the aftermath of a civil rights march and rally led by Rev. Martin Luther King.

After addressing a crowd estimated by police at 18,000 on historic Boston Common Friday, Dr. King went to city hall for what he later described as "fruitful and frank" meeting with the mayor.

Dr. King and local civil rights leaders presented the mayor with a list of grievances covering public housing, welfare and community needs and enforcement of fire, health and housing codes.

In his rally speech, Dr. King said he came to Boston, the headquarters more than a century ago of the movement to abolish slavery, "not to condemn but to encourage.

"It would be dishonest to say Boston is a Birmingham or that Massachusetts is a Mississippi. But it would be more irresponsible for me to deny the crippling poverty and the injustices that exist in some sections of the community."

Aged Woman Killed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Toki Urase, 81, was killed when struck by a taxicab as she crossed a street in the city's east-end district Friday.

Car Deadline Looked Impossible —And It Almost Proved to Be

By RON SUDLOW

Ten weeks ago Dave Whitehead, 240 King George Terrace, got an idea.

So he sunk $7,000 in parts plus all his time, dedication and patience into it.

The result is "Canada's Most Beautiful Roadster," today on display at Victoria Quarter-Milers Car Club's Eighth Annual Autorama at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Building a show car isn't easy. Building it in 10 weeks trying to hold down a job sounds impossible.

And Dave almost didn't make it in time for the show.

CLOSE CALL

His black roadster pickup with a camper was rolled into the arena 25 minutes before show time.

He and his brother, who prefers to be known as Spook, were setting the vehicle up in a display position while painter Red Murray applied the pin-stripping.

For the first eight weeks, Dave spent eight hours a night working on the auto after a full eight-hour day as a carpenter.

For the last two weeks he has worked from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 a.m. daily.

His King Camper is basically a 1929 Model A Ford roadster pickup with a 283 cu. in. 60 Chevrolet engine.

Chrome alone on the little beast is worth $2,000.

"Just about everything that comes off is chromed," said his brother, Spook.

STAINLESS STEEL

The car is channeled (lowered) and the frame is constructed of laminated stainless steel on the sides.

Its roof is fiberglas and upholstery is white, square-tufted naugahyde.

Another roadster, The Jewel, built by Whitehead in 1963 was named Hot Rod of the Year in the 1963 Oakland Roadster Show.

In 13 shows that year he claimed 11 sweepstakes (best in show) plus numerous paint, body and engineering awards.

But Dave's car isn't the only expensive piece of machinery glittering the arena floor.

OTHER ENTRIES

There are 29 other entries, many of them local, which will be competing for $1,000 in trophies.

Aside from $500,000 in custom cars, vintage cars, motorcycles and restored autos there are also two American-built competition models.

They are Miss Demeanor, a turbine-powered dragster, and a 1960 Class B Chevrolet gas dragster, which seems barely big enough to carry all the trophies its owner, Jim Morrey, has won in competition.

'UN Has No Power' To Recommend Force

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — France maintained Friday that the UN General Assembly does not have the power even to make recommendations on the use of force to maintain peace.

The French statement to the special 33-nation committee on peace-keeping was in direct opposition to the U.S. position that the 114-nation assembly has full power to deal with any peace-keeping problem, including the recommendation for peace forces.

The French statement appeared to go beyond the Soviet claim that the assembly could make recommendations on peace-keeping only after the Security Council failed to act.

France, the Soviet Union and 11 other countries have refused to pay UN assessments for peace-keeping operations on the ground that only the Security Council can make assessments for such projects.

The U.S. has insisted that these countries should not be eligible to vote because under the UN charter nations may not vote if they are two years behind in their dues.

Jurist Urges Papers To Appeal Conviction

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sun and Province newspapers Friday were fined a nominal $25 each and urged by Magistrate Gordon Scott to appeal convictions for publishing evidence during a preliminary hearing of a prior statement in which a witness quoted the defendant as admitting his guilt.

The magistrate called the trial a test case and said he hoped it would be appealed to establish some authoritative law on the subject.

He said he made the fines nominal because he believed the newspaper reports in question were published in good faith and in the belief they were within the law.

"There would be a very substantial penalty if I thought otherwise," the magistrate said.

The charges were laid following stories Dec. 16 last year on the previous day's testimony at a preliminary hearing in a murder case.

The accused later was found not guilty.

Magistrate Scott said the case had given him much concern. He said he had been impressed at first with defence arguments that statements in question could be published because they would be admissable at a higher-court trial.

However, he said, it was not up to a magistrate or the press to decide on the admissability at a higher-court trial of evidence given at a preliminary hearing.

Destroyer Men Set Visit to Station

Several officers and 25 men of the Royal Navy's guided missile destroyer, HMS Kent, will visit the RCN's radio station at Aldergrove, B.C., May 6.

The ship, bound for the United Kingdom from Singapore, will visit Victoria between April 30 and May 5 and then spend five days in Vancouver.

Altered Escort To Rejoin Pacific Fleet

HMCS Saguenay will be recommissioned into the Pacific Command May 14 at HMC Dockyard.

The Esquimalt-based destroyer escort is completing conversion there to variable-depth sonar and helicopter hangar and landing platform.

Major work on the St. Laurent Class DE was done by Burrard Dry Dock Co., Ltd., North Vancouver, and the ship was towed to the Dockyard for completion.

NEW U.S. HEAVY ATTACK BOMBERS DUE SOON

Jets Hammer Viet Convoys

SAIGON (AP)—An armada of 66 U.S. Air Force jets hammered at road convoys and a ferry installation in Communist North Viet Nam today in round-the-clock attacks.

A military spokesman reported six U.S. Air Force B-57 Canberra jet bombers blasted an anti-aircraft site and a truck convoy Friday night in North Viet Nam. He said all planes returned safely.

The daylight raids were carried out in two operations. Six Canberra jets attacked a road convoy in strafing attacks on three routes. A spokesman reported they knocked out the convoy and an anti-aircraft site.

Later, 35 F-105s supported by 25 jet fighters struck a highway bridge and docking ramps at a ferry crossing near Vinh, 135 miles south of Hanoi, the North Viet Nam capital. The bridge was reported destroyed.

In the ground war, a force of 300 to 500 Viet Cong attacked and defeated a government force in Kien Hoa province, 60 miles southeast of Saigon.

OVERRUN POST

The Viet Cong also overran a government post 15 miles south of Saigon Friday killing 16 and wounding 15 of the 33 defenders. Government artillery hammered the enemy and the post was reoccupied Saturday, but the Viet Cong had moved out.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Navy is bringing in its powerful A-6 Intruder jet attack bomber for strikes against North Viet Nam, a 7th Fleet spokesman reported.

The Intruders will arrive aboard the carrier Independence, which is to arrive for duty off Viet Nam "within the next couple of months," the fleet spokesman said.

Although the Intruder isn't a supersonic warplane like the F-4 Phantoms and the A-4 Skyhawks, an electronic countermeasures system carried by the Intruder could become increasingly important. More and more radar-aimed anti-aircraft emplacements are reported being put into operation in North Viet Nam and the radar-guided Soviet Sam II missiles apparently are on the way. Electronic counter measures could be used to jam the ground systems.

In East Berlin, Gen. Heinz Hoffmann, East Germany's defence minister, said Friday that Soviet ground-to-air missiles and jet fighters are in Viet Nam now.

Military spokesmen said the B-57s destroyed the North Vietnamese anti-aircraft site but damage to the truck convoy is unknown. The jets dropped 17,500 pounds of bombs and fired 50 rockets during the two-hour raid.

MARINE KILLED

A U.S. Marine Corps enlisted man was killed and another wounded early today when a grenade exploded accidentally at the Phu Bai marine installation northwest of Da Nang air base.

Saigon press reports said today that three American frogmen killed in a coastal area 340 miles north of the capital were slain by Viet Cong guerrillas while carrying out a beach survey.

Car Deadline Looked Impossible —And It Almost Proved to Be

By RON SUDLOW

Ten weeks ago Dave Whitehead, 240 King George Terrace, got an idea.

So he sunk $7,000 in parts plus all his time, dedication and patience into it.

The result is "Canada's Most Beautiful Roadster," today on display at Victoria Quarter-Milers Car Club's Eighth Annual Autorama at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Building a show car isn't easy. Building it in 10 weeks trying to hold down a job sounds impossible.

And Dave almost didn't make it in time for the show.

CLOSE CALL

His black roadster pickup with a camper was rolled into the arena 25 minutes before show time.

He and his brother, who prefers to be known as Spook, were setting the vehicle up in a display position while painter Red Murray applied the pin-stripping.

For the first eight weeks, Dave spent eight hours a night working on the auto after a full eight-hour day as a carpenter.

For the last two weeks he has worked from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 a.m. daily.

His King Camper is basically a 1929 Model A Ford roadster pickup with a 283 cu. in. 60 Chevrolet engine.

Chrome alone on the little beast is worth $2,000.

"Just about everything that comes off is chromed," said his brother, Spook.

STAINLESS STEEL

The car is channeled (lowered) and the frame is constructed of laminated stainless steel on the sides.

Its roof is fiberglas and upholstery is white, square-tufted naugahyde.

Another roadster, The Jewel, built by Whitehead in 1963 was named Hot Rod of the Year in the 1963 Oakland Roadster Show.

In 13 shows that year he claimed 11 sweepstakes (best in show) plus numerous paint, body and engineering awards.

But Dave's car isn't the only expensive piece of machinery glittering the arena floor.

OTHER ENTRIES

There are 29 other entries, many of them local, which will be competing for $1,000 in trophies.

Aside from $500,000 in custom cars, vintage cars, motorcycles and restored autos there are also two American-built competition models.

They are Miss Demeanor, a turbine-powered dragster, and a 1960 Class B Chevrolet gas dragster, which seems barely big enough to carry all the trophies its owner, Jim Morrey, has won in competition.

'UN Has No Power' To Recommend Force

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — France maintained Friday that the UN General Assembly does not have the power even to make recommendations on the use of force to maintain peace.

The French statement to the special 33-nation committee on peace-keeping was in direct opposition to the U.S. position that the 114-nation assembly has full power to deal with any peace-keeping problem, including the recommendation for peace forces.

The French statement appeared to go beyond the Soviet claim that the assembly could make recommendations on peace-keeping only after the Security Council failed to act.

France, the Soviet Union and 11 other countries have refused to pay UN assessments for peace-keeping operations on the ground that only the Security Council can make assessments for such projects.

The U.S. has insisted that these countries should not be eligible to vote because under the UN charter nations may not vote if they are two years behind in their dues.

Jurist Urges Papers To Appeal Conviction

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sun and Province newspapers Friday were fined a nominal $25 each and urged by Magistrate Gordon Scott to appeal convictions for publishing evidence during a preliminary hearing of a prior statement in which a witness quoted the defendant as admitting his guilt.

The magistrate called the trial a test case and said he hoped it would be appealed to establish some authoritative law on the subject.

He said he made the fines nominal because he believed the newspaper reports in question were published in good faith and in the belief they were within the law.

"There would be a very substantial penalty if I thought otherwise," the magistrate said.

The charges were laid following stories Dec. 16 last year on the previous day's testimony at a preliminary hearing in a murder case.

The accused later was found [illegible]

Magistrate Scott said the case had given him much concern. He said he had been impressed at first with defence arguments that statements in question could be published because they would be admissable at a higher-court trial.

However, he said, it was not up to a magistrate or the press to decide on the admissability at a higher-court trial of evidence given at a preliminary hearing.

AFRO-ASIAN force to patrol the border between North and South Viet Nam was proposed today by Indian President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan. The force, he said, would help to prevent the conflict there from escalating into a major war.

PTA Pushes Referendum Law Change

The B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation wants the Public Schools Act amended to allow capital expenditures without a referendum.

A resolution approved by delegates asks that provincial grants be permitted without a referendum unless five per cent of the eligible owner-electors petition for a referendum.

It says the legislation should be changed because in many fast-growing areas of the province school construction does not keep pace with the demand for classroom space, resulting in overcrowded classrooms.

The resolution says referendums are not necessary under normal circumstances in the provinces of Alberta, Ontario and Quebec.

The resolution was proposed by the Prince Charles Parent-Teacher Association in Surrey.

CLOSE LOOK

The B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation will ask the provincial government to take another close look at the Liquor Act and provide a more effective means of controlling minors drinking.

The BCPTF says present legislation has placed the owners of liquor outlets in a "hypocritical" position because it is almost impossible to stay within the limits of the law.

The resolution also said the provincial government has relaxed many of the laws regarding the sale of liquor and as a result it is impossible for the liquor laws regarding minors to be effectively enforced.

Dies at Car Wheel

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) —An autopsy will be performed on the body of William James Elder, 80, of North Vancouver, found dead at the wheel of his car after he left the highway Friday.

TIMES REPORTER IN CYPRUS

After Rainfall in France Bright Mediterranean Sun

(In recent weeks Victoria's Queen's Own Rifles have flown to Cyprus to take over peace-keeping duties for the United Nations. Times reporter Pete Loudon has followed them for a one-week visit. This is the first part of his continuing report.)

By PETE LOUDON

NICOSIA — France is like Trenton, you can't beat the navy and you're safe if a Turk is aiming at you.

These are the three main points I have to report a few hours after landing in Cyprus to visit the QORs.

The RCAF Yukon that brought 35 soldiers and newsmen and 18,000 pounds of freight here from Trenton, Ont., in about 13 hours landed for two hours at Marville, France, after a smooth Atlantic crossing.

It was frustrating to see the yellow-orange lights of Cardiff and Brighton and London and not make a landing. But we'd make up for it in France, we thought.

By our Ontario standards it was 8 p.m. and we were raring to spend a two-hour stopover sight-seeing. But it was 2 a.m. in France, dark and raining, and we never left the airport. It is a duplicate of the RCAF station we'd left from. The only Frenchmen we saw came from Quebec.

Racing toward the dawn at 450 miles per hour and four miles above the ground, we lost a night somewhere. It was daylight and we were over the Alps, the Riviera, Monaco. Nice looked nice and Napoleon's Elba appeared a grand place to be marooned.

Finally Cyprus, halfway around the world from Victoria and there's an ex-Victorian, Lieutenant-Commander Jim Wightman saying hello. It takes 6,000 soldiers to keep the peace here but just one sailor. Grounded by the complexities of a tri-service public relations system, Jim is the whole navy crew.

He has shepherded us through this lush, sunny island of date palms, mimosa blossoms, lemon and orange trees and horn-tooting taxis driving on the wrong side. We pass sandbagged positions manned by armed Greek Cypriots, Turk Cypriots and blue-helmeted UN troops.

Don't take pictures of the Turks, we're told, they don't like it and might shoot. A Turk shot a Greek in Nicosia while we were flying in. There are bullet scars on the hotel but we are told "You are safe if they are aiming at you." We don't plant to test the theory.

We plan to sleep. Then we'll go out and mail another letter for Lucien Rivard, as the current joke goes. We want to shop, too, and maybe find the hotel swimming pool.

Haven't seen any QORs yet, but in all this sub-tropical splendor one can't really hurry.

Grievances Of Negroes Under Study

BOSTON (AP) Mayor John Collins studied a list of grievances from the city's Negro community today in the aftermath of a civil rights march and rally led by Rev. Martin Luther King.

After addressing a crowd estimated by police at 18,000 on historic Boston Common Friday, Dr. King went to city hall for what he later described as "fruitful and frank" meeting with the mayor.

Dr. King and local civil rights leaders presented the mayor with a list of grievances covering public housing, welfare and community needs and enforcement of fire, health and housing codes.

In his rally speech, Dr. King said he came to Boston, the headquarters more than a century ago of the movement to abolish slavery, "not to condemn but to encourage.

"It would be dishonest to say Boston is a Birmingham or that Massachusetts is a Mississippi. But it would be more irresponsible for me to deny the crippling poverty and the injustices that exist in some sections of the community."

Aged Woman Killed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Toki Urase, 81, was killed when struck by a taxicab as she crossed a street in the city's east-end district Friday.

Victoria Daily Times

Arthur Mayse

In my work basket, as I settle down to another bout of cramping the alphabet into new patterns, is a fat folder loaned me by a chum who is investigating a mail-order course on writing for money.

So far, I haven't got around to looking inside; but on the front cover is an encouraging picture of a sure-enough writer at work.

He is a big, handsome fellow with a good head of rumpled hair. His tweed jacket is a bit long in the pelt, but very well cut, and he is, of course, smoking a pipe. The desk in his book-lined study is obviously a writer's, because on it, along with typewriter, paper, manuscript pages and reference books is a bowl bristling with pencils.

This guy is typing, not with a two finger hunt-and-poke, but with all his pinkies, yet; and the obvious inference is that the top seller on his publisher's fall list is in process of creation.

Well, so much for the picture. And I'll bet could we snoop over this operator's square shoulder, we would find he's inscribing "Now is the time for all good men," or jumping the quick brown fox over the lazy dog's back.

★ ★ ★

I won't say he isn't a writer. But if he is, you can bet that his wife has spent the last three days tidying up his workroom, and that he probably borrowed the pipe.

What I do insist is that he's anything but representative, and that your working scrivener a moody fellow much better read than met would never have made the cover of that correspondence school prospectus.

He might indeed have pencils in a bowl, peanut butter jar or bar glass, but not to use. They'd be for him to sharpen each morning, and so put off the agony of getting down to work.

His ears would slant slightly backward, a deformation that comes from listening for the mailman. At his elbow would be an ashtray overflowing with butts, and he would be surrounded by crumpled spoil-sheets. As for clothing, give him rump-sprung pants and a sport shirt.

He would welcome an excuse to shove away from his desk, light another cigarette, and reveal some daunting facts about his trade. These would include the following:

That even if it finds a publisher, which is by no means probable, a first novel may not net its author the price of a new set of tires.

(I have a friend whose first royalty cheque hangs framed over his desk . . . twenty-five cents.)

★ ★ ★

That a professional fictioneer may go six months or a year without making a strike; that if a newcomer is lucky enough to crack the short-story market, six sales will be his lifetime total as the percentages run; and that the average successful dream-merchant is humbly grateful if he sells from one third to half his output.

All this being so, you will understand why I am cool toward come-alongs which overstate the glamour and minimize the difficulties of writing for a living.

I know that in this city are any number of eager young and not-so-young aspirants who will shrug off everything I've said here as so much pessimistic croaking.

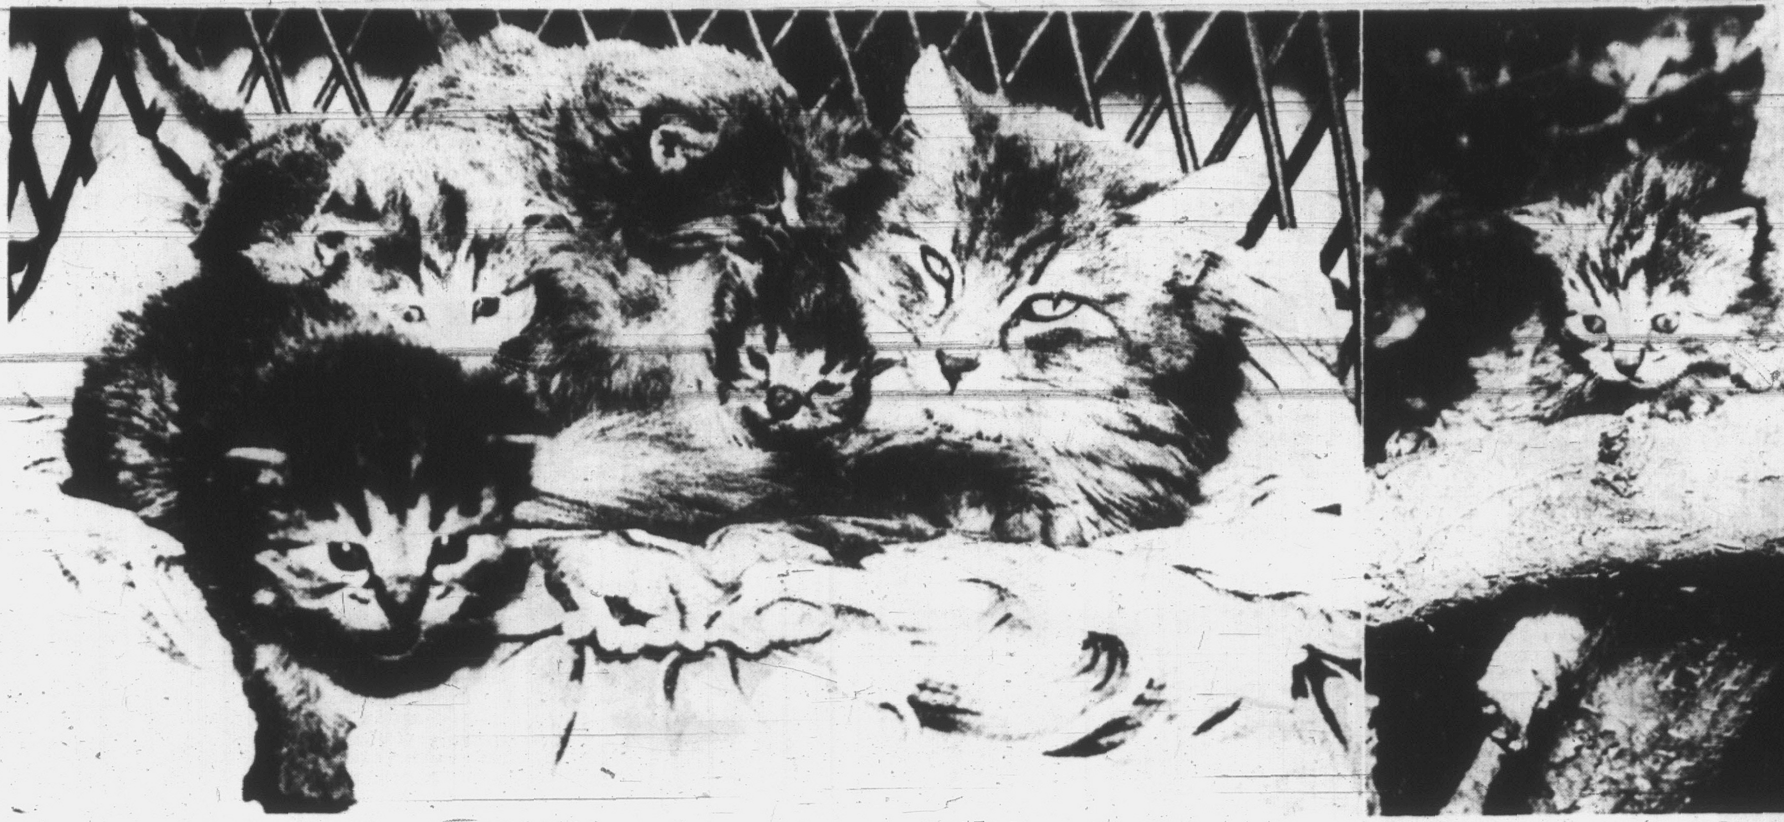
But since few weeks go by without a call from some would-be writer, I am going to set down a few ground-rules.

Don't go free-lancing until or unless you have proved you can make a living from your typewriter. Even then, write from the shelter of a job if you like security and hate gambling.

Study your markets; most beginners don't. Set up a writing schedule, and in that period, even if you feel like death warmed over, force words on to paper.

Never talk out a story plot, not even with your dearest. If you do, you're unlikely to write it.

And please, if you do crack the barrier, don't ever pose like that joker on the writing course enticement!



House for the Birds, Back to Tree for Him

"Rats! This down-to-earth stuff's getting me down. You lot can stay if you want, but I'm branching out. This terra-firma's too earthy for me. Maybe I'm barking up the wrong tree but, after all, there's no place like home . . ." For this young family, home was up a tree for the first two weeks of their life. Mother puss moved into the tree-top apartment on Crown Crescent, off Cook Street, in readiness for the big day. A stray part-Persian, she has since been removed from her precarious perch and found a more conventional home. (Times photos by Bill Halkett.)

GUARD TO WATCH FOR GOLDFINGER

A day and night guard will be kept on next month's Jaycee Fair.

The guards will be keeping watch on a brick.

No ordinary brick this; but a $10,000 gold brick.

The miniature mint is one of the special attracttions at the fair, opening May 17.

And Victorians will get a shot at taking the brick home.

It is to be raffled off during the six days of the fair by an Edmonton man.

Similar bricks have been raffled off in the past at the Calgary Stampede.

During the week it will be housed in a special showcase for would-be winners to feast their eyes on.

Said a Jaycee spokesman today: "We have been approached by this Edmonton man.

EARLY FORTUNE

"Special security police will be hired to make sure no one gets any ideas about building an early fortune."

The fair will run in Memorial Arena and the Curling rink.

Already most of the acts for the week have been booked though contracts have not yet been signed.

Top feature is expected to be a well-known accordionist and a singing group.

The usual midway including a special kiddies' section will be in full swing behind the arena while more than 130 display booths will be set up in the two buildings.

Although there will be only one gold brick there will be nightly prizes of $500 on weekly pass numbers.

Another $1,000 will be given away Saturday, plus a car.

In the agricultural field there will be displays of poultry and rabbits, plus a cattle judging contest.

Although arrangements have not yet been completed a local stable will stage a horse show.

Young and old men will get a chance to hit bull's eye and send a girl flying into a bath of water.

ELEGANT TOUCH

Adding a touch of elegance to the scene wil be the new Miss Victoria and the other nine finalists.

There will be hot-dogs and candy, swings and roundabouts, in fact all the fun of the fair.

SAWMILL TARGET

New Move Hinted In Smoke Battle

By BOB DONAHUE

Increased pressure for control may be brought against Plumper Bay Sawmills Ltd., described as the last major smoke pollution source in Greater Victoria.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer for the Metropolitan Board of Health, said today the company has ignored previous requests to control smoke and the subject may be brought up again at the next board meeting.

There has been a suggestion the provisions of the provincial Health Act be used to force the company to control the smoke from its refuse burners.

The manager of the company, P. S. Johl, said today he would make no comment as to whether the company would take steps to control its smoke pollution.

Residents of the area, mostly in View Royal and Christie Point, are again up in arms because officials of the company still refuse to make any comment about the situation.

Esquimalt member of the health board, Coun. George Argyle, said today he is looking forward to amalgamation with View Royal so increased pressure could be brought to bear against the sawmill.

B.C. Forest Products Ltd. announced this week that it is closing and dismantling the burner at Point Ellice sawmill and Smith Cedar Products Ltd., has announced its operation is now entirely smoke-free.

The Plumper Bay smoke problem was first brought before the Metro Health Board about two years ago.

Because the sawmill is outside the municipal boundaries the board could take no direct action.

CONTROL SMOKE

After making a study of the pollution from the plant the board appealed to Ottawa and the Indian Affairs department, on whose land the sawmill is situated.

They also requested the company to start some measures to control the smoke.

They have heard nothing more as a result of either of the three appeals.

Correct address is Box 882, Victoria, B.C.

Nothing to Lose Sleep About But Turn Your Clock AHEAD

By TERRY IZZARD

The hour of reckoning is upon us.

The fateful hour when time flies.

At least it will fly for some when daylight saving time comes into effect at 2 a.m. Sunday.

For others it will stand still.

It's all a question of how you look at it.

On (clock) face value it's quite simple.

At one minute to two you're up with the times.

At one minute past you're living on borrowed time.

To keep things ticking smoothly just twist the big hand ahead through 360 degrees when you retire tonight.

All being well you can drop into bed and dream until baby wakes at 7 a.m.

But baby's not going to wake at 7 a.m. She's going to be up and about at 6.

On the other hand maybe she's going to lie in until 8.

After all, it's 3 now. A minute ago it was 2.

So at 7 it will be 8; or will it be 8 at 7?

Three hours ago it was midnight, but it's only two hours since the clock struck 12. Add an hour that never was, and subtract the difference [illegible] the total number of hours in the day.

Gives you 25 and nightmares.

This will be the quandry facing millions at the weekend as the regular-as-clockwork routine comes up for its biannual overhaul.

Some will pull through the ordeal unscathed.

Others will never tick the same again.

For the very weak the bells will have tolled their last.

After all, time waits for no man . . . and in this case only time can tell.

TOPICS of the DAY

Royal Victoria Yacht Club boating enthusiasts were hard at work today at 6 a.m. to get their craft in the water after the winter lay-off.

The early-morning hour was the only time a tide was available to carry out the launchings.

The club's opening day and sailpast will be May 8.

Magistrate William Ostler said Friday that relatives who helped a young man cover up bad cheques in his past actually did not help him.

He said they only encouraged Christopher Howson, 1239 Park Terrace, to think he "could get away with it."

Howson earlier pleaded guilty to eight charges involving bad cheques. The magistrate fined him $50 on each charge and bound him over on a $250 bond for six months.

The magistrate ordered Howson to pay the fine at the rate of $50 a month.

Return Subsidies Retroactively, MP to Tell Gov't

Victoria MP David Groos said today he intends to press the federal government to return the "frozen" subsidy for shipbuilding.

In particular, he said, he will ask the government if it will agree that when a decision is reached it will be made retroactive to the "freezing" in February.

He was commenting on local shipyards who say they face serious problems as a result of the freeze and the national tendering for conversion of the Esquimalt-based destroyer-escort HMCS Fraser.

This job, worth $3 million, went to Canadian Vickers Ltd. in Montreal.

Mr. Groos emphasized no policy decision has been made that federal government ships will be bid on a national basis.

Previously, bidding was restricted in the region where the ship was to be based.

"I think the government will turn down national bidding," he said.

NATIONAL BASIS

Asked why the Fraser was bid on a national basis, he said he could only guess that perhaps this was a test case to see what would happen with national bidding.

"It illustrates the point that national bidding is not feasible at this time," he said.

"In time, wage rates in the east will approximate those in the west."

At present, there is an average $1 per hour per man difference in wage costs.

Shipyard owners here say no amount of increased efficiency and favorable climatic conditions can make up that difference and put west coast yards on an equal footing with those in the east.

SUBSIDY PROGRAM

On the subsidy program, in which the federal government had paid 35 per cent of the cost of ships, Mr. Groos said no indication has been given when a special committee will complete its report.

In the meantime, the subsidies have been frozen and shipyards say this is holding back orders.

Both Yarrows and Victoria Machinery Depot, which employ more than 1,500, say they have no orders in sight beyond the end of the year.

"We can employ between 600 and 700 men until the end of the year, but after that there is nothing in sight," said John Wallace, general manager at Yarrows.

VMD president Harold Husband said his yard is busy at the moment particularly with ferries for the provincial government "and our work there ends at the end of 1965."

They recalled Defence Minister Paul Hellyer said last December regional building of ships is the "most inefficient way ever devised by man to build ships."

Employees Of Eaton's Back Fund

Employees of Eaton's of Victoria have decided to donate $5,000 to the Three Universities Capital Fund.

Fund officials have been told they will receive $1,000 a year for the next five years from the Eaton's employees.

Seven gifts, totalling $6,435, have already been received in the corporations and executives division.

Vancouver Island division of the fund hopes to raise $2,000,000 of a $28,000,000 fund objective which will be used for buildings and equipment at the three universities, University of Victoria, University of B.C., and Simon Fraser University.

DR. CARTER:

Fluoride Vote Likely To Get Council Nod

By RON SUDLOW

Oak Bay Councillor Dr. Harold Carter said today he is confident his motion to hold a water fluoridation referendum in the municipality will pass easily.

The issue will come before council Monday evening.

"All the motion needs is a simple majority. I think it will be passed," he said.

He based his prediction on "certain indications" of councillors present at a committee of the whole meeting April 5 when he served notice of motion.

"Only one councillor seemed to be a fence-hanger. I think he just wanted to see how the others felt about it first," he added.

"The reeve (Allan Cox) is for it."

Coun. Walter Dodsworth was absent when Coun. Carter put forth his motion.

EARLIEST DATE

If council decides to hold a referendum, Coun. Carter will ask it to be held at "the earliest possible date that is legal."

To pass, the motion will need a 60 percent majority from those casting ballots.

This will be the second chance for Oak Bay residents to have their water fluoridated.

Last time was 1959 when only 37 per cent of Greater Victoria residents voted in favor.

Of the four municipalities, Oak Bay had the highest percentage of "yes" votes.

PICKED for new series of lunch-hour concerts in McPherson Playhouse is Canadian folk singer Murray McAlpine, seen here with Teresa Forslund at piano. The concerts, promoted by Kenneth Gravenor, will be held at 12:10 and 1:10 p.m., starting May 3. Mr. McAlpine was one of several artists chosen at today's auditions. Others include pianist Marilyn McArthur, baritone John Bray and Rosalie and George Essihos.

Vital B.C. Interest

Japanese Trade Here At New High

(Next month the B.C. government will send a substantial trade mission to Japan, headed by Premier Bennett. Behind this move is a major boom, not only in Japanese trade with B.C. and the rest of Canada, but in Japanese investment in our industry. In two articles Times business editor Jim Hume examines this background.)

By JIM HUME

Japanese-Canadian trade, booming since the late 1950's, took a $16,000,000 leap in 1964 when exports through B.C. ports hit a record $272,894,736.

The record came as no surprise to government officials who early last year confidently predicted that the $256.4 million mark set in 1963 would easily be passed.

They are equally confident that before 1965 ends trade with Japan will be pushing $300,000,000.

Their forecast is not as fearless as it might sound.

Since 1959 when Canadian exports to Japan via B.C. were $119 million sales figures have climbed at a rapid rate.

In 1960 B.C. ports cleared $138 million in raw materials, wheat and other products destined for Japan.

A year later the total had climbed to $173.9 million and in 1962, the year the Japanese cut back on buying, still managed a three million dollar increase to reach the $176.9 million mark.

Second Boom

In the wake of the trading boom which has seen trading figures double in five years has come a second boom in the investment of Japanese capital in Canada.

To date most of that investment has been made in B.C. with mining projects the main target.

But there are signs, such as the recently announced automobile assembly plant in Nova Scotia, that the Japanese are starting to expand both their buying and their investment horizons.

Alberta makes no secret of the fact that it looks with envy on B.C.'s role of prime target for Japanese buying and investment.

Minister of Industry Russ Patrick says his government is doing all it can to encourage the Japanese to look beyond the Rockies for new fields to conquer.

"But," he adds, "compared with Japanese developed business with British Columbia I would have to say that ours is in its infancy."

Japan does buy some coal from Alberta and is looking for more. She buys potash from Saskatchewan and a limited amount of ore from Manitoba, but B.C., with average annual sales of around $120,000,000 to Japan, still tops the list.

Not that the prairie provinces are not profiting from the Japanese search for raw materials and food.

Big Grain Sales

For the past five years wheat purchases from Canada, all shipped through B.C. ports, have hovered around the $90 million mark.

In 1964, for example, Japan paid $98 million for Canadian wheat, close to $4,000,000 for

Cyprus Armed Posts Being Dismantled

(See Story Page 3)

NICOSIA (AP) — The Greek Cypriot government announced today it has started dismantling its fortified positions along the borderline dividing the Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot sectors of Larnaca in south Cyprus.

A spokesman for the government of President Makarios said similar fortifications in Paphos in the northwest and Limassol in the south already have been dismantled.

Makarios had announced that all Greek-Cypriot armed posts, fortifications and police checkpoints in three of the island's six districts will be removed as a step toward pacification and normalization of life in Cyprus.

The Turkish-Cypriot leadership has branded the Makarios move as an attempt to mislead international public opinion. A Turkish-Cypriot statement, added, however, that anything that makes life easier for some of the island's Turkish minority is welcome.

The Greek and Turkish-Cypriots have been feuding since December, 1963, when open fighting broke out over Makarios' attempt to abrogate the island's constitution. A UN peace force, to which Canada has supplied troops, has been maintaining an uneasy truce between the two sides.

MARTIN DETAILS TREATY SIGNING

'Not You (Quebec); But Us (Ottawa)'

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government, concerned over Quebec's claims to international treaty-making powers, Friday night issued a three-page policy pronouncement that says provinces may negotiate but not sign pacts with foreign governments.

External Affairs Minister Martin conceded there is a "lack of harmony" between treaty-making and treaty-implementing powers but said "there is no doubt that only the government of Canada has the power or authority to enter into treaties with other countries."

His statement, an expansion of remarks made recently by himself and Prime Minister Pearson, was an apparent reply to speeches during the week by Paul Gerin-Lajoie, Quebec's education minister.

The external affairs minister said "once it is determined that what a province wishes to achieve through agreements in the field of education or in other fields of provincial jurisdiction falls within the framework of Canadian foreign policy, the provinces can discuss detailed arrangements directly with the competent authorities of the country concerned.

"When a formal international agreement is to be concluded, however, the federal powers relating to the signature of treaties, and the conduct of over-all foreign policy must necessarily come into operation."

Mr. Martin, in his home riding of Essex East in Windsor, Ont., issued the statement through his office in the capital. The fact the government found it necessary to issue it at all

VANCOUVER — The Teamsters' Union said this afternoon it is "our firm understanding" 21 cartage companies will implement lockout notice upon expiry Sunday night.

If the lockout is effected, pickets will be posted immediately, said Ed Lawson, president of Teamsters' Joint Council, No. 36.

He also understood the other 20 companies will serve lockout notice on employees Sunday night.

No talks are going on and none are planned, he said. Only one of three Vancouver Island companies has shown a desire for talks.

VIOLENT CRASH KILLS YOUTH, 18

MANGLED WRECKAGE of car in which youth was fatally injured is inspected by passer-by shortly after accident occurred at Obed and Bodega early this morning. (Photo by Strickland.)

Neighbors Awakened By Noise

By DESMOND BILL

An 18-year-old youth was fatally injured early this morning in a grinding two-car collision at a suburban intersection.

The impact was so violent it awakened the neighborhood and shook houses 150 feet away.

Dead is Ronald Garside, 1712 Bay Street, an apprentice carpenter.

GARSIDE
. . . alone in car

Police said the other driver involved, Garry B. Haut, 20, of 920 Jasmine, escaped with a slight cut on his chin.

Both drivers were alone in their cars when the accident occurred shortly after 1 a.m. at Obed and Bodega.

FIFTH VICTIM

The youth was the fifth traffic victim in Greater Victoria this year.

He apparently had been out with friends Friday night and was on his way home.

Saanich police said Garside was going south on Bodega and Haut west on Obed. Their cars met at the uncontrolled intersection.

After the impact Haut's car continued west and Garside's vehicle went off the road and spun around a power pole.

Garside, who did not have seat belts in his car, was thrown from the driver's side into the front passenger seat. He was found lying partly out of the door.

CHEST INJURIES

Saanich fire department ambulance rushed him to St. Joseph's Hospital where he died of chest injuries at 4 a.m.

An autopsy was held this morning to determine the exact cause of death. The date of the inquest will be announced later.

Mrs. William Jordan, 370 Obed, who lives three houses away from the intersection, said she was half asleep in bed when she heard the noise of the accident.

She said, "I heard a squeal and a thump. The whole house shook. It sounded like it happened on our front lawn."

HEARD CRASH

Mrs. Jordan said that when she and her husband went outside other neighbors were appearing who had also heard the collision.

Garside was born in Victoria and was educated at Gordon Head School before his family moved to Kitimat in 1955. When they came back to Victoria in 1963 he attended Oak Bay Junior High School before going to work as an apprentice carpenter.

He is survived by his father, George Garside, and two brothers, Allan and David. His mother died more than a year ago.

Crest of Destruction Strikes Iowa, Illinois

DUBUQUE, Iowa (AP)—The Mississippi River, its high water mark achieved in Wisconsin, continued its destructive rush past Iowa and Illinois communities today.

The river crested Friday in Prairie du Chien, Wis., at an estimated 25.3 feet — 7.3 feet above flood stage. It was difficult to tell the exact river level because the flood gauge was under water.

Dubuque residents braced for a record 26.7-foot crest expected Sunday and watched in fear as two tall tanks filled with inflammable material threatened to topple.

Guttenberg, Iowa, a town of 1,900 some 20 miles down river from Prairie du Chien, fought a major battle with the churning river that assaulted its levee.

Winds began whipping waves over the flood wall Friday but scores of volunteers, including high school girls, heaved sandbags to raise the dike to a safe level: Four feet of water would have flooded two-thirds of Guttenberg if their efforts had failed.

In Dubuque, workers pumped water into the two weakened storage tanks for balance as they threatened to fall.

The Red Cross said it is feeding more than 1,000 workers in Dubuque and more than 400 in Guttenberg and reported 1,000 of the 5,700 Prairie du Chien residents had left their homes.

Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota have been declared federal disaster areas and Illinois petitioned Friday for the status.

Governor Otto Kerner wired President Johnson for $1,000,000 in initial aid, saying Illinois property has suffered $25,000,000 in flood and tornado damage.

Governor Karl Rolvaag of Minnesota raised his estimate of flood damage to $88,000,000 from $50,000,000.

Goodies or Dismay . . . All Known Monday

By STEWART MacLEOD

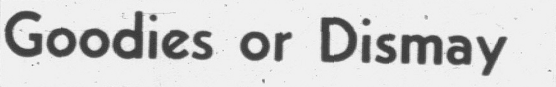
OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's best-kept annual secret will be unveiled when Finance Minister Gordon rises, to the usual desk-thumping encouragement of Liberal backbenchers, and delivers his third budget speech Monday night.

In 90 minutes, or perhaps less, he will present the results of months of work, affecting virtually every person in Canada.

Only about half a dozen persons have advance knowledge of what he will say.

With the secrecy of a military invasion, the budget is brought to fruition with painstaking precautions.

The final draft of this budget was completed before Easter, but minor changes in the speech were inserted this week. This was a polishing job, not affecting the meat of the matter.



M' Uncle Zeke's lookin' forward t' th' fed'ral budget on Monday. Wants t' find out how y' git rich from yer debts.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The United Steelworkers' Union announced today the first contract extension with a steel company, postponing the May 1 strike deadline for Phoenix Steel Corp.

Union President David J. McDonald said the agreement will be signed formally Monday, covering some 1,000 steelworkers at the firm's plant in Phoenixville, Pa., and 2,000 workers at another plant in Claymont, Del.

Border Clash 'Almost War'

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Fighting continued today at a disputed India-Pakistan border point and Indian reinforcements were being moved up, a defence ministry spokesman said late tonight.

Earlier tonight, an Indian spokesman said there was "no military build-up" by the Indians although Pakistani forces had allegedly launched a big new attack.

"This is almost war," the spokesman declared, saying Pakistani forces were supported by tanks in the disputed border area between West Pakistan and the marshes of Kutch.

The spokesman said Pakistan had moved an infantry division to the border, a regiment of medium tanks, one of light tanks, a medium artillery and two squadrons of F-86 fighter-bombers.

The spokesman said only a small force held the Indian position but they "replied most effectively to the unprovoked Pakistani attack."

He said the size of some of the attacks, and the "obvious preparation that has gone into this large-scale aggressive activity" gave rise to the belief that Pakistan's "belligerent attitude was becoming positively more threatening."

Both India and Pakistan have moved tank-supported regular troops into the Rann of Kutch, an uninhabited 10 mile square patch of marsh and mudflat on the India-West Pakistan border.

Pakistan has included its section of the region in coastline to be surveyed for off-shore oil drilling by the Sun Oil Company of the United States.

World-Wide Search For Rear View ID

LONDON (UPI)—The individuality of a cow is not apparent from the rear. That, alas, is the vista most often confronting the milker.

The problem is to devise a method for identifying cows from the rear.

The government milk marketing board yesterday offered a £500 ($1,400 prize to the person who comes up with the answer.

The identification mark must be readable from a distance of four yards, from behind. "In a great majority of cases," the board said, "the cow stands with her back to the milker."

And why must cows submit to such classification?

"Cows," the board answers, "are required to be identified at milking times for correct allocation of the quantity and quality of the milk produced, and for the rationing of feeding stuffs."

Further, "cows and calves are required to be identified at other times for breeding and management purposes."

The identification must be permanent. It must not hurt. It must be cheap.

Branding is out. It would spoil the animal's appearance and her market value. Dye washes off.

Entries must be received by September. Most early suggestions favored identification plates.

CLIFFHANGER RACE

Manchester U., Leeds Both Win

LONDON (AP) — Leeds United and Manchester United won their matches today and now fight out a cliff-hanging finish to the English League soccer championship as a discipline-weakened Chelsea team dropped out of the running.

Leeds United won 3-0 in an away game against Sheffield United and lead Manchester United by one point.

Manchester United defeated Liverpool, England's European Cup semi-finalists, 3-0 and still remain favorites to take the title and qualify for next season's European Cup.

Manchester, sparked by two goals from Denis Law, has 59 points to Leeds United's 60. But Leeds has only one remaining match. Manchester United has two games to play next week.

Chelsea, the team that hit the headlines this week when manager Tommy Docherty sent home eight of his first team players for breaking curfew, crashed 6-2 at Burnley. Chelsea with one game to play has only 56 points and is out of the championship race.

The eight players disciplined by Chelsea manager Docherty did not play in today's game. They watched from the stands.

The banned players included stars such as club captain Terry Venables, England centre forward Barry Bridges and Scottish fullback Eddie McCreadie.

USES RESERVES

Docherty patched up his team with reserves and youngsters. But this courageous decision—taken for disciplinary reasons—did not pay off.

And the man who belted Chelsea was Burnley's inside right Andy Lockhead who got five of Burnley's six goals.

Now the most thrilling finish in years to the English championship rests between Leeds and Manchester — with Leeds still having a chance of completing the league and Cup double. Leeds play Liverpool in the FA Cup final at Wembley Stadium next Saturday.

Leeds took the lead against Sheffield United through Jim Storrie before half time and then another two goals from Billy Bremner and Alan Peacock made the game safe in the second half.

Meanwhile, Manchester was giving Liverpool, who play inter Milan of Italy in the European Cup, a few lessons in soccer.

Law scored for Manchester in the 40th minute and then netted a second in the 59th minute. Manchester's final goal came from winger John Connelly in the 82nd minute.

Law injured his leg and was off the field for 15 minutes.

Wolverhampton and Birmingham drop into the Second Division and Newcastle and Northampton move up into the premier division.

Flood Threat Still Eases

EMERSON, Man. (CP) — The Red River continued to spill its flood-waters slowly into the business section of this border community today.

Residents, cheered by a downward revision in the flood forecast Friday, breathed more easily in the hope the peak was near.

Mayor Leonard Carless said after a morning tour of the town: "I don't think it will come up farther than it has. At least we're hoping."

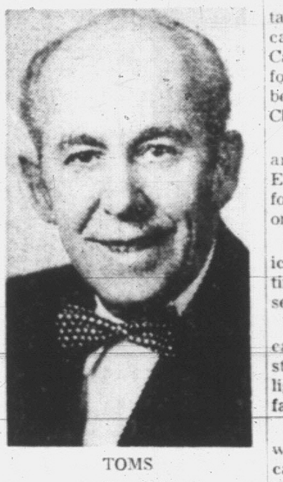
Colorful Service as Greeks Celebrate Arrival of Easter



TOMS
. . . after Easter

A flower-decked casket containing a figure of Christ was carried through Christ Church Cathedral Friday night and fololwed by more than 200 members of the Greek Orthodox Church bearing lighted candles.

Greeks throughout the world are observing this week as Easter weekend because they follow the Julian, not the Gregorian calendar.

The colorful Epitaphios service was held here for the first time as the official Greek observance of Good Friday.

Before the service began, the casket was placed on the altar steps of the cathedral, with lighted candles and a cross fashioned with white lilies.

Four small girls in flowing white robes stood by the casket carrying white baskets of rose petals and later followed it down the main aisle of the church and around the cathedral block.

Members of the congregation followed carrying lighted candles.

Father John Floropoulos of Vancouver conducted the service, which is symbolically a funeral service for Christ. The Lord's Prayer was recited in Greek—the language in which the New Testament was originally written.

A native of Athens, Father Floropoulos came to British Columbia 11 years ago. He explained that the Greek Orthodox Church was originally part of the Roman Catholic faith.

"The division occurred in the 11th century," he said. "It was partly due to a difference of opinion over the authority of the Pope."

GUEST preacher in Fairfield United Church Sunday morning will be Very Rev. Dr. Hugh A. McLeod, former moderator of the United Church of Canada. The resident minister, Rev. Dr. H. W. Kerley will conduct baptisms at this service and Mrs. Dorothy Dawson will sing I know that my Redeemer liveth.

Significance Of Ascension Church Topic

The Importance and Significance of the Ascension of Christ into Glory will be the post-Easter subject of Rev. R. E. S. Toms in the Apostolic Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

"The message will deal in part with an event that took place after the Ascension and is now stirring the great church denominations from coast to coast," says Mr. Toms.

Rev. Neil Moore, outstanding evangelist and musician, will play in the church Monday and Tuesday at 8 p.m. The public will be welcome.

Man's Search For Answers Film Topic

Where did man come from? Why is he here? Where is he going?

Such questions are answered in the film Man's Search for Happiness, to be presented in the Victoria Morman Chapel, 2990 Quadra Street, May 1 at 7:30 p.m.

The film was shown in the Morman Pavilion at the New York World's Fair and has been booked for Victoria by two Mormon missionaries now working here.

They are Elders Ronald Rowen, from Melba, Idaho, and Roland Anderson, Alamo, Nevada, both stationed at 2990 Quadra Street.

They expect to be in Victoria for at least six months, but are subject to transfer at any time. There are six Mormon missionaries in Victoria and about 145 in B.C. and Alaska.

Man In Hurry Leaves Scene, Found Guilty

A young man in a hurry was convicted Friday in Oak Bay court of careless driving and failing to remain at an accident scene.

Norman Abbott, 1239 Oliver, was remanded o May 7 for sentence. Abbott was involved in an accident March 9 on Hampshire in which he collided with a parked car.

His lawyer said the accused was late for an appointment and it was worry over this that caused him to drive off after stopping briefly.

Sermons To Glow In Sky

ESSEN, West Germany (Reuters)—Biblical texts and short sermons glow in letters against the sky over industrial Essen as the Roman Catholic church uses the latest advertising methods to preach to a mass audience.

The texts are flashed across the city from a moving electrical signboard erected on top of a skyscraper in the heart of the city.

It is believed to be the first time that such a signboard has been used for religious purposes.

The signboard, dedicated by the Bishop of Essen, Franz Hengsbach, will carry religious messages twice daily, during the morning and evening rush hours.

Child Safety Day Trumpeted For May 2

Two proclamations were announced today designating Child Safety Day and National Insurance Women's Day in B.C.

Child Safety Day was set for Sunday, May 2, "to focus attention on the tragic and needless toll of accidental deaths and injuries suffered by the children of our province."

The proclamation, signed by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, noted that 149 children under the age of 10 years died in accidents last year and another 8,881 were hospitalized.

National Insurance Women's Day will be observed Tuesday, May 18 in B.C., the other proclamation said.

BEFORE MEN'S CLUB

Newsman Relates Odd Experiences

A bag of egg and tomato sandwiches nearly disturbed the dignity of the Queen's wedding to Prince Philip in Westminster Abbey in 1947, Norman Cribbens of the Victoria Times told the Men's Club of Metropolitan United Church this week.

Speaking on Adventures in Journalism, Mr. Cribbens said he and other correspondents took sandwiches to the wedding because they were virtually imprisoned in a wooden grandstand constructed high up at the back of the Abbey.

Regulations required them to be in their seats three hours before the ceremony began.

"I foolishly placed my sandwiches on the ledge in front of the grandstand," Mr. Cribbens said, "and they were nearly pushed over the side by a passing woman reporter in a fur coat.

"Monarchs and ambassadors of other countries were assembled in the pews below. And, with my heart in my mouth, I snatched back the sandwiches in time.

"To this day I've wondered what would have happened if some royal head had been smitten by a descending package of egg and tomato."

SERIOUS NOTE

On a more serious note, the speaker said he believed in the symbolic value of the Crown and thought most people saw in the Queen's wedding an idealization of their own marriages — past, present or future.

"In essence, it was much the same as any other church wedding, but it was ennobled by the glorious music and splendid pageantry."

Mr. Cribbens said one of the ironies of journalism is that reporters sometimes dine with kings and princes and great captains of industry while wondering how they were going to pay the electric light bill.

Recalling his early experiences as a student seeking entry into journalism, Mr. Cribbens told of approaching a dour Scottish editor who said:

"Do ye know what ah'd do if a son of mine wanted to join a newspaper?"

There was an awful pause, then he added:

"I'd drown him—it would be kinder in the end!"

Pr. Rupert Drowning

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Arthur Witzke, 25, identified as a native of Ontario, drowned Thursday afternoon when his rented skiff overturned in the rough waters of Prince Rupert harbor. The body was recovered half an hour later 20 yards from shore.

BEFORE HOGUE INQUEST JURY

Comment on Killings Hit

VANCOUVER (CP) — A lawyer charged before an inquest jury Friday that the press, senior police officers and civic officials have no right to comment on the violent deaths of Constable Leonard Hogue and his family.

H. A. D. Oliver, counsel for the Vancouver Policeman's Union, made the attack in a special statement granted by coroner J. P. Wellwood.

Police spokesmen have said that Hogue, a victim with his wife and six children in a mur[illegible] suspicion in the February robbery of $1,250,000 in cancelled money from a Vancouver warehouse.

Mr. Oliver said a host of unrelated matters had been introduced into the investigation of the deaths and he hoped the jury would be spared further interference of this kind.

The six jurors viewed the bodies of Hogue, his wife and six children, heard medical evidence and the lawyer's statement, and then were released until a police investigation of the deaths is complete. Officials said this would be done within two weeks.

Mr. Oliver sought to establish that Hogue might have suffered a brain injury in an automobile accident less than 24 hours before the shootings.

DAMAGE POSSIBLE

A pathologist, the family's doctor, and a doctor who closed a cut on Hogue's head with six stitches after the accident agreed that brain damage was possible although there was no indication of a brain injury.

Hogue was described by the family doctor, Dr. Leonard Zimich, as a good father who did not show signs of any depressive or psychotic condition.

Pathologist Frederick L. Sturrock said a sample of Hogue's blood showed no evidence of alcohol or barbiturates. He agreed at the suggestion of a jury member to check for traces of narcotic drugs or tranquilizers.

The jury was told all members of the family died instantly of multiple skull fractures and brain injuries inflicted by gunshot wounds. No evidence was given to indicate who might have fired the weapon.
